The strike started May 15 when original negotiations over Union demands for an 18-cent hourly wage increase, 40-hour week and union security, collapsed.

The operators through their representative, R. V. Stuart, have announced that they are "ready and willing" to proceed today with the presentation of their case.

The Union Strike committee will meet to consider a recommendation of its representatives that it be instructed to "proceed to the hearing and present the Union's case."

Collapsed Saturday

The new phase may last a week before it is known whether success can be reached. In Victoria, Chief Justice Sloan said he expected it would take "two or three days" for presentation of cases by both parties, and then he probably would have recommendations to make within 24 hours.

He added that the parties could then have 24 to 48 hours depending on what they thought necessary to make up their minds.

The findings of the Commissioner will not be binding on either party.

The move will differ from attempts at settlement in that the recommendation of the commissioner will not be sent to the Federal Labor Minister but will be given to the contending parties so that either side can accept or decline.

No Indication When UN Council Will Convene

By MAX HARRELSON

New York, May 27 (AP)—Sentiment for dropping the controversial Iranian case from the agenda of the United Nations Security Council was reported increasing today, but there still was no indication when the council would meet.

Sources close to Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., United States delegate on the Security Council, said he probably would agree to close the Iranian case when the coucil takes it up again, unless the situation changes in Iran before then.

He was represented as being satisfied that all Soviet troops now are out of Iran, although the council still has not received a categorical statement from either Russia or Iran.

Brazilian sources said Brazilian delegate Pedro Leao Velloso was ready to go along with the United States. Poland, France and Mexico already had indicated they would be willing to drop the case.

Other delegates could not be reached for comment, but it was regarded as likely that at least two of them might support a move to drop the case, providing the necessary seven votes.

No New Instructions

Iranian Ambassador Hussein Ala said in Washington he had received no new instructions from his government to make a further report to the council. He disclosed, however, that he had received a telegram from Premier Ahmed Qavam confirming reports that Russia had assured the Iranian government that the withdrawal of Soviet troops was completed May 9.

The sub-committee on Spain, holding another public meeting to hear additional testimony from Dr. Jose Giral, Premier of the Spanish government-in-exile, was reported split over the form its report to the security council sould take.

One delegate said France and Poland favored submitting definite conclusions as to whether the Franco regime was a threat to international peace, while China and Brazil wanted merely to submit a summarp of the material assembled. Australia had not indicated how she stands.

Under the resolution of May 22, postponing further discussion of the Iranian case, a meeting of the council must be called if a session is requested by any member. So far no such request has been received.

Man, 2 Children Disappear From Mackey's Station

Pembroke, May 27—(AP)— A strange story of disappearance of a man and two children in the vicinity of Mackey's Station, about 50 miles west of here on the Upper Ottawa River, was brought to Pembroke Saturday by Louis Lavoie, brother of the missing man and father of the children.

Missing — apparently seen by no one since May 18—are Joseph Lavoie, 43, his nephew, Telesphore Lavoie, 14, and his niece, Jeanette, 13. A week ago the trio crossed the Ottawa river by canoe and were to have come to Pembroke, and it was not until Louis Lavoie arrived here that he learned the party never arrived in town. A search party of 60 men, organized here under Cpl. A. R. McLeod of the Ontario Provincial Police, left Pembroke to drag the river at Mackey Station, where it was feared the trio was drowned. Late last night, however, they had discovered no trace of the canoe or of the missing persons.

The Lavoie brothers were engaged in lumbering operations in Malakoff township, on the Quebec side of the river opposite Mackey's Station.

Wearing a placard about his neck bearing numerals for identification, Fritz Kraemer, former chief of staff of the Sixth Panzer Army, is shown as he went on trial at Dachau, Germany. He is charged with taking part in the infamous murders of American prisoners at Malmedy, Belgium, during the "Battle of the Bulge" in '44.

Court Rules Indictment Against Rose to Stand

Counsel Says Authorization For Charge Not Sufficient

By ALAN RANDAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Montreal, May 28, (CP)— The defence lost in Court of King's Bench today a spirited legal battle to have quashed the indictment of Fred Rose on charges of conspiracy.

After a morning of argument by defence counsel for the Labor-Progressive Member of Parliament, Mr. Justice Wilfrid Lazure ruled against two motions to quash the indictment.

Lacked Data

Joseph Cohen, K.C., chief of the defence counsel, had contended that the authorization under which Rose was charged was "insufficient and thus invalid" in that it did not give specific dates and places where the alleged acts of conspiracy had been committed.

Earlier the defence also had moved for quashing of the indictment on the grounds that it referred back to alleged substantive offences in contravention of the Official Secrets Act.

Mr. Cohen argued that a conspiracy count must be complete in itself.

He argued that the preferred indictment as read was not exactly as drafted by the Provincial Attorney General on the authorization of the Federal Attorney General.

His Lordship ruled that the alleged substantive offences previously outlined in the indictment could be repeated by the clerk in the conspiracy count with the words "to wit" thus making the conspiracy count specific against Rose.

Cites Reasons.

Joseph Cohen, K.C., defence counsel for the Labor-Progressive member of parliament, pointed out that the indictment preferred against Rose by the Attorney-General of the province, referred to the substantive alleged offences before mentioning the conspiracy count.

His argument was that each count in an indictment must be "complete in itself as drawn."

The indictment should be quashed on two grounds, defence counsel argued.

The second reason was that, as it now reads, it alleges conspiracy to commit four indictable offences.

Oscar Gagnon, K.C., senior Crown prosecutor who is associated with F. Philippe Brais, K.C., special federal prosecutor, held that the indictment should be pleaded on its merits first.

Mr. Cohen objected saying he had protested against the formal indictment as laid.

Mr. Wilfrid Lazure presiding judge in the King's Bench Court, suggested a general objection with the formal motion later.

This, Mr. Cohen also objected to at first.

He argued that the conspiracy count should be entirely complete in itself.

Mr. Cohen was invited by the court to cite one of two legal authorities, which he did.

Mr. Justice Lazure commented that "we are coming to a motion which should have been made two or three weeks ago."

Mr. Cohen replied he would have another argument to offer in connection with the indictment.

He insisted that the prosecution should have included in the conspiracy count everything they wished to charge.

The court permitted the reading of the conspiracy count so as to refer back to the preceding substantive alleged offences with introduction of the words "to wit!"

This was subject to objection by Mr. Cohen.

The objection was registered, together with a motion to quash the indictment as drawn.

Motion Rejected

The motion was rejected and Mr. Justice Lazure ordered the indictment read to the jury in the form he suggested.

Mr. Cohen also objected to the authorization of the Federal Attorney-General under which Rose was held—Section XII of the Official Secrets Act. The defence counsel held the authorization was "insufficient and therefore invalid"

He said, for one thing, the authorization did not mention dates or alleged offences nor give any locale.

He cited previous legal proceedings to substantiate his point.

A blanket authorization "such as this," said Mr. Cohen, permitted the Crown to charge Mr. Rose with any offence instead of a specific offence.

Mr. Cohen went back to a case in 1919 in the British Columbia Supreme Court, involving a charge of being a member of an unlawful organization. Here, said the defence counsel, the judge ruled that the authorization was too vague in that it did not mention specific acts, dates or places.

By now Mr. Cohen who had held the attention of the court with his arguments for an hour, had some 12 legal books on his desk from which he had cited cases to back his argument.

"I therefore say to you, my Lord, that there is no authorization (for holding Rose) before the court," said Mr. Cohen, finally.

Five Seamen Are Arrested

Toronto, May 28 —(CP)—Five striking members of the Canadian Seamen's Union were arrested today at the Toronto waterfront when strike pickets swarmed over a fence toward an auto they believed was carrying non-striking crewmen to man ships tied up in the Great Lakes strike.

Police said there were about 12 officers on duty at a pier at the foot of Bay Street when the car pulled up and the pickets climbed a fence, shouting "scabs." The pickets climbed the fence and moved toward the car but police turned them back. Originally there were some 40 pickets on duty and 15 more arrived on a small truck. Police called for reinforcements and 15 squad cars were dispatched to the scene.

It was not known immediately whether charges would be laid against the five taken to police station.

The union office withheld comment pending a report from the picket captain.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto —(CP)— Synopsis at 7:30 a.m.: Slowly moving storm centered in Virginia this morning, has caused continuous rain south of the Lower Lakes for the past two days. The cloudiness which persisted in Southern Ontario yesterday marked the northern edge of the rain area, and this cloud has cleared this morning as the storm moved eastward. High pressures and fair weather extend over the northern and central parts of the continent but cool air from the Pacific has pushed over the mountains bringing rain and thundershowers along its eastern edge. Ahead of this air a strong southerly flow of warm air is giving high temperature over 80 in the central states.

POLYMER DEBATE IN HOUSE CAUSES TEMPERS TO FLARE

Member Claims Trucks Leaving Property in Sarnia With "Scrap That Was Not Scrap"

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, May 28 (CP)—Tempers flared and set off some sizzling cross-exchanges in the Commons yesterday as members dealt with legislation to incorporate some crown companies and to expand the administrative end of the National Research Council.

J. W. Murphy (PC-Lambton W) set off the fireworks by saying that some of the people in Sarnia, Ont., were beginning to wonder if the government was efficient to operate the Polymer Corporation because they were seeing trucks leave the plant with "scrap that was not scrap."

Rconstruction Minister Howe took the statement as a charge of dishonesty against himself. He said he had spent $12,000,000,000 of government money in five years and Mr. Murphy was the first to ever charge him in the House with dishonesty.

Mr. Murphy said he did not want Mr. Howe to interpret his remarks as a charge of dishonesty against him, but that did not end the spat. Mr. Howe said Mr. Murphy would be given a chance to prove his charges before a parliamentary committee where officers of the Reconstruction Department would cross-question him. "I will be there myself," said Mr. Howe.

Statement Called Cowardly

Allistair Stewart (CCF—Winnipeg North) and Arthur Smith (PC—Calgary West) carried on the cross-exchange when Mr. Stewart said Mr. Murphy's statement was "cowardly."

Mr. Smith, asking for the withdrawal of the remark, said "let him take it back if he has the guts he has for his size." Acting Chairman G. H. Golding asked Mr. Smith to withdraw his remark. When the member complied, Mr. Stewart followed suit.

Rev. E. G. Hansell (SC—MacLeod) brought the heated discus-

Big U.S. Unions Drop Some Hints

Washington, May 28 (AP)—Big United States unions, boiling with political wrath for President Truman, dropped some oblique hints today that they might switch to another standard bearer, with Commerce Secretary Henry A. Wallace and Senator Claude Pepper (Dem.-Fla.) heading the list of acceptables.

There was no immediate action of a concrete nature, but three powerful labor organizations kept up a heavy drumfire of criticism on the program Mr. Truman proposed Saturday for coping with strikes in vital industries during the reconversion period.

President Philip Murray of the Congress of Industrial Organizations was among the latest to blast at Mr. Truman's proposals.

War in Normandy Fought Exactly As Planned Before the Invasion

—Montgomery in New Book

Editor's note: In the following story, first of a series, Ross Munso of The Canadian Press reports on what Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery says in his new book, "Normandy to Baltic." Munro, a war correspondent with the Canadians from North Africa to Germany, saw many of the campaigns which the famous British Commander analyzes.

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, May 28 (CP Cable)—The outstanding point about the Battle of Normandy—centre of considerable recent controversy among military analysts— was that it was fought exactly as planned before the invasion, Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery says in his new, privately-distributed book on Western Front operations of the 21st Army Group entitled "Normandy to Baltic."

This statement is supported by abundant evidence in the British Commander's painstakingly accurate chronicle and disposes of criticism that the bloody actions fought by Canadian and British troops in the Caen sector were "a failure."

Although the book was written before publication of Lt.-Col. Ralph Ingersoll's "Top Secret", it is a convincing answer to the particular charge of the New York editor that there was "failure" at Caen, pivot of the whole Normandy campaign.

(Col. Ingersoll, publisher of the newspaper PM, was a liaison officer between British and American commands during the fighting in western Europe. In "Top Secret" he criticizes Lord Montgomery and Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, Supreme Allied Commander at that time, and praises Gen. Omar Bradley, Chief United States Army Commander in the field.)

Once Allied troops were ashore and firmly established, Lord Montgomery's plan was to threaten to break out of the Spanish Foreign Ministry Claims Spain Has Right To Investigate Atom Energy

Madrid, May 28, (CP)— The Spanish Foreign Ministry said today Spain has a "perfect right" to investigate atomic energy and "cannot recognize the competence" of the United Nations in matters affecting Spain.

The ministry distributed a 700-word statement described as a "report of statements made this morning by a foreign ministry spokesman."

The statement said the Spanish position was made clear in notes distributed to foreign missions here May 23. It continued:

"Although the Spanish government, like all other countries, has a perfect right to provide itself with adequate means for national defence, including investigations of atomic energy, diplomatic missions accredited in Madrid have proof of the falsity of statements that such investigations are being made."

STRIKE LEADERS CALLED BY GOVT. FOR CONFERENCE

Efforts Being Made to Find Some Solution of Strike Crippling Shipping

(By The Canadian Press)

From the tense docks of the Great Lakes ports interest in the Canadian Seamen's Union strike against Great Lakes shipping shifted today to Ottawa, where vessel operators and union leaders were called into conference with Federal Labor Department chiefs in an effort to find some solution of the strike which is crippling the vital lake fleets and has had repercussions as far as the Atlantic Coast.

Prospects for the Ottawa meeting were not bright. It was preceded by an acrimonious exchange of telegrams yesterday between Federal Labor Minister Mitchell and J. A. (Pat) Sullivan, President of the Seamen's Union who has set up strike headquarters in Toronto.

The government also was in receipt of strongly-worded telegrams of protest from various unions against the arrest of striking seamen. Reports to The Canadian Press showed 48 had been arrested from Montreal to the head of the lakes, and the strike headquarters said warrants had been issued for another 45.

The arrests were made under a clause of the Canada Shipping Act providing penalties for "absence without leave" from vessels—or desertion. Provincial police were present in force at Thorold, where

Five Stowaways On Queen Mary

Halifax, May 28 — (CP)—Five unofficial travellers, at least, were among the more than 2,500 passengers, headed by distinguished British and Canadian diplomats and government officials, who arrived yesterday on the Queen Mary, port authorities revealed today.

Ship's officers and crew were led on a merry chase throughout the voyage flushing out the stowaways from among the more than 2,000 Canadian servicemen's dependents and 500 civilians aboard the giant liner, they said.

With the fifth turning up in a funnel the last night out, officials suspected more aboard and guards were posted overnight to ensure none made Canada before the ship's scheduled departure for New York today to pick up passengers for a return crossing. Four of those caught were men, the other a woman described as 'about 30.'

Two attractive blond twins, both married to Canadian servicemen, were outstanding among the 1,254 wives and 866 children coming to join families in Canada. The twins, Marjorie and Constance, both are going to Peterboro for a reunion with their husbands, buddies who grew up together.

Marjorie is married to Thomas Harvey and Constance to Charles Grey. Both are mothers of blond babies born just weeks apart.

Diplomats and government officials aboard the liner include:

Lord Inverchapel, New British Ambassador to the United States, who diplomatically, confessed a keen interest in baseball and described cricket as "the dullest game ever invented."

Sir Alexander Clutterbuck, particularly happy that his new duties as British High Commissioner to Ottawa carry with it an official residence — "Some of my friends congratulated me on finding a home even before they congratulated me on my new post."

Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, retiring Canadian High Commissioner to Britain — "ready to spend a quiet summer in good Canadian sunshine."

END OF CRIPPLING SOFT COAL STRIKE APPEARS IN SIGHT

Speculation Rife Over Possible Contract Terms to Terminate Dispute

By HAROLD W. WARD

Washington, May 28 (AP) — The end of the crippling soft coal strike appeared in sight today as the United States government and John L. Lewis hammered out final details of a new work contract.

Expectations of a speedy peace ran high in official circles as Mr. Lewis got ready to confer with Interior Secretary J. A. Krug, who took over the bituminous mines for the government a week ago.

Encouraging evidence was the fact that union counsel were called in to work on the legal points of proposals under discussion — something that rarely happens unless the rough draft of a contract has been blocked out.

Despite this new hope, the mines still stood idle. United States coal supply shrank hourly toward the danger point.

The feeling here was that a break in the two-month-old strike was inescapable, but the general expectation was that success on a new contract would produce it without the necessity for more drastic government intervention.

Mr. Lewis and Mr. Krug had little to say about the negotiations. Mr. Krug reported "some progress," but added that this progress would keep lawyers for all parties busy through the night.

Mr. Lewis did not comment,

Coal Conference Delayed 3 Hours

By HAROLD W. WARD

Washington, May 28 —(AP)— Conferences between John L. Lewis and Interior Secretary Krug looking toward settlement of the United States soft coal strike were delayed more than three hours today because neither side "was ready" for the next step in negotiations.

The explanation of the postponement was offered by Mr. Krug's office after a four-man union delegation showed up without Mr. Lewis, chief of the United Mine Workers.

The U.M.W. group, headed by U.M.W. President John L. O'Leary, spent 20 minutes in Mr. Krug's office.

A spokesman for Mr. Krug told reporters the four union officials talked with Vice Admiral Ben Morreell, deputy coal mine administrator, about "alleged discrimination" in the operation of the mines.

There was no elaboration of this but the spokesman said Mr. O'Leary had drawn the Admiral's attention to "a couple of incidents" in which the miners claimed discrimination. The government has been in control of the mines for a week.

The meeting between Krug and Lewis was moved from 11 a.m. E.S.T. to 2:15 p.m.

All signs pointed to an early agreement as the two ended a conference last night.

FLOODS INUNDATE SCORES OF TOWNS IN PENNSYLVANIA

Hundreds Are Homeless Two Known Dead And Damage Estimated At Half Million

Pittsburgh, May 28 —(AP)— Flood waters, fed by heavy spring rains, inundated scores of towns in Pennsylvania, Ohio and New York today and left in their wake two known dead and hundreds homeless.

Drowned were Charles Gilmore and Richard Bowman, two farmers from Mill Hall, Pa., near Lock Haven, sucked into the swollen waters of Fishing Creek while trying to clear debris from a factory dam.

Property damage in northern and western Pennsylvania was estimated at more than $500,000. From other points, damages expected to be in the thousands still were to be reported.

A flash flood in Tioga county, Pa., sent the Susquehanna river boiling out of its banks last night to isolate Renova, a community of 3,800 persons, as earth slides blocked the Williamsport branch of the Pennsylvania Railroad and cut away telephone poles.

Telephone and telegraph communications in some communities were severed by racing, rising waters. Nearly nine inches of water in the last three days sent the Allegheny river and its tributary, French Creek, soaring toward the flood stage.

Firemen and highway crews stood ready to use rowboats to remove residents from more than 40 homes surrounded by water.

The Titusville Herald in Crawford county was forced to print its morning editions on the Franklin News-Harold press in a neighboring community. Water heaved up the floor in two departments of the Titusville Forge Co., forcing the plant to shut down. A street bridge was partially destroyed.

Williamsport Flooded

Williamsport, Pa., May 28 (AP) —Raging flood waters of the Susquehanna River today covered a fifth of the residential areas of this city of 45,000 persons as railroad and most highway communications were cut by high water.

The flood, caused by four days of heavy rains culminating in a cloudburst yesterday, reached a stage of 27.5 feet at 8:30 a.m. E.D.T., 5 1-2 feet above flood stage, with a crest of 33 feet predicted.

In the disastrous 1936 flood which damaged millions of dollars worth of property and made thousands in central Pennsylvania homeless, the flood waters reached 33.6 feet here.

With highways to the north and west already cut and other roads due to be covered by the rapidly rising waters, persons living in low-lying sections were moved to higher parts of the city with prospects of a third of the town being inundated or cut off.

1,200 ENTRIES RECEIVED

Owen Sound, May 28 (CP)—A record 1,200 entries were registered in the opening day of Grey County's Festival of Music yesterday, opening day honors went to Mary Lou McArthur, of Markdale, who was given 87 marks for a solo by the judge, Roy Fenwick, school music supervisor.

Retail Meat Men Protest Relaxation Wholesale Prices

Cattle Begin to Appear In Numbers Near Normal

Toronto, May 28—(CP)—Cattle began to appear on the market in something approaching normal numbers today following temporary relaxation of wholesale price ceilings on the two top grades of beef, but many retail meat dealers were protesting this move, claiming it would remove their margin of profit as long as retail ceilings are maintained.

A. G. Frame, secretary of the food division of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada, said telegrams and telephone messages received by the association indicated a "mounting volume of protest" for butchers.

Retailers planned protest meetings in Vancouver, Toronto, Montreal and Saint John, N.B., and some butchers predicted they might have to close their shops as the suspension of the price ceiling remains in effect until July 20.

Expansion of black market activities was predicted by Fernand Boisseau, of Montreal, national secretary of the Canadian Retailers' Association, who declared that butchers would be unable to maintain ceilings if forced to sell at prices that failed to cover overhead costs.

More Shipments Coming.

Other butchers, however, saw the orders as a move toward normalcy in their businesses. Halifax merchants said they could handle beef profitably if the wholesale price did not increase materially.

Meanwhile the announcement caused an increase in cattle shipments to stockyards across the country, with further increase expected as the news reached farmers in outlying areas.

Toronto reported supplies higher by several hundred than on any one day in the last several weeks. A total of 3,381 head arrived at the stockyards yesterday and price increases up to ¾ cent a pound were registered.

Trading improved in Winnipeg yesterday with prices up 50 cents to $1 a hundred although livestock officials said Sunday night announcement had been too recent to have an appreciable affect on the supply.

While packers declared that price increases were still under consideration and no definite decision had been reached, a two-cent-a-pound boost was believed probable. A Regina packer said he expected retailers would be able to absorb this increase.

D. A. McKenzie, Dominion government supervisor at the Calgary stockyards, predicted a more equitable distribution of beef between the East and the West as a result of the government move. Very little Alberta meat has moved East for some weeks.

FROM MISSOURI

Algonquin Park, May 28 (CP) —Lord Portal of Hungerford, Chief of Britain's Air Staff, is from Missouri when it comes to beavers. Told of the engineering feats of beavers he replied: "I understand they have a pouch under each paw in which they keep their slide-rules."

Strike Highlights

(By The Canadian Press)

These were among developments today in the Canadian Seamen's Union strike against lake shipping for an eight-hour day:

Representatives of ship operators and leaders of the union were called to confer with Federal Labor Department heads at Ottawa.

The union claimed 61 vessels were tied up between Montreal and the lakehead; that all lake shipping would cease by Wednesday.

The owners claimed that only 17 vessels actually had been tied up by the strike. Non-union crews were being recruited wherever available.

A total of 48 seamen were under arrest from Montreal to the lakehead on charges under the Canada Steamship Act of 'absence without leave.'

Other unions and some political representatives of the C.C.F. sent telegrams to Ottawa and Toronto government authorities protesting the arrests.

One lake vessel on coastal duty — the Cheyenne — was tied up at Halifax after 17 crewmen joined the strike. Two government lighters were held at Saint John and one at Charlottetown. The union headquarters claimed the Prince Edward Island ferries also were stopped.

Thirty strikers were taken from the picket lines at Thorold to jail at Welland where they were remanded in custody for a week.

No ships cleared the lakehead Monday — about 17 vessels were held there.

Medical Staff Of Ship Absolved In Baby Deaths

New York, May 28 (AP)— A United States Army Board of Inquiry today absolved the medical staff of the brideship Zebulon B. Vance of "negligence or misconduct" in connection with the deaths of eight American babies who died soon after the ship's arrival here May 19 from Le Havre.

The number of infant deaths during the last week rose to 10 as the port of embarkation announced receipt of a radiogram from the transport John Ericcson —due here Thursday from Southampton—advising that a baby had died aboard the ship, apparently from suffocation.

The board, in its preliminary report released last night, said its investigation indicated the Vance's medical staff "performed their duties in a conscientious and entirely satisfactory manner," and that the ship's hospital area, diet kitchen and formula kitchen were "scrupulously clean and well policied."

The preliminary findings did not state the cause of deaths but an army medical board previously diagnosed the illness of four of the victims as "summer diarrhoea."

Col. Howard J. Hutter, port of embarkation surgeon, said in a statement accompanying the inquiry board's report that several of the mothers told the board their children's illness began before they boarded the Vance at Le Havre.

He said tho "background of these infants reflects years of starvation and deprivation in war-torn Europe. A great many of the infants are badly fed, undernourished and a ready prey along with the onset of summer to any type of symptoms."

WELCOMED BY POPE

Britain's Entry in Transatlantic Air Race Ready for Test Runs in April

By STUART UNDERHILL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Bristol, England, May 28 (CP) —Britain's challenger in the trans-Atlantic air race—the first production model of the Brabazon I—is being transformed from paper plans to gleaming metallic reality and should be in the air for test runs by next April.

When completed the Brabazon, complete with cocktail and snack bar, will carry 180 passengers in luxurious comfort. In night flights 80 can be accommodated in sleeping quarters.

"It can't be emphasized too much that everything going into the Brabazon is new," said J. A. Latham, superintendent in charge of producing Britain's largest land plane. "Nothing on this scale has ever been attempted before. We're in new territory, continually encountering problems we've never dreamed of."

Four Brabazons have been ordered by British Overseas Airways Corporation for the trans-Atlantic run. To accommodate them in construction the world's largest assembly hangar is being built, a T-shaped structure more than 1,500 feet wide, 410 long and 119 wide.

The countryside around the sprawling Filton plant here is being changed to meet construction demands. Five holes of the Filton Golf Course are being obliterated by the new hangar and the old-world village of Charlton is being eliminated to make way for an extended runway.

Haunting engineers, who gloomily predict that "some of us will be driven into the ground before this thing flies," is the knowledge that aircraft construction is still in a state of experiment, and what is accepted practice now may be outdated in a few years.

The first Brabazon will be powered with eight Centaurus engines, geared in pairs to contra-rotating propellors. The remaining three will be equipped with gas turbine engines.

The Brabazon will cruise at 25,000 feet, the first at 250 miles an hour, the remaining three at 350 miles.

34TH BATTERY MOVES BACK TO ARMOURIES

The 34th Battery, S.P., R.C.A., now a part of the 9th Anti-Tank Regt. Argylls, has moved back to its former quarters in the Bridge Street Armouries after a brief sojourn in its original armory on Church Street. A number of returned veteran officers have joined the unit, most of whom were associated with it prior to the war.

HON. SOLON LOW GUEST SPEAKER AT NURSES' GRADUATION EXERCISES

The Hon. Solon E. Low, M.P., one of the outstanding orators of the Federal Parliament will be the guest speaker at the graduation exercises of the 1946 class of nursing of the Belleville General Hospital at the Collegiate Institute on Thursday evening.

Brief addresses will be made by His Worship, Mayor Frank Follwell and Mr. Mackenzie Robertson, chairman of the Board of Governors of the Hospital. Greetings to the class will be extended by Dr. Austin Walters, president of the medical staff and the valedictory will be delivered by Miss Fay Edith Kelly. Presentation of diplomas and special prizes will be another feature of the function.

CROWN ATTORNEY CRITICIZES DANGEROUS DRIVING ON STREETS

Pleading guilty to a charge of driving at 60 miles per hour on Station Street, Ernest Dunley, driver for a local taxi company was assessed $27.50 fine and costs in local police court, Tuesday morning by Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

The accused had been checked by police officers in the police cruiser as he was driving to the station to meet a train.

'Cancellation of a few taxi licenses might possibly serve to put an end to this dangerous and senseless speeding on city streets," commented Crown Attorney Donnan as Dunley's plea of guilty was accepted.

The magistrate thought, however, that drivers, possibly more than the taxi firms, were responsible for the speeding and accordingly did not assess the maximum fine under the Act.

P. C. CALNAN ACTED AS CHAIRMAN

In Monday's edition of the Ontario Intelligencer it was erroneously stated in the report of a dinner given to former postmaster J. V. C. Truaisch that Acting Postmaster J. C. Waddell had acted as chairman for the evening's program. It has been pointed out that Postal Clerk P. C. Calnan, acted as chairman on the occasion, his efforts contributing much to the success of the evening.

STOLEN CAR FOUND ABANDONED IN NORTH

Found abandoned on a lonely sideroad near the Haliburton-Hastings county boundary a stolen motorcar owned by Paul Queneau of Coppercliff was recovered over the weekend by officers from the Belleville provincial police department. The motor car was stolen in Coppercliff on May 18th and apparently abandoned the following day.

Following investigation into the theft of the car, two Coppercliff men, Harold Bradley and Roger Paquette have been arrested in Dorval, Quebec, and are being returned to Coppercliff to face the auto theft charges.

POLICE COURT

Charged with being "found in" at a crap game in a household in the western end of the city early in the month, five local residents each paid $7.50 fine and cost, when they pleaded guilty before Magistrate T. Y. Wills in police court Tuesday morning.

All five pleaded guilty to the offense as charged although counsel had advised at least one of the accused to enter a plea of "not guilty." Charges against one of the accused of obstructing a police officer in the course of his duty were dismissed by the Crown.

"Does this mean that the police are going to stop all gambling in the city?" asked Magistrate Wills as he assessed fines against the accused. "Yes," returned the Crown in lighter vein, "we are even going to move in on bridge parties."

Stanley Scott, local bottling agent for a soft drink firm appeared in court charged with using bottles of another firm for bottling his own firm's drinks. The accused pleaded guilty and was assessed $41 fines and costs.

Speaking in his own defence the accused stated the bottles in question had not been intended for sale but were for presentation to servicemen at a nearby air station. Inspector Hayes stated to the court that investigation had revealed 64 cases of soft drinks in the second firm's bottles.

A total of 43 cases were listed for the morning's proceedings, the majority of which were traffic and L.C.A. charges and settled out of court.

POLICE BLOTTER

Apparently someone is laboring under the misbelief that chewing gum is still the scarce article which it was during the war years when popular brands practically disappeared from the retail market.

For over the weekend local officials of the Canadian Pacific Railway reported to police that their freight shed had been entered and a carton of chewing gum stolen. The carton had been carried behind a nearby pile of freight and after being opened, four smaller cartons containing twenty packets each taken. The balance of the contents was recovered.

A Pinnacle Street transport firm complained to police that over the weekend children had used two of their new trucks as a blackboard with scratches and writing appearing on fenders and body. Constables were ordered in future to check the trucks on weekends.

Four-year-old Donald Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Wilson, George Street, was reported bitten by a dog at a street corner near his home. The matter was reported to police who turned it over to the city pound keeper.

650,000 NEUROTICS

Chicago, May 28 —(AP)— Neuro-psychiatric disorders have placed in hospital approximately 650,000 United States soldiers of the Second Great War up to the first of the year — some of them more than once — but many will return to duty, the American Psychiatric Association was told today. Brig.-Gen. William C. Menninger, chief of psychiatry, released the figures in a paper prepared for delivery before the association's 102nd meeting.

Canadian Economy Has Much to Gain By Providing Opportunities for Vets

The future of every Canadian hamlet, village, town and city depends on the opportunities they give the returned veterans of the last Great War, Emerson Reid, director of Public Relations Department of Veterans Affairs, Ottawa, told the Rotary Club here on Monday.

"The future of these men should be the concern of every community in the land because they are the service clubs of the future, and the future leaders of the country. If they are not given the proper opportunity by the communities of this Dominion, then Heaven help the communities."

As a sample of what the veterans are doing, Mr. Reid quoted an illustration of a number of returned men living in a village of 500 inhabitants in the western part of Canada, who have invested upwards of $100,000 in their home town.

Better Educated

Veterans of the Second World War, he said have a much higher standard of education than had those returning from World War I, over 47 per cent of those coming home from the last conflict had a secondary school education, and roughly 8 per cent were university men.

"These men of this war," Mr. Reid said, "will not be like those of the first one who were given their gratuity and a ticket to any place in Canada with the result that a lot of them became itinerants."

People of Canada this year will make payment of 596 millions of dollars to these young men in gratuities, education, vocations and other things. The money spent for out-of-work benefits has been the lowest sum paid. Already this year 61 millions in cash payments have been diverted to veterans.

Splendid Workers

General Crerar, former commanding office of the Canadian Army overseas, had told the speaker during a conference that men skilled in the armed services would make splendid workers in civilian life. Employers, today, he said, are invariably men of the last war brackets who have no concept of the war just ended.

The last war, Mr. Reid said, was one of machines, where a man needed a fast eye and coordination and above all, initiative and a sense of responsibility. They showed they understood what was required of them, accepted responsibility, worked with their fellows and did many jobs on their own initiative.

Big industrial firms who have employed veterans have stated that they are steady workers. One organization stated that its labor turnover of veterans was 50 per cent lower than that of newly employed former war-workers.

"It is good business," the speaker declared, "to bring into your organizations these men who have initiative, a sense of responsibility and education."

Earnings Supplemented

His department, he went on, will supplement the salary of a man 23 to 29 years of age to the amount to which he is entitled. Provision has been made by legislature to bring the salary of a single man who is being paid $15-$18 weekly to $100 per month and a married man to $120, plus allowances.

A lot of employers will take advantage of this plan, but some have the idea that it opens the doors for exploitation of unscrupulous employers. This is being carefully watched and exploitation is at a minimum.

The Department of Veterans Affairs has placed roughly 28,000 young veterans in universities. Close to 30,000 are receiving vocational training; 7,000 are on full-time farms; 1,000 in commercial fishing and 6,500 in small farm holdings.

The speaker was introduced by his brother, Rotarian Ken Reid, Inspector of Income Tax here while club appreciation was expressed by Rotarian Perc McGuire.

Senator Glass Dies in Capital

Washington, May 28 — (AP)— Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, long-time member of Congress, "Father of the federal reserve system" and once a cabinet member, died early today of heart failure.

Senator Glass had been so ill that he was unable to appear in the Senate since June, 1942. Because of this a Virginia Republican sought unsuccessfully last year to have his seat declared vacant and a special election called to name a successor. Virginia courts threw the suit out and the Supreme Court declined to review the case.

After winning election nine times as a member of the House, Senator Glass resigned in 1918 to become President Wilson's secretary of the treasury.

He left the cabinet in 1920 to accept appointment as Senator and was re-elected five times, most recently to a term expiring in 1949.

Senator Glass received much of the credit for creation of the Federal Reserve system because of his part in drafting the Federal Reserve Law when he was chairman of the House Committee on banking and currency in 1913.

Col. Slack, M.C., Retires From Active Army

Colonel L. W. W. Slack, M.C., V.D., commander of the 33rd Reserve Brigade Group with headquarters at Kingston, Ont., since May 1942, has retired from the active army, National Defence Headquarters has announced. He previously commanded a 1st Canadian Division reinforcement unit overseas.

Col. Slack was twice wounded during the First Great War in which he was awarded the Military Cross. He is a former commanding officer of the Colchester and Hants Regiment. Later he commanded the 17th Infantry Brigade at Aldershot-Camp, N.S., having completed the militia staff course in 1932. In civil life Col. Slack is a well-known businessman in Canning, N.S.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

For Easier Parking Suggests Longer Lines

The Ontario Intelligencer.

First I would like to compliment the City Council on its decision to institute parallel parking on both sides of Front Street. It bears out the old adage that "everything comes to him who waits," and I am sure that motorists of the city will appreciate this move to facilitate the passage of traffic on the main thoroughfare.

Then too, think of those people who love to double-park their cars and trucks on Front Street, especially on Saturdays and other busy days. Now they can do it with a more or less feeling of safety and not be worried about vehicles proceeding along the street, denting their fenders while one or more of their passengers are getting a hair-cut, or discussing current events on a street corner.

But to get back to the subject. Parallel parking on both sides of the street has been needed for some time. While, naturally, it will reduce the parking space, I feel sure that motorists in general will overlook this small item and rejoice in the fact that more room will be available to moving traffic.

The new white lines running parallel with the pavement, at a distance of approximately better than the width of a car or truck, and those intersecting these lines and running at right angles to the pavement, indicate clearly the parking spaces. At the present time, a motorist has no excuse for not parking in his proper space.

But, may I be allowed to suggest something that in my opinion would facilitate the efforts of a potential "parker" in one of these indicated spaces. If the lines running at right angles to the pavement, and which intersect the parallel one, were extended some five feet towards the centre of the street, they would be of inestimable help in assisting a driver to park his or her car in the proper space. The extended lines would be plainly visible to the driver, and he would know, without getting out of his car, if he were in the designated area, and not two or more feet beyond, or behind the dividing lines.

As things are at present, a driver cannot ascertain when parking his car, whether he is placing the vehicle in the proper space, unless he gets out and sees for himself. And this, Mr. Editor, gets rather monotonous after three or four attempts.

Yours for better and easier parking,

"I Drive One"

Sea Cadet Corps Impressive On Inspection Night

Sixty-four officers and other ranks, immaculate in the blue, gold and white of the Royal Canadian Naval Cadet Corps, paraded before the keen scrutiny of inspecting officers from Kingston in the Armouries here Monday night.

Rated as one of the smartest corps in this section of Ontario the Belleville Sea Cadets exemplified the efficiency achieved after months of training, in their trim appearance, steadiness on parade, precision-like marching and general department as well as the ease in which they carried out demonstrations of specialized training.

To the martial rhythms of their crack drum and bugle band under the direction of Sub.-Lieut. Don Longhurst, the corps moved over the Armouries parade floor in column of route, column, and review order following the ceremonial parade and the general salute.

Inspect Ranks.

The young sailors stood rigidly at attention as Lieut. R. Dunn, Royal Canadian Navy, and Lieut. Roy Nurse, accompanied by Lieut. E. Zeran, acting commanding officer of the corps conducted their tour of inspection of the ranks.

After the inspection, the cadets in an outstanding marching exhibition swung along the floor past a reviewing stand where Lieut. Dunn took the salute. Mayor Frank Follwell also complimented the cadets on their fine appearance.

The inspecting officer paid fine tribute to the corps complimenting it on its personal as well as corps appearance, its steadiness on parade and its general deportment as well as efficiency in the various phases of training.

Officers Entertain.

Following the inspection officers of the corps entertained their wives and a number of guests at an informal reception held in the officers' mess of the Argyll Light Infantry.

Officers of the corps here include besides Lieut. Zeran, Lieut. Addison Lloyd, Lieut. W. Fox, Lieut. J. Howe, Sub.-Lieut. T. MacAuley, Sub-Lieut. D. Longhurst, and Sub.-Lieut. H. Stewart (S).

Unable to Find Friendly Witness For M. Bormann

By THOMAS A. REEDY

Nuernberg, May 28 (AP) — Counsel for the missing Martin Bormann complained wryly today that he was unable to find a single friendly witness to defend Hitler's deputy against war crimes charges before the International Military Tribunal.

The lawyer, Dr. Friedrich Bergold, presented to the tribunal several documents to be considered when the defence of the absent Bormann comes up in a few weeks and remarked:

"I am in an extremely difficult position. All the witnesses are antagonistic to Bormann and want to put all the guilt on him."

Dr. Bergold said Bormann is "probably dead or being held by Russian occupation authorities."

He asked permission to subpoena Else Krueger, Bormann's secretary, now living in Hamburg, commenting that she "was with him to the last" and may be able to clear up the mystery surrounding Bormann's disappearance.

Bormann was said to have been wounded in the last hours of the siege of Berlin and has not been seen since, although rumors of his capture crop up every few weeks. Indicted with other Nazi leaders, Bormann is the only one of the 22 defendants being tried in absentia.

Baldur Von Schirach, former Hitler youth leader, concluded his defence with the testimony of his former adjutant, S. S. Lieutenant Fritz Wieshofer, who said Von Schirach "intervened many times" to prevent evacuation of Jews.

On one occasion, the witness said, Von Schirach sent men to rescue an American flier from an angry crowd in the streets of Vienna. He said this was done in defiance of an order from Berlin that aviators who had crashed were to be denied protection.

MRS. ANNIE NICKLE (Marmora)

Marmora, May 28—(Special)— The death occurred in Belleville General Hospital late on Friday afternoon last of Annie Nickle, wife of Alexander Nickle following a week's illness. She was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Carman of Madoc Township and was in her fifty-eighth year.

Mrs. Nickle was a resident of Marmora for over twenty years, during which time she made many friends by her friendly and happy disposition. She was a member of St. Paul's Anglican Church and assisted in the work of the Ladies' Guild.

Besides her husband, she is survived by two brothers, Beryl and Charles Carman of Madoc Township and one sister, Mrs. Mervyn McCann (Pearl) of Niagara Falls, N.Y.

The funeral service was conducted by Rev. J. M. Brownlie in St. Paul's Anglican Church, Marmora, on Monday afternoon.

Interment took place at Fox's Cemetery, Eldorado.

Many Sunday Schools Closed in War Years

Toronto, May 28 —(CP)— "More than 1,000 Protestant Sunday Schools have been closed in Canada during the war years," Rev. Frank Wellington, 34-year-old secretary of the Evangelical Sunday School Association of Canada, said today.

"In a survey made by a public school principal in North Bay, Ont., recently, it was discovered that 30 per cent of the pupils have never attended Sunday School; 30 per cent attended seldom; 20 per cent attended but irregularly, and only 20 per cent attended regularly," he said. "This was a survey taken in an average school in an average Canadian city."

Mr. Wellington said the war, which took away many trained Sunday School workers, was only a contributory factor. The real reason was a lack of interest on the part of parents.

Chaing Kai-Shek Announces Terms For Ending Strife

Nanking, May 28 (AP)—Chiang Kai-Shek, his position strengthened by government troop advances in Manchuria, was reported today to have laid down terms which Chinese Communists must meet as a prerequisite to further talks on ending civil war in the great northeast territory.

The extreme right-wing Kuomintang (National Party) newspaper Ta Kang Pao said the generalissimo had advised Gen. Marshall, special United States envoy to China, that Communists must recognize government sovereignty in Manchuria and help restore its communications as a precondition to new peace talks.

The message was sent from Mukden by special plane on Saturday, Ta Kang Pao reported, and delivered to Gen. Marshall by Premier T. V. Soong. A conference with the chief Communist negotiator, Gen. Chou En-Lai, followed shortly, the newspaper said.

Communist reaction to Chiang's reported terms was lacking. However, it was known the party opposes the movement of additional government troops into Manchuria.

When the Communists held Changchun, Manchurian capital, they agreed to withdraw from the city as a truce condition, providing government troops did not occupy it. When Chinese Red forces evacuated the city last week in the face of a government drive, the Communists' Yenan radio said the action was taken to "discover whether the Kuomintang desire for cessation of civil war in Manchuria is true."

The influential independent newspaper Hsin Min Pao joined the growing demand for Manchurian peace with a truce formula of its own.

Its proposal called for a temporary halt to military transportation to Manchuria; evacuation of Harbin and Tsitsihar by the Communists, with the government promising not to increase its forces in the territory; and a Communist pledge to help restore railroads and communications.

Communists expressed most concern over the government drive toward Communist-held Harbin. Wang Ping-Nan, Communist leader, declared that if the government persisted in its drive, Communists would interpret it as a desire to extend the civil strife —"in which case it is inevitable that we should resist."

Fires in 1945 Claimed Lives Of 391 Persons

Toronto, May 28. (CP)—The number of deaths caused by fires across Canada jumped from 307 in 1944 to 391 in 1945, Dominion Fire Commissioner W. F. Clairmont said today in his annual report to the Dominion Fire Prevention Association's Convention. Property loss was almost $42,000,000, an increase of about $1,500,000 over 1944.

Defective electrical apparatus and heating equipment and smokers' carelessness were listed as major causes of fires, while fires of unknown origin caused property damage of $18,686,000.

A fire in the basement of an average modern home can fill the whole house with deadly fumes within a few minutes, T. A. Fleming, of New York, chairman of the National Board of Fire Underwriters told the Convention.

Mr. Fleming described how superheated air, at a temperature of 800 to 1100 degrees, can rise to the top of a house within 10 minutes of the fire's origin. This superheated air can ignite almost any inflammable material in the house.

To minimize fire hazards he advocated heavy tight-fitting doors on all stairs and passageways, leading from the basement, at least two stairways in the home to provide alternative exits, fire pails placed at strategic points and care in the use of cleaning fluids, heating and electrical equipment and the disposal of waste.

The report of executive committee chairman Willis George gave the fire prevention steps taken by the Association during the year. These included educational campaigns through posters, motion pictures, and Fire Prevention Week.

The Association has also discussed a possible amendment to the criminal code making it an offence to leave small children alone in a house.

MARMORA

Many Visitors Expected at Crowe Lake This Year

Marmora — Crowe Lake seems destined for a large influx of American and Ontario tourists this season and the road leading from No. 7 Highway into the oldest section of the lake, ending at Marble Point has been given attention by Marmora and Lake township council. Just before it reaches Marble Point lodge as it passes the rear of the oldest of the summer cottages, it has been widened and somewhat straightened through use of the council's bulldozer.

Largely Attended

The opening dance of the season was held at Marble Point lodge on Friday evening and was largely attended. The new proprietor and his wife Mr. and Mrs. Donald J. Gunn who come from St. Lambert, Montreal and succeed Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Dymond of Toronto, who have operated it for several years, were highly gratified with the patronage accorded this initial dance. Dances will be held each Friday evening throughout the summer. Mr. Gunn who has recently returned from service in the navy is making his first venture in the summer resort business He has reservations booked for the latter part of June and the greater part of July with some openings still in the month of August. He is re-establishing the complete dining room service and may build more cottages.

Newcomers Expected

The proprietor of Tipperary Hotel, Mr. James McGrath is also looking forward to a busy summer. Old guests have signified their intention of returning this season, and many newcomers are expected. A good number of his guests come from the States, chiefly Cleveland, Buffalo and parts of Pennsylvania. His intention is to all to the number of his cottages this year. The dining room service will be maintained as in past seasons under Mrs. McGrath's able supervision.

On the north shore of the lake at Glen Allen, Mr. Vern Caverley is planning to add to the attractions of the place which is largely patronized by citizens of Mr. Caverley's home city, Oshawa.

At Booster Park and Bonter's Camping Grounds approached by another road from No. 7 Highway the number of those who annually spend a week there and the number of weekenders is expected to show an increase over past seasons.

IF YOU ARE TRACTOR MINDED, COME TO EITHER OR BOTH OF THE FOLLOWING

FREE
DEMONSTRATIONS

And see for yourself just how easy the new Universal JEEP can handle a Plow, Disc, Cultivator, or any Farm Implement, as well as drive any power machine that is belt driven or driven by power takeoff shaft.

These mighty JEEPS are absolutely guaranteed to handle any farm work and to stand up to any abuse you could possibly put them through, and to do your work more economically than you have been accustomed to.

Besides using them as a tractor, they are being used as light trucks, passenger cars, portable power units, and in the Winter time you can get a snow plow attachment that will keep your Winter roads open with ease. Without a question they are the wonder machine of the twentieth century.

SO TO SEE THE MIGHTY JEEP IN ACTION, COME TO

WOOLER, ONT., WED., MAY 29th
THE DEMONSTRATION WILL BE ONE MILE NORTH OF THE TOWN.
TIME: 1 to 5 P.M.

And you will see a JEEP driving a saw mill, as well as doing all the different jobs on the land, such as plowing, discing, cultivating, and any other land chore that we have machinery to work with.

RAWDON TOWNSHIP, North of Stirling, Ont.
FRIDAY, MAY 31st — 1 to 5 p.m.
ON CONCESSION 4 — CLARENCE McGEE'S FARM.

After you have seen these demonstrations you will be convinced that you can farm more profitably and more easily with a new Uuniversal JEEP and that the JEEP will actually pay for itself in economy alone.

Accidents

At this season of the year when the lure of the water is irresistible to most people, there unfortunately occur tragedies which hang like a cloud over the communities in which they occur and over the relatives and friends. Such events are the more poignant because those who fall victims are enjoying an outing. Late spring and summer bring the heaviest toll and the beginning is already being felt across the country.

In Eastern Canada over the long weekend there were no fewer than ten drownings with twelve other fatalities of which eight were traffic deaths. The waters and the roadways and highways claimed the heaviest toll, a total of eighteen lives out of the twenty-two fatalities during the Victoria Day weekend. It is true that the weekend was a day longer because of the holiday but even with that the fatal list seems high. Tragedies always seem high: it is natural to be shocked by such sad occurrences.

There is a warning that can be given to those whether in boats or on the highways and roads as in all other conditions in which people are and that is — use every precautionary measure, take no undue risk, but rather use safeguards in every way. Even then there perhaps will be seemingly unavoidable accidents but the more the precaution the better it will be. There are of course instances where accidents happen which it would appear people cannot forestall.

Besides the weekend fatalities there were other accidents where people escaped danger by rescue or by some other means. Some were rescued from their plight in large bodies of water after floating a long time until their danger could be discovered and their rescue effected. For this good fortune in reaching safety there will ayways be joy and a sense of profound gratitude among those rescued, and among their friends and relatives as well as among the people of their communities, that their lives were spared.

Tragedies and near tragedies take place in every part of the country where there are bodies of water or streams and rivers. No district seems spared. The only advice that can be offered is to exercise every precaution, taking every possible care whenever one is in a place of danger. Even then it may be an incident may happen to those who are in the place of danger and all their resources will be called upon in order to avoid an accident or a tragedy.

The season of general bathing has not yet arrived but when it does come a little later the danger and risk to life will doubtless increase as everyone expects from the records and experiences of the past seasons. Those who bathe should take no chance of undue danger, they should if swimming or bathing do so in the presence of others who can go to their aid if need be or give an alarm in time to effect a rescue.

In rivers and streams there is the danger of unknown rocks or of "deep holes" which endanger life. When the season is warmer than at present there is the temptation to bathe in cool spots as in a river or stream even if the nature of the riverbed is not known. That is dangerous. Far safer it is to go to well known resorts where there are other bathers and where the nature of the sandy bottom is definitely known.

Even good swimmers may be tempted to take risks but for them it is the part of wisdom to keep within depth or to swim only within sight of others so that if anything such as a cramp might incapacitate them, help could reach them from shore or by boat.

Persons using boats too may well concern themselves with the weather lest a sudden wind arise to create rough or choppy water.

Those who might be expected to have so much experience as to be able to take care of themselves, do not usually take chances, but even good swimmers have been drowned because they took an undue risk.

The advice to those engaging in water sports and outings is to be prepared by having learned to swim and to be able to take care of themselves in the water in the event of an emergency or accident.

The motoring season will soon be climbing to its peak. Many more cars will be on the roads, some of these cars are not very new, and so it becomes the duty of every operator to know that his car is what it ought to be — safe for operation by reason of his manner of driving, his care of the car and the perfection of mechanical equipment and from the standpoint of the condition of the tires.

British "House Engine"

Among latest contributions of Britain's industry to more convenient and warmer homes is the "house engine" or the "all-service unit." This is very truly named, for it contains within itself the entire mechanical and service equipment for an up-to-date house of from five to seven rooms. It comprises fire, electric cooker, warm air ducts for warming the bedrooms, plumbing, tanks, electric wiring, fuses and switches and ventilating duct, and is built into the wall of the house.

It costs £150 complete with electric fittings — £105 if it is to be used in a house that has no electricity laid on, and where the fire in its open grate is to provide the heating and cooking power. Any kind of fuel can be used — coal, coke or anthracite. The running cost, the manufacturers claim, is less than that of any existing combination of appliances which it supplants, and it can be erected complete in ten man-hours. Frozen pipes in winter — a bogey of the ordinary scattered plumbing — are eliminated.

Two Generals in Accord

Two pleas for resolute action in the interests of national security and the peace were made in two different countries by men who know whereof they speak. The first was by General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower in New York; the second by Gen. H. D. G. Crerar in Toronto.

The theme of their appeals was closely similar. They called for preparedness to meet external aggression; for strength to stand firmly in the interests of peace; for public understanding of military needs so that full mobilization may be readily possible in a democratic manner to meet potential or actual challenges.

Gen. Eisenhower said: "A secure United States will stand as a shining example of the strength of democracy, and effectively hasten the peace of the world. But weakness on our part, compelling us to desert our commitments, to violate our pledges and even to invite aggression, can bog the world in a turmoil of fear and doubt."

And Gen. Crerar added the timely Canadian footnote: "It's high time as citizens we Canadians thought more deeply in terms of future generations and much less importantly in terms of the next election. Expediency represents neither a principle nor a policy in a man or a nation."

An Idea in Ushering

Many churches can take a pattern on ushering from the theatres. There is a feeling among some church people that worshippers should go where the ushers wish to seat them, and not where the worshippers would rather sit. In the theatres, the usher asks the patrons where they wish to sit and he endeavors to take them as near to that section as he can. In churches, too, where the pews are used, it is felt that no particular spot should be held by the worshipper, but that the latter should move over continuously as more people enter the pew. The theatre recognizes the right of the patron to sit in any seat he chooses.

Generous Britain

With its accustomed generosity to an ally, Great Britain has agreed to reduce from the equivalent of a hundred and fifty million dollars to fifty millions, the civil debts incurred during its exile in London by the former Polish government. The Polish military debt of $222,000,000 is to be left in abeyance and Britain is to ask nothing for upkeep of the Polish forces during the war years. The present Polish government in Warsaw has expressed its gratitude for such liberality.

HAZARDS

Along the course the hazards lie;
Beside the greens the traps are laid;
But out of them, by men who try,
The finest shots are often made.

In trouble, golfers sometimes start,
With language harsh to taint the air—
Not thinking that the stout of heart
Achieve the pride of triumph there.

The easy shots all men can play,
But trouble calls for pluck and skill.
Who wins the hole the hardest way
Gets out of golf its greatest thrill.

but the boss of the United Mine Workers (A.F.L.) did not look unhappy when he wound up 6½ hours of conferences with the Interior Secretary and other federal officials.

Speculation Rife

Meanwhile, speculation was rife over possible contract terms. Government labor and economic advisers say privately they think any increase of more than 18½ cents an hour would collide with the government's wage-price policy. Other contract provisions reported under consideration yesterday — although not necessary to be embodied in the final government-union agreement—included:

1. A health and welfare fund of from $25,000,000 to $30,000,000 to be raised by a five-cent contribution by the operators on each ton of coal and to be administered jointly by the union and the industry.

2. Sole union administration of funds now contributed by miners for such items as hospital care, medicine and surgery and burial.

40-Hour Week

3. Change-over to a 40-hour work week, with five eight-hour instead of nine-hour days. The amount to be paid for the eighth hour underground—presumably spent in travel and lunch—might be increased to take the miner's daily wage above the $10 he now receives. The basic rate is $1 an hour at present, with $1.50 for the eighth hour, considered overtime, and another $1.50 for the ninth hour—the portal-to-portal allowance and 15-minute lunch period.

4. The Federal Bureau of Mines would set up minimum safety standards to become uniform through industry practice.

5. Mr. Lewis's complaints about sanitation in company towns to be met by management pledges to conform with standards of the United States Public Health Service.

6. The present $75 vacation allowance would be upped to $100, in lieu of time off.

7. Solution of the foremen's problem by following the National Labor Relations Board decision on the type of supervisory workers eligible for union membership.

Milk Price Boost Of Two Cents Qt. Likely Next Week

By GEORGE KITCHEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Ottawa, May 28 (CP)—Although no one authority has said so definitely, the Canadian milk drinker can look, with some degree of certainty, to a boost of two cents a quart in the price of his food staple come next week.

The expected increase will result in the action of the Federal Government in removing, effective May 31, its wartime subsidy of two-cents-a-quart on milk and returning authority for the fixing of milk prices to where it was before the war—with Canada's nine provincial milk boards.

The subsidy, instituted in 1942 to stave off an increase in the cost-of-living, was paid to the farmer to help him meet his increasing costs of milk production. Instituted as a purely wartime and emergency measure, it was paid on fluid milk produced for consumption as such, apart from butter, cheese and other milk products.

With the removal of the $20,000,000—year subsidy, the government, through the Prices Board, will re-institute its 1942 price ceiling on milk, which was two cents above milk prices prevailing throughout the Dominion at present.

With the elimination of the subsidy, the question arises as to who is going to make up that two-cent difference in the cost of a quart of milk—the farmer? the wholesaler? the retailer? the consumer?

Consumer Likely to Pay

Federal Government sources say they don't see how the farmer, whose production costs remain the same with or without the subsidy, can take the loss. Nor do they think the wholesaler or the retailer will want to reduce their profit to make up the difference.

That leaves the Canadian milk drinker, who includes everyone from the grownup who takes a spot of milk in his tea to the youngster who drinks it by the bottleful. He is expected to pay the extra two cents through an increase to what next week will be the legal price ceiling—two cents above present rates.

When it announced the removal of the consumer subsidy, the government also announced it was increasing from 35 to 55 cents a 100 pounds the subsidy to producers of fluid milk but that this subsidy would be discontinued altogether after Sept. 30.

There are some who predict this will mean a further increase in retail milk prices next fall to make up the difference for the farmer, who now receives this 55-cent payment.

Changes in two other subsidies, which do not however, affect the consumer's pocketbook directly, also were announced recently. They were an increase of 10 cents from 20 to 30 cents for milk going into cheese production and an increase of eight cents from 15 to 23 cents for milk going to concentrated milk plants. Both payments are on the basis of 100-pound sales.

Cheese and processed milk producers in eastern and western Ontario have expressed dissatisfaction with the increases and are seeking to have the Federal Government make the payment still higher.

Life Insurance In Canada At $9,754,000,000

London, Ont., May 28—(CP)—Life insurance in force in Canada has risen to $9,754,000,000 and the average amount held by each household to about $3,400, John D. Buchanan, retiring president of the Canadian Life Insurance Officers Association, told the 53rd annual meeting here today.

This compared with $6,776,000,000 and $2,586 per household in 1939 and with $773 per household in 1914, when Canada's population was only 7,879, 000. Of the total insurance now in force, 75.6 per cent is ordinary insurance, 13.5 per cent industrial and 10.9 group insurance.

"In the war of 1914-18," said Mr. Buchanan, in a speech prepared for delivery, "$235,000,000 was subscribed to Victory Loans. During the recent conflict the total bonds purchased by the companies exceeded $1,500,000,000."

"The total war claims paid under Canadian life insurance policies amounted to more than $30,000,000. However, in spite of these losses, the companies have emerged from the war in a strong financial position."

Speaking of the future, Mr. Buchanan declared:

"Continued low interest rates mean lower dividends from excess interest for older insurance policies as well as the setting up of higher reserves, and for new policies, higher premium rates. Already many companies have reduced the rate of interest used in supplement options by ½ of one per cent. This has meant a reduction in the income to the beneficiary on annuity settlements of from 10 to 15 per cent."

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Signed letters, not more than one page or 100 words long, pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease, diagnosis or treatment, will be answered by Dr. Brady if a stamped self addressed envelope is enclosed. Letters should be brief and written in ink. Owing to the large number of letters received only a few can be answered here. No reply can be made to queries not conforming to instructions. Address Dr. William Brady, care of this newspaper.

Readers addressing letters to Dr. Brady will please include the word "Canada" on their return envelopes, as these letters have to be forwarded to Dr. Brady. And it is requested that readers use standard size envelopes that will hold a small booklet.

TO FAST OR DIET YOU NEED NOT STARVE

In the "Rules for Reducing" booklet, available on written request—if you send twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope, there is outlined a diet particularly for hypopituitary obesity under the title "How to Reduce on Four Square Meals a Day." I'm not kidding. It was developed by Dr. Josephine H. Kenyon of New York, an internist who has had outstanding success in treating the condition — I pinched the diet or the essential part of it from her published writings.

But, ladies, please remember we are ladies, at least most of us are. In the first place, even if you are not a lady—probably at least one-third of all hypopituitary obesity occurs in young men—this four-square-meals-a-day regimen is for this one type of obesity only and will not do at all, at all, for simple nutritional (overeating) obesity.

All obesity is divided into two kinds of classes, namely exogenous and endogenous. We like the sound of these words, but don't take them seriously—exogenous means produced from without — that's the common garden variety produced by eating too much, or hyperalimentation if you prefer. Endogenous means produced from within—such as hypothyroid, hypopituitary and other types due to ductless gland deficiencies. Some authors recognize two other types of endogenous obesity, namely, "nervous" obesity, for which they believe certain individuals have a peculiar proclivity, inclination, embryological or primordial bent, called anlage; and the type characterized by a waterlogged state of all the tissues and organs, due to excessive consumption of salt.

There is a difference between fasting dieting and starving which many fail to recognize. To fast means simply to abstain from food—for instance most of us fast from bedtime to breakfast time—and then we bread-fast. To diet may mean anything one does about food, and not necessarily excluding anything, indeed it may mean adding this and that to one's ordinary diet; most dieting is for other purposes than reduction. To starve is to perish from hunger or to suffer from extreme deprivation of food.

We'll leave hunger out of this discussion—for special discussion another day.

The most serious fault with the various trick "slenderizing" diets that have been exploited under the Hollywood influence is that they reduce weight, if at all, only at the cost of health and vitality—and that brings us to the subject of the next talk in this series—Overweight and Malnutrition.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Powerful Germ Killer

Cousin insists on using formaldehyde as an inhalant for all colds—he says it is better than any doctor's medicine and that it kills the germs instantly when inhailed. He is not in good health, but he explains that his cold got settled before he started using formaldehyde. He makes his wife and children use it too.

(E. H. S.)

Answer—The man's wife and children, at least, should be given some protection against his irrational behavior. Neither formaldehyde nor any other germ-killer can have any deterrent effect on disease germs that have invaded the body tissues, and of course it can do no good to kill all the germs there may be present on the surface of the nose or throat linings.

Adhesive Tape

Here is a suggestion—I have found that using adhesive tape gives a great deal of relief for small calluses, pin corns, skin irritated by tight shoes or ill fitting shoes, tight or holey socks, etc. (E. F. S.)

Answer—Thank you. It is an excellent suggestion. I do hope, though that readers will not mess up coins with left-over bits of adhesive and whatnot. Somehow some readers think I get a thrill sending the mess back for laundering or dry cleaning on their own time.

A. A. Inc.

We of this group feel that you are doing a great deal of good by your frequent references to Alcoholics Ananymous. Have one member whose reformation in respect to liquor is directly attributed to your recommendations. There are always articles of yours on our bulletin board .... (— Group, A. A. Inc.)

Answer—I hope that the member will tell me, confidentially, about his or her rehabilitations. Such a report is encouraging sometimes, when the pressure is heavy.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Who were the troubadours?

The troubadours were a school of lyric poets who flourished in southern France, eastern Spain and northern Italy from the 11th to the 13th century.

They evolved a kind of lyric poetry devoted almost entirely to chivalry and gallantry and to romantic and amatory subjects. As a rule it was very complicated in meter and rhyme. The forms included sonnets, pastrols and chansons of high metrical and poetic skill.

The early troubadours lived in Provence and wrote and sang in "langue d'oc." Some authorities believe that the art of the troubadours was introduced into Europe from the Orient by way of North Asia and Spain.

Frequently the troubadours attached themselves to the courts of kings and nobles whom they praised or censured in their songs. Again they selected some lady distinguished for position and beauty and directed their lyrics of chivalry and gallantry to her.

Occasionally a troubadour wrote a lyric dealing with the conditions of society or the degeneracy of the clergy. Many of the troubadours were involved in the Albigension crusade and had to migrate to Spain and Italy, where they had a decided influence on poetry during the 13th century.

The names of some 400 troubadours living betkeen 1090 and 1292 have been preserved. Even kings and princes occasionally practiced the art of the troubadours.

"Troubadour" is derived from Provencal "troubar," meaning "to find" or "to invent," and it is supposed that these minstrels were so called because their songs were improvised to meet the demands of the occasion.

Sometimes the troubadours became wandering minstrels and were accompanied by "jongleurs," whose function was to provide instrumental accompanyment to the congs that the troubadours composed and sung. Six or seven different instruments were used by the troubadours and their jongleurs.

A similar school of poets who flourished in northern France from the 11th to the 14th century were known as "Trouvere." They wrote in "langue d'oil" and their work was chiefly epic in character.

POLYMER DEBATE

sions to a good humored climax by saying he expected to see Mr. Smith and Mr. Stewart step out into the lobby to settle their differences. At another point he had expected Mr. Stewart to cross the floor, throw his arms around Mr. Howe's neck and sing "Hail, Hail the Gang's all Here."

The discussion occurred before first reading was given to a bill authorizing incorporation of the Polymer Corporation, the Eldorado Mining and Refining Company, Wartime Housing Limited, Canadian Arsenals Limited and Perk Steamships. A resolution based on the bill was adopted.

Also given first reading was a bill providing for continuance of the committee of the Privy Council on industrial research and for the appointment of two vice-presidents to the National Research Council. The bill also provides for the creation of Crown Corporations to carry out some of the powers of the council.

Subsidy For Barley

Before the House turned to the Legislation, Trade Minister MacKinnon announced $6,106,932 was being distributed in barley equalization payments to all producers who delivered barley either through country elevators or by farm-to-farm transactions in the crop year 1944-45. Later some $192,824 would be distributed in equalization payments on Ontario winter flour and other wheat products.

Acting Prime Minister Ilsley appealed for immediate resumption of work by striking lumber workers in British Columbia who ordinarily turn out the wood used in making crates, boxes and baskets used for fruit and other foods. Unless the containers were produced there would be a serious shortage of fruit.

When asked by Mr. Howe to prove wastage at the Polymer plant, Mr. Murphy quoted figures which he said, showed that materials bought by the Corporation for $775,815 had been sold for $35,602. One item valued at $285,000 had been sold through War Assets Corporation for $19,000. Another valued at $218,000 had been sold for $3,500.

Mr. Murphy said that because of these and other matters the people were beginning to wonder whether the government could properly operate the company.

Resold Second Hand

Mr. Howe said he assumed the figures quoted by Mr. Murphy were connected with the disposal of the construction plant erected while the Polymer plant was being built. Anyone in the construction business knew that items bought for erection of a building brought very little when resold second hand.

However, Mr. Murphy had made his charges and he would be asked to substantiate them before a committee.

Mr. Murphy said War Assets records showed that $325 condenser was reported to it by Polymer Corporation. It was sold to a "disciple of Shylock" for $1.34. He said he could name the man who had bartered with the "disciple of Shylock."

"You are saying he is a Jew—come out and say it," interjected Mr. Howe. "If you want to make this dirty we will have it good and dirty."

Acting chairman G. H. Golding interrupted to say it was not in order to discuss matters being dealt with by the war expenditures committee.

On resuming, Mr. Murphy said an item which had cost Polymer $286,000 was sold for $19,000. Another item valued at $218,000 had been sold for $3,500.

On the basis of these and other operations he said people were wondering whether it was wise to allow the government to continue crown companies.

Mr. Howe, taking the floor after Mr. Murphy finished his speech, said the Polymer plant was regarded as one of the finest in Canada. It rated high among the rubber producing plants on this continent.

Told to Sit Down

"I said all that," interjected Mr. Murphy.

"You made your speech and I will thank you very much to sit down and keep quiet," retorted Mr. Howe.

Opposition members interjected that Mr. Murphy had said the plant was one of the finest.

Mr. Howe said Mr. Murphy had started out "that way but he soon got down to his own level in the junk pile."

"He took a good look at you when he said it," quipped J. H. Ferguson (PC — Simcoe North).

Mr. Howe said he would be pleased to discuss Mr. Ferguson's war work anytime the member wished to discuss it.

"I have spent $12,000,000,000 of the government's money and this is the first time in this House that I have ever been accused of dishonesty," said Mr. Howe.

Mr. Murphy interrupted that he wanted to make it clear he was not charging personal dishonesty.

Mr. Howe said the member was accusing the minister or his staff of dishonesty.

He took it that the figures quoted by Mr. Murphy were connected with the disposal plant erected when the Polymer buildings were first being constructed. Mr. Howe said he had been in the construction business all his life and he knew that things bought new for a construction job brought very little when resold.

Dealing with a request by Mr. Murphy that the Polymer Corporation pay municipal taxes to Sarnia, Mr. Howe said that under the British North America Act Crown companies were exempt from taxation. The plant did pay the municipality for services to the extent of possibly $35,000 annually.

Support Expansion Bill

Mr. Hansell objected to the continuation of crown companies because they had a habit of becoming monopolies.

Members more readily supported the bill providing for the expansion of the National Research Council. John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader, said he hoped no one would oppose the encouragement of research. M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader and John Blackmore (SC-Lethbridge) welcomed the legislation.

Mr. Howe, explaining the proposed amendments to the National Research Council Act, said the Act had not been altered since 1924 although the council staff had increased from 300 in 1939 to a wartime peak of about 2,000. From one laboratory in 1939 the council work spread to some 16 laboratories and to universities across the Dominion.

One of the two vice-presidents to be appointed to the council would be a business man who could handle administrative matters. The other vice-president would handle scientific matters. Under the existing set-up, the president of the council had to develop 60 per cent of his time to administrative matters.

Crown corporations would be established under the new legislation to carry out some of the powers of the council. For instance, one corporation would own and commercialize patents owned by the council.

Won't Limit Number

Consideration was being given to placing the operations of the Eldorado Mining Company, the source of uranium, under the council.

It was possible also that the Polymer Corporation, maker of synthetic rubber, would be operated as a corporation.

Mr. Howe said he had no intention of putting in the bill a clause which would limit the number of corporations that the council could establish. The accounts of the corporations would be subject to the scrutiny of the Auditor-General and balance sheets on operations would be published in the public accounts.

He might suggest that the balance sheets and operations of all crown companies be reviewed by a committee of parliament.

Some of the new laboratories being planned by the council would conduct experiments on buildings, road research and radio and radar.

The war had proved the desirability of not concentrating all operations of the council in one locality. A branch was being established in the prairies and it would be charged particularly with finding a solution for problems affecting the prairies and not common to other parts of Canada.

A LIGHT FOR WARSAW'S HERO

'Y' Boys Hold Scavenger Hunt

Fat dew worms, hairs out of red headed girls' heads, flowers, stalks of asparagus, and many other things were on the lists that the boys of the Prep and Junior classes of the Y.M.C.A. were handed Saturday morning. An hour later, the boys returned to the building, each team with its collection of treasures, to see which team would win the prize. No team managed to get everything on the list, some lacking one, some another item. However, in the Prep class Jack Lafferty's team managed to squeeze out first place over Allan Houston's team, because Houstons gang lost the red hair on the way back to the "Y. The winners were Jack Lafferty, Norman Boothby, Peter Annis, and Jack Young, the second place group being Allan Houston, Douglas Parsons, Ralph Nelson, Norman Mitchell and Jerry O'Sullivan. In the Junior group, Doug Soule and Jim McLaughlin had their teams tied, both being short the 1943 automobile licence plate, but equal in getting the rest, their teams were, Doug Soule, Bob Taylor, Don Ashline and Joel Mazer, Jim McLaughlin, Bob Hutchinson, Tom Lally and Jim O'Sullivan.

ONLY IMAGINATION

Quebec, May 27 — (CP)—Police said Monday that a Quebec contractor who told police Saturday he had been robbed of $1,000 in cash by an alleged armed bandit confessed later that 'everything was in my imagination and there was nothing true in it.' Name of the trucking contractor was not disclosed.

Police added that the case will be studied to see whether or not a charge will be brought against the man.

Nanking, May 28 — (AP)—The Ministry of Foreign Affairs said it had received official notification that Soviet Russia had completed its evacuation of Manchuria.

STRIKE LEADERS

Eighteen Arrested

Eight had been taken into custody at Montreal, seven at Kingston and three at Fort William. The 30 arrested at Thorold were moved from the picket lines to the county jail at Welland last night by Welland's one-man police force, husky Chief Dennis Harold of Thorold township.

Chief Harold had no trouble as he shepherded the strikers into buses and saw them lodged in the county jail, where they were remanded in custody for one week. The seamen were singing and shouting as they made the journey behind Chief Harold's police cruiser but they quietened down as soon as the chief told them in the jail — "You've just got to behave, boys."

Those arrested were only a fraction of the men on strike. The union claimed that 61 ships had been tied up from Montreal to the lakehead. The owners asserted that only 17 out of 115 ships had been anchored by the strike. The owners were recruiting any available men to replace strikers.

"We're through with the union," said George R. Donovan of Toronto, secretary of the Dominion Marine Association and spokesman for the ship operators. Donovan charged the union had broken its contract which still had to run to July 31. Donovan added that the present contract with the union now becomes null and void.

Operators Blamed

Sullivan immediately countered that it was the operators who broke the contract not the union. Sullivan wired Federal Labor Minister Mitchell that the operators violated the contract by refusing to allow a union delegate to board a vessel in Montreal; by dismissing union crewmen; by making a seperate application to the National War Labor Board on questions of wages and hours before the contract expired, and by reclassifying ratings before getting the labor board's permission.

The federal minister had wired Sullivan that the strike action was "most regrettable" because the ship owners "were prepared to recognize the eight-hour day principle"

Sullivan's reply to this was the charge that operators had broken the contract and of the eight-hour-day—which Donovan also claimed had been already instituted—the union head declared: "What does that mean?" Sullivan charged the schedule drawn up by the owners and submitted to the War Labor Board—without consulting the Union—still meant that union seamen would be on call 12 hours a day if not 24.

The dispute in fact was so bitter that it was uncertain whether the ship owners and the union leaders would sit at the same table in Ottawa. Before they left Toronto Donovan and Senator P. G. Campbell, counsel for the owners, declined to say whether they would meet the union men. Mr. Sullivan was accompanied by Gerry McManus of the union.

Apart from these evidences of antagonism the actual shipping situation was thoroughly confused. Many of the vessels still plying the inland seas were carrying crews that were expected to join the strike as soon as they reached their various ports. There were upwards of a score of vessels tied up at the lakehead; not a ship cleared downbound from Port Arthur and Fort William Monday.

An estimated 13 ships were reported tied up at various points along the Welland Canal; half a dozen more at Cornwall. Other vessels were scattered at ports all along the Great Lakes.

And in the Maritimes three Federal Department of Transport lighters were tied up by the strike — one at Charlottetown and two at Saint John. The laker Cheyenne, bound from Dalhousie, N. B., to Boston with paper was at Halifax when 17 crewmen walked off the ship, and she was moved out to anchorage in the stream.

Union Supported.

Strike headquarters at Toronto claimed the Prince Edward Island ferries were also stopped by the strike.

Unions at many points leapt to the support of the Seamen's Union with telegrams to federal and provincial governments protesting arrest of seamen and expressing support of the C.S.U. demand for an eight-hour day.

Charles Millard, Canadian director of the United Steelworkers of America, although his union is a C.I.O. affiliate whereas the Seamen's Union is linked with the American Federation of Labor, said at Toronto that use of the "antiquated shipping act (on which the arrests were based) proves the carelessness of government conciliation procedure and reveals the lengths to which some Canadian employers appear prepared to go in fighting the shorter hours and higher wages so necessary now."

E. B. Jolliffe, the Ontario C.C.F. party leader, called the arrests "a disgrace to the administration of justice in this province."

Telegrams of protest also went from the International Chemical Workers Union (A.F.L.) headquarters at Toronto, the Toronto District Labor Council (C.C.L.) and the Ontario Federation of Labor (A.F.L.) An official of the C.I.O. United Automobile Workers Union at Sarnia said that 400 union members there, threatened with plant lay-offs tonight, would join the picket lines with the seamen.

End members of both C.I.O. and A.F.L. unions in the Niagara Peninsula went to Thorold to replace arrested seamen strikers on the picket lines.

North Toronto Group Chorus Much Enjoyed

An excellent concert, under the auspices of the Salvation Army, was presented by the North Toronto Youth Group Chorus, Monday evening in the auditorium of the Belleville Collegiate Institute. With assisting artists adding greatly to the program the group of girls opened with a group of three Songs of Battle: "Crusaders' Hymn", "Song of the Soldiers" and "Onward, Christian Soldiers". Following a selection "Brilliance in Brass" by the instrumental quartet, two "Songs of Faith" were presented with soloist, Ruth Tutte. Master Douglas Warham, boy soprano, took part in the program as did Mr. Alec Gordon, pianist.

Changing the pace of the program, the chorus offered two lively selections: "Blow the Man Down", and "Pop! Goes the Weasel". A very difficult number called "Tripling Trumpeting", was presented by the cornet trio with ensemble accompaniment, followed by two beautiful eventide songs by the chorus, "Steal Away" and "Evening Song". Arlian Cameron offered an excellent recitation just before the finale, "O God, Our Help in Ages Past".

Prior to the presentation of the concert Monday evening, the members of the chorus were entertained at a shore lunch at Rossmore, a sightseeing trip of the district and a welcoming supper at the Salvation Army Citadel.

Minister's Life From Sunday To Sunday Outlined

Ministering to the congregation of a large city church entails considerably more than delivering a sermon twice on Sunday, members of the local Kinsmen Club were told at their regular dinner meeting Monday evening when Rev. Arthur Smith of St. Thomas' Anglican Church was the guest speaker.

Speaking in a humoristic vein, Mr. Smith told of the high points of a minister's life from Sunday to Sunday, including the demands made by the congregation on his time each day throughout the week. In addition to giving a sermon on Sunday, a minister throughout the week is called upon to be a good listener, according to the speaker.

"In many cases it is not what a minister says that counts, but what a minister hears," stated Mr. Smith. "A minister often is called upon to be a good listener."

Visiting Takes Time

Visiting the homes of members of the congregation takes up considerable of the minister's time, while he is also obligated to put in an appearance at almost all meetings sponsored by the many branches of the church. Also when the charge is small he may be called upon to act as choir leader.

"But as it is with a chaplain in the army, one of the greatest joys of the ministry is discovering the good which is in people," concluded Mr. Smith.

Discuss Plans

Members discussed briefly plans for their forthcoming summer carnival which will be held thru June 26-29, while a member from the Trenton Kinsmen Club was in attendance and spoke briefly in an effort to get the Kinsmen district softball league in operation again this year. Kiwanian Dorland Houston asked assistance from the Kinsmen club in the forthcoming National Clothing Drive. President Newton Wilbur presided over the meeting.

WEDDINGS

McPHERSON—ROWE

The marriage of Kathryn Olive, daughter of Mr .and Mrs. Ford B. Rowe, Demorestville, to Mr. Douglas McPherson, son of Mrs. Fred Westover, and the late J. A. McPherson, of Sidney, was performed by Rev. D. C. Amos at Bridge Street United Church, on Saturday, May 25th., at 3 p.m.

The bride chose a street length dress of aquamarine crepe with pale pink accessories and a corsage of pale pink roses. Miss Gwen Kitchen attended the bride wearing a dress of pale blue crepe with navy blue accessories and a corsage of red roses. Mr. Douglas Ketcheson of Wallbridge, was groomsman.

A reception was held following the ceremony at the Old Tavern Bar-B-Q for the bridal party. The happy couple left later on a motor trip to New York State.

Health, a Wealth of Beauty

By HELEN FOLLETT

LET US be grateful that we did not live in the early Victorian period when health was considered gross and unladylike. Women had the vapors, whatever that was. Now health is fashionable. To talk about one's physical miseries is to be considered a bore.

Aches and pains are not interesting subjects. Bear your neuritis and your thyroid trouble or whatever else may afflict you, but keep still about it.

Men like healthy, lively, peppy girls who don't wilt before the merry evening is at an end. They like girls who can swim, who don't sulk when a tire has to be changed. Mental and physical health are necessary, not only for well-being, but for good appearance.

To look well, it is important that the circulatory system should march. The blood is the great medium of exchange between all parts of the body, from the hair on top of your head to your little pink toes. It is the caterer that delivers the food to the cells, it is the taker-away of debris.

To every cell, it is the commissary agent. It provides materials for repairs. It stores away forces that offer resistance when one is beset with illness. It is the body's central heating plant.

To keep it on the go, the lungs should be air-washed, muscles should have work to do.

Make up your mind right now that, during this coming summer, you will get all the fresh air you can, that you will lap up the sunlight, find means of getting health-giving exercises that will benefit your complexion, keep your figure lithe and youthful.

Stay indoors too much and you will look like celery that has been blanched in a cellar. Play with Mister Al Fresco and you will have poppy blooms in your cheeks, starshine in your eyes.

A Meal in the Open

Many families who had acquired the habit of going on picnics and who had to devise other ways of amusement because of gas rationing, will be making plans to go on more picnics now.

Picnics appeal to many persons because they offer an excuse to get out of the city enjoy the open spaces, see the green country and relax or take part in simple fun. It is also an opportunity for the family to go out all together.

Homemakers remark every year that picnics are grand for everybody but them since they are the ones who have not only to plan the picnic but also prepare them. This, in many instances, is true, but why not plan picnics in which every member of the family will help prepare the food? Every one agrees a picnic is not a picnic without food. In fact, it is the most important part of the picnic for the youngsters.

Canadians are asked to conserve bread, meat, eggs and cheese so that more of these foods can be sent to the hungry peoples of Europe. Ways to save bread when preparing picnics will be appreciated by the housewife who, in the past could always fall back on sandwiches when other ideas escaped her. Instead of making quantities of sandwiches which, by the way, put a strain on the butter ration, two slices of bread may be allowed per person. Various spreads, peanut butter, relish, jam, etc., carried in jars, will save bread and also work for the housewife, since each member of the party can make his or her own open-faced sandwich.

Baked beans, chowder or soups, vegetable casserole dishes, spaghetti or macaroni, kept hot, or substantial salads, are very nice on a picnic and will satisfy even the most ravenous appetites. For good measure, fresh vegetables, like radishes, green onions, celery, cucumbers or tomatoes might well be tucked into every picnic basket.

Whole wheat or bran muffins may be used instead of bread. These cereals contain parts of the grain removed in milling white flours. A more general use of them in Canada will help to save wheat for overseas. Rolled oats or fine oatmeal used to partially replace flour in biscuits also serves this purpose.

TOMATO MEAT SPREAD

2 1-2 cups ground cooked meat
2 tablespoons grated onions
1-2 cup tomato juice
Few grains cayenne
1 teaspoon chili powder
Salt and pepper to taste.

Combine ingredients and cook, stirring constantly until mixture is thoroughly blended and reaches the boiling point. Cool and store in covered container. Yields about 2 1-2 cups.

This filling keeps 2 or 3 weeks in the refrigerator.

PICNIC SALAD

1 teaspoon prepared mustard
1-4 cup salad dressing
1 cup sliced or diced ripe banana
2 cups shredded cabbage
1-3 cup chopped sweet or dill pickles
1-4 teaspoon salt

Combine prepared mustard with salad dressing. Slice or dice banana into first mixture and blend only enough to coat fruit. Mix together the cabbage, sweet or dill pickle and salt. Add the first mixture and toss together lightly. Six servings.

OATMEAL TEA BISCUITS

1 cup all-purpose flour (sifted)
Or 1 cup plus 2 tablespoons pastry flour (sifted)
4 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
3-4 cup fine oatmeal
3 tablespoons fat
2-3 cup milk.

Sift together the floor, baking powder and salt. Add the oatmeal and cut in the fat. Add milk and let stand 2 minutes. Toss lightly on a floured board and pat out to 1-2-inch thickness. Cut with biscuit cutter and bake on greased baking sheet in a very hot oven, 450 degree Fahrenheit, for 15 minutes. Yield: 12 medium biscuits.

Women's Activities

AIKEN'S W.M.S.

3rd Sidney.—The May meeting of the Aiken's Women's Missionary Society was held on Thursday at the home of Mrs. Selburn Westover with 18 members in attendance.

"The Christian Home" was the theme for the opening worship service which was in charge of the President, Mrs. E. K. Hubble, and was closed with prayer by Mrs. Wm. Bush.

During the business period an offering was taken to be used by the Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Fred Moon, in buying stamps and cards for the sick and shut-ins.

Mrs. Wm. Bush was appointed Missionary Monthly secretary, to succeed Mrs. Earl Bush, who has moved from the neighborhood. An encouraging report was given by Mrs. Cyril McMullen, the treasurer for the Society.

A splendid paper on "The Christian Home and its Privileges and Responsibilities", was given by Mrs. Bernard Hollinger, assisted by several members of the Society.

It was agreed that Grace Noll Crowell was right in saying: "Every mother and father should make religion the foundation of the home. Boys and girls need God desperately. Without Him they will be like ships without sails or rudders." Many helpful thoughts were brought out in this paper, which was followed by a prayer of gratitude for Godly parents and for guidance and faith to be an answer to their prayers.

A short talk on the work of Miss Dorothy Pearson, M.A., of Woman's College Hospital, Madras, India, was given by the President.

An interesting item on the program was "Fifteen excuses for not being active in work for Missions" which were answered by verses of Scripture.

A piano solo, "What a Friend We Have in Jesus", was enjoyed by all present.

After the closing hymn the meeting closed with prayer by Rev. Mr. Hillis.

The Experts Say

By HELEN BANNERMAN

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, May 28. (CP)—There is a general desire among Canadians to supply food to those in need. Many homemakers who want to make their contribution have found it difficult to buy food and plan meals under war-time conditions and can see no way to adapt their menus to the present situation which requires reduced consumption of which complements and accents cheese.

The home economists of the Agriculture Department consumer section say that if every homemaker would appoint herself a committee of one to make the most of food in her own home it would be of considerable assistance to the authorities in conserving the required food.

One good way to make these foods available for shipment is to use up supplies on hand before buying more. Sealers and cans of fruit and vegetables from last year— whether packed at home or in a canning factory—should be off the pantry or cellar shelves before the new crop is really for canning.

With generous helpings of fresh vegetables coming along from the plot in the back yard and the few root vegetables still stored, less bread will be needed. Vegetable plates for dinner and one-dish meals and green salads for luncheon or supper are excellent meat and bread savers.

Here is a recipe for one of these good vegetable meals:

Potato creole requires four tablespoons of fat, four cups of sliced raw potatoes, one sliced onion, two cups of canned tomatoes or tomato juice, 1 1-2 teaspoons of salt, 1-4 teaspoon of pepper.

Melt the fat in a frying pan. Add the potatoes and onion and cook for ten minutes. Add the tomatoes, salt and pepper. Cover and simmer for 30 minutes, or until the potatoes are tender and the tomato juice has become thickened by the starchy potatoes. This makes six servings.

Not so long ago salads were considered food for dainty ladies but now a salad meal is relished by real he-men—but it takes a hefty salad to be the mainstay of a meal.

The basis is a green leafy vegetable like lettuce, endive, cress or spinach and the best salads are the simplest.

The Agriculture Department home economists suggest these rules for good salad making: Have everything well-chilled and the greens crisp. Have a good contrast of color and texture of ingredients. Be sure that the first appearance is attractive and lastly use an appetizing dressing wheat products, meat, eggs, and the flavor of the salad.

With a pint of cooked, basic salad dressing on hand, one can make many variations to suit different salad combinations.

A tablespoon of chili sauce, catsup, chopped pickle, grated sharp cheese, or a pinch of curry powder, a dash of horse-radish, a few chopped green onion tops or chives added to 1-2 cup of thinned dressing will be sufficient for a green salad for six.

Dark Print, City Edition

By ALICE ALDEN

THE BLACK ground print bright with beautiful color, seen so infrequently during the war, is back again, to gladden the heart of city girls. For a frock of the type depicted here is ideal for smart spring and summer wear in town, being cool and pretty as well as looking fresh. The famous New York designer, Charles Armour, is responsible for this dress, black crepe with a bright red and green watermelon design. The bodice, banded around the neck and buttoned down the front, tucks into a dirndl skirt with side slit pockets and a self fabric waistband. Maybe it's because there's such a demand for them, that the sleeves of this dress are longer than the ubiquitous cap-sleeves.

3rd Hillier

3rd Hillier—Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Dainard of Belleville spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Will Dainard and family.

Mrs. Will Benway spent the weekend with her sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Jones of Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. John Palmer of Consecon spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Bedell.

The Niles Corners school attended the musical festival held in the Town Hall, Hillier, on Tuesday night. Cold Creek, Pleasant Bay and Hillier schools also took part in the program which was much enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Panting attended a birthday dinner on Sunday at the home of Mr. Fred Clark.

Mrs. W. Neilson and Mrs. G. Smith were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Benway.

Several from this vicinity attended the sale of household furniture at Wellington of the late Mrs. Will Hubbs.

Tomato setting seems to be the order of the day.

Mrs. Wilson Lusk and Lawrence of Belleville spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Ross Benway.

Break Smuggling Racket in Food

London, May 27 — (Reuters) — The News Chronicle reported today that Scotland Yard had broken one of the largest air smuggling rackets operating in Germany, in which many tons of food have been smuggled out of Britain for sale on the German black market.

"After three months of detection work at Gatow airport, British landing ground in Berlin, the Criminal Investigation Department men have recovered 350,000 pounds of coffee smuggled into the German capital from Britain, Belgium and Holland by R.A.F. personnel," the newspaper said.

"A number of R.A.F. personnel including officers have been reported to be involved in black market transactions and some of them are said to have been arrested."

Boy Student Saves Girl From Water

Winnipeg, May 27 —(CP)—A 14-year-old grade school student, William Foreman, yesterday was the hero in a near tragedy when he rescued 22-year-old Betty Penhall from the waters of the Red river.

Mrs. Penhall dove into the water and came up downstream. Young Foreman noticed her threshing about and went in after her.

Describing the rescue, the boy said, "when I reached her she put a half-nelson on me and then we both went down. I clouted her twice and grabbed her by the hair."

Court-Martial Trial to Open On Murder Count

London, Ont., May 28 — (CP) — Kenneth Paul Joseph Howitt, 21, of Guelph, a private soldier of the Highland Light Infantry of Canada went on trial for his life before an army general court martial at Wolseley Barracks here Monday.

Pte. Howitt is charged with the murder by shooting of Private R. D. Kippen of Renfrew at Bichen, Germany on March 28, 1945.

Howitt, who was a patient in the mental infirmary of Westminster Hospital from July last year until March this year, was found mentally competent to stand his trial at a hearing conducted by the court martial before the murder charge was read.

Presiding is Brigadier H. D. Graham, C.B.E., D.S.O. and Bar E. D. Deputy Adjutant (A) at National Defence Headquarters, Ottawa.

Other members of the court are Lt. Col. A. T. Field, M. C., Officer Commanding No. 1 Vehicle Company C.M.D. Wagersville; Lt. Col. J. H. MacDonald, Officer Commanding A-29 I.T.C. Ipperwash; Major W. J. Balkwill E. D.; Officer Commanding Queens Park Barracks, London; Major F. Keenavic, G.S.O. (2) Central Command, London.

Waiting members include Major J. A. Johnston, O.C. No. 1 District Company R.C.A.S.C. London and Major J. D. H. Campbell, district supply and transport officer, London.

The general court-martial is believed the first in Canadian history to try a man in Canada on a charge of murder in the field in time of war.

Marchers to Ask Govt. to Intervene In Lumber Strike

Vancouver, May 28 — (CP) — The third phase of negotiations attempting to reach a settlement in the British Columbia strike of 35,000 woodworkers moves into the second day today with Chief Justice Sloan continuing hearing of the union's case in the 14-day old dispute.

The strike began May 15 when the International Woodworkers of America (CIO-CCL) failed to obtain demands for a 25-cent an hour wage increase, 40-hour week and union security clauses.

Two previous conferences had failed to reach a solution.

The union is expected to complete the statement of its case today, following which negotiations will move to Victoria where Chief Justice Sloan will hear the operators' side of the dispute.

He will then make recommendations to both on how he believes the strike can be settled. The recommendations will not be binding on either party.

The lobby will be made up of thousands of striking woodworkers in addition to representatives and supporters of the province's trade unions, farm, veterans' and Communist organizations at the invitation of the I.W.A.

Govt. Takes No Stand

The I.W.A.'s new move is based on assertion that the provincial government has taken no stand in the dispute except to call the strike illegal and that the government should "compel the operators to meet the just demands of the union."

The march on the provincial capital will get underway June 3 with Vancouver Islands to prepare automobile transportation; fishing vessels to be secured for mainland woodworkers, and Victoria workers to find housing and food facilities for an indefinite stay.

At the same time strike leaders will be completing what are still tentative proposals for government action.

R. V. Stuart, operator representative, tonight wired a reply to Finance Minister Ilsley's request in Parliament that the lumber industry resume the production of boxes to save British Columbia's fruit crop.

The reply said the employers concerned will willingly agree to immediate resumption of operations at these plants on the basis that workers will be paid at rates finally incorporated in the contract now under negotiation.

There was no immediate comment from union officials.

JUST NAPPING

Gananoque, May 27 —(CP)— The coroner and police constable rushed to the scene to investigate the supposed death of a man seen lying on the ground with his rifle beside him. However, Dr. K. Gray, coroner, and police officer found it was Edward McKenzie of Gananoque who became tired after hunting ground hogs and decided to have a nap.

MORE ARRESTS TO FOLLOW

Montreal, May 28 (CP)—Inspector Noel Courtois of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police here said last night more arrests could be expected momentarily in connection with uncovering of a vast counterfeit ring dealing in fake "cheques" authorizing the purchase of butter and sugar.

Four persons have already been charged with conspiracy in the case, first news of which was released by the R.C.M.P. Saturday.

Duke's Bailiff Gets Damages

London, May 28 — (Reuters) — The Duke of Bedford, Pacifist spokesman in the House of Lords, was ordered to pay his former bailiff £500 ($2,225) damages by the Court of the King's Bench. The Duke had referred to the bailiff, Henry Hobbs, in a letter to a Member of Parliament as "a bad master, a bad servant and a bad farmer."

Mrs. E. Elmy, 14 Dunbar St., Belleville, writes: "Every woman likes to get her wash finished as early as possible on washday and I find Super Suds cuts my washing time in half and makes the clothes so clean and white, I never have to boil or scrub them. Super Suds is certainly a swell washday soap."

Thank you, Mrs. Elmy, for your grand letter. You see, Ladies, Super Suds is Concentrated. Super Suds actually gives you far more washing-power, which means sudsier, longer-lasting suds, for easier and quicker washdays. And Super Suds costs no more than ordinary washday soap.

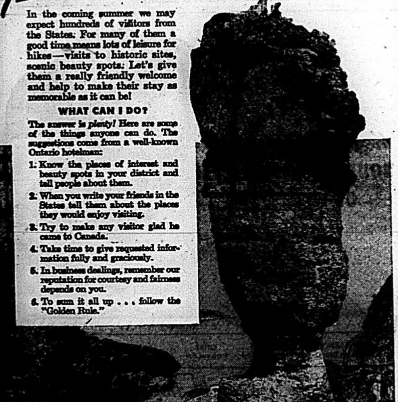
Another pleasant memory for them!



In the coming summer we may expect hundreds of visitors from the States. For many of them a good time means lots of leisure for hikes—visits to historic sites, scenic beauty spots. Let's give them a really friendly welcome and help to make their stay as memorable as it can be!

WHAT CAN I DO?

The answer is plenty! Here are some of the things anyone can do. The suggestions come from a well-known Ontario hotelman:

1. Know the places of interest and beauty spots in your district and tell people about them.
2. When you write your friends in the States tell them about the places they would enjoy visiting.
3. Try to make any visitor glad he came to Canada.
4. Take time to give requested information fully and graciously.
5. In business dealings, remember our reputation for courtesy and fairness depends on you.
6. To sum it all up . . . follow the "Golden Rule."

IT'S EVERYBODY'S BUSINESS: ... it's good business!

Worth his weight in gold! The Province of Ontario profits to almost the same extent from tourist business as it does from the gold mining industry. It is up to each of us to see that it goes on growing.

This diagram shows how Ontario's tourist income benefits everyone. Every dollar is shared this way... 1. Hotels; 2. Stores; 3. Restaurants; 4. Taxes, etc.; 5. Amusements; 6. Garages.

It works both ways! They treat us royally when we visit them . . . we can't do less than return the compliment. Remember that it costs money to take a holiday . . . so let's see they get a good return for every penny they spend.

"Let's make them want to come back!"

SIXARDEE BEATS MOUNTAIN VIEW BY 5-2 COUNT

Latremouille Allows Only Two Hits, Not One After the Second Frame

Behind the masterful two-hit pitching of Latremouille, the Sixardee softball squad marked their debut into the Belleville Softball Association schedule last night by defeating the Mountain View team, 5-2 on the north station diamond.

The Sixardee hurler allowed the service opposition but one hit in each of the first and second innings and blanked them for the next seven chukkers. Mountain View scored their runs in the 1st and third innings.

The game was more or less a pitchers duel with McCartney on the mound for the Mountain Viewers turning in a creditable five-hit chore. He held the north station sluggers to one hit and one run for three innings but the Sixardee bats broke out in the fourth to smash out three consecutive hits for as many runs—and that proved to be the ball game.

They got another run in the 7th to put the pastime in the bag.

MEETS WHIPPER

What will be the hardest-fought battle ever seen in the Arena wrestling ring is expected on Friday night when Whipper Billy Watson meets Wladyslaw "Blockbuster" Talun. Watson is probably the classiest piece of wrestling equipment in the ring today when you view him strictly from the scientific standpoint. Billy knows his wrestling inside and out and is always in magnificent condition. Opposed to him will be a man who has proved himself unbeatable by any but the same Watson. And Billy has yet to obtain a deciding fall over the Polish Giant either here or in Toronto where the pair battled last winter.

In attempt to really make a definite victor out of this match both men have agreed to a no-time-limit ruling which ensures one or the other being erect at the finish.

It's a great match to bring into this city and the fans are going for it in gobs of interest. Watson thrilled a couple of thousand people here three weeks ago when he managed to hoist the 316 lb. Talun high overhead and slam the giant with a thud that shook the ringside. It was something to see. We only hope he can repeat. In the semi-final on Friday's card Pat Flanagan the popular young ex-air force pilot officer meets Larrupin' Lee Henning the Iowa Cornhusker. In the third match Bunny Dunlop gets a session with big and handsome Mike Sharpe.

R.C.A.F. WINS GAME IN LAST HALF OF NINTH

Lee, Catching for Winners, Lashes Out Single to Score Two and Win Over Napanee 11-10

If the RCAF dished out any DFC's for winning baseball games, a guy named Lee, husky regular catcher of the Trenton Flyers, benched because of a finger injury, would have won the award at the Alemite Grounds last night and his mates would have thrown in a couple of bars for good measure.

For the husky receiver, with his team going into the last half of the final innings, one run down, trotted out in a pinch-hitting role and lashed a scorching single to centre scoring two mates to win the game 11-10 against a hard-fighting nine from Napanee, in a scheduled City League fixture.

Lee's hot drive under the half-lights of the field terminated a game that saw practically everything happen. There was plenty of good solid socking, 19 hits all told rolling to all parts of the diamond some costly errors, good pitching in the pinches and above all a Frank Merriwell finish to a game that could have easily have swung to the Napanee lads.

Al. Wade, tall right hander was Coach Moose Matthews' choice for the pitching duties for the flyers, and the slim hurler did a right good job up until the sixth when he blew a three-run lead and allowed the opposition to tie the score 9 all. Pat Sheehan was rushed into the breach, but wildness on his part nearly turned the tide the other way. Wade struck out nine and walked 4 while Sheehan whiffed three and allowed six passes.

Coathup on Mound

Coathup on the mound for Napanee was nicked for four hits and three runs in the first innings and was replaced by Vick, a left-hander in the 4th after the Flyers' war clubs had battered him for five hits and three runs. Vick allowed three hits and as many runs, the last two coming in on Lee's game-winning single.

Napanee scored three in the third, three more in the fifth and tied the score in the 6th, after Flyers had sent the ninth runner across the plate in the same innings.

Moose Matthews' potent war club was responsible for two extra-base clouts, one a towering home-run in the 1st to deep left centre and a double in the 4th. White got a double and two singles. Curry led the Napanee hit parade with three hits while Murphy and Switzer poled out triples.

JUNIOR CLUBS TO MEET

Toronto, May 28 — (CP) — A meeting of the Ontario Hockey Association executive with representatives of junior "A" clubs will be held in Toronto at 2 p.m. next Sunday afternoon, it was announced today by secretary W. A. Hewitt, to discuss plans for the junior loop next season. Applications for teams in the circuit will be considered and the general schedule lined up.

BLACKHEADS

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

That Alphonse and Gaston feeling that prevailed during the Kiwanis Juniors - Stewart-Warner Alemite game last Friday in the City and District Baseball League opener must be contagious. Last night when the Trenton Flyers and Napanee clashed in their league debut, the same feeling was evident.

• • •

"Moose" Matthews' well-garbed athletes from the south station appeared to have the game well in hand after the first innings when they sent three runners across the plate. Then Napanee pounced suddenly on tall Al Wade's knife-hand offerings and evened the count.

• • •

The "Moose" lowered his horns in the fifth, and threatened to cut off the boys 48's next week if they didn't do anything better than knock mosquitoes out of the way with their war clubs, and several of the laddies with dates in mind started to cooperate. They pounded out sufficient hits to score five markers in the fifth — and the pastime appeared once more to be in the well-known bag.

• • •

But they hadn't reckoned with the fighting spirit of the lads from Walt Gerow's home town, formerly known in sports circles as Gibbardville. The sweatered lads from the banks of the Napanee river hopped upon Mr. Wade's slants and sent three runners across the pan to bring the score to 8-6. And inspired by this success they pounded out sufficient hits and took advantage of walks in the next innings to belt over 3 more runs and tie up the pastime after the Mooselets had garnered a single marker.

• • •

And that's not all. Murphy, former Redman hockey star and late of the Kingston Locos Intermediate champions, sauntered down to first base in the first half of the last innings, stole second and galloped home when Garbas, flyer shortstop threw wild to a base. For the first time in the pastime the Napanee squad was ahead, and it appeared to be at a nice time in the pastime to pull out in front.

• • •

In what seemed to be an emulation of Mr. Sheehan's free passes to first, Vick, Napanee lefthander issued two free tickets to White and the "Moose", first two batters up for the Flyers in the last half of the inning. Enter Mr. Lee, a pinch-hitter. Mr. Lee, it appears, is the regular catcher for the squad, had poked out one of his digits in an effort to spear a fast pitch, and the result, benched with the injury.

• • •

He had been pacing up and down in front of the Flyers bench during the entire game, chafing to get into action. He got the chance, and today, he is the white-haired gentleman in Trenton Flyer baseball circles. For Mr. Lee, who has a penchant for high straight balls, found one to his liking and promptly drove it in centre field to win the game, the hugs of a few W.D.'s, the gratitude of his mates and the promise of a bucket of suds as soon as the boys hit the mess. Even the revered padre was seen cavorting around the Flyers' bench in what appeared to be a cross between a highland fling and a Zulu war dance.

• • •

But don't sell this Napanee team short. They seemed to be a hard hitting squad, which knows quite a few of the baseball answers, and if last night's performance can be judged a criterion, some of the other teams in the league are due for some baseball headaches before playoff time rolls around. They were beaten in the dying moments of a game that could have as easily been chalked up a win for them.

• • •

FLASHES CLICK

Frankie (The Voice) Sedore's Army and Navy Flashes lowered the colors of the Point Anne squad last night down at Ox Point. It was one of those free-scoring affairs with practically all the runs of both squads coming in bunches. Don Boyle, hurling ace of last year's Columbian Squires, was on the mound for the Ox Pointers and threw a bad scare in the Sedorians for the first seven frames holding them to four hits and two runs.

• • •

Then the Flashes big guns exploded in the eighth. They hopped on the Boyle slants with gusto and pounded out seven solid smashes to score eight runs. Bradshaw relieved Boyle in the 9th but he didn't fare much better. The ex young-old-sweats got to him for six hits that were good for a quartet of markers.

• • •

Point Anne, however made a strong bid for victory in their half of the ninth. Trailing five runs, they smashed out four hits that were good for as many runs but not quite good enough to pull a win out of the fire. They were leading 6-3 at the end of the seventh, and the fans had visions of the Point's second win in the league.

• • •

And that was a smart sample of softball that Sixardee and Mountain View dished up to the fans on the former's diamond last eventide. McCartney for Mountain View and Latremouille, of the Sixers clashed in a nifty hurling duel with the latter margining on top by virtue of a neat two-hitter. McCartney deserved a better fate as all he handed out was five lone hits. But his mates failed to solve the slants of the Sixer hurler, especially in the last seven frames and that was the margin of victory.

• • •

According to our Trenton operator, the Trenton Softball Association will pry the official lid off the season activities tomorrow night, when the opening games of the official schedule will be played. The diamond, tis said, has been placed in excellent condition, thanks to the efforts of the town fathers, and the league officials have given the stands and bleachers a brand new paint job. Six teams are entered in the loop.

• • •

At a recent meeting of the team managers, umpires and executives of the Association, it was announced that R. L. Taylor, has donated a handsome trophy for junior loop competition. Naturally the boys were tickled to death and were loud in the expressions of appreciation of Mr. Taylor's fine gesture. Four junior squads will battle for the trophy this season.

• • •

CHANGES IN SCHEDULES

The following changes have been made in the schedules of the Belleville Softball Association and the City and District Baseball League. All team managers are requested to note them and govern themselves accordingly.

• • •

In the Belleville Softball Association schedule, the game between Point Anne and Sacos, scheduled for July 12, has been deleted. Instead, insert Flashes at Sacos. The game set for July 15 should read "Point Anne vs. Mountain View" instead of "Point Anne versus Sixardee." These changes give each team in the league fifteen games each.

• • •

In the Baseball Schedule the game set for July 20 between Latta and Kiwanis Juniors should read "RCAF at Kiwanis". Again on June 12, the game scheduled between Latta and Kiwanis, should read "RCAF at Kiwanis."

Halifax, May 28 — (CP) — It was a first-class mystery for nearly a year but the Nova Scotia Amateur Baseball Association finally tracked down "the man who stole home."

The denouement came at the Association's recent annual meeting at Truro and it turned out the missing plate — a fine, prewar rubber model — wasn't stolen but just reclaimed.

Veteran manager Lalla Muirhead of Westville forced the issue when, as an illustration of some remarks detrimental to Cape Breton ball diamonds, he touched a sore spot — the fact that when his team arrived at New Waterford for a junior series last summer he had to drive to a nearby town to borrow a home plate before the game could start.

From Cape Breton delegate Roy Cummings came the solution, as determined by his Dominion Seniors Club. The plate, which had seen service in the old pro Colliery League, was owned by a private citizen. After an earlier senior game and not interested in juniors, he picked it up and carted it home.

Angler's Anguish: Yarmouth county fishermen are trying something new in self-denial — a voluntary pledge to limit Tusket River salmon catches to one-a-day as a conservation measure. About 35 anglers signed up off the bat and there were high hopes of making the "gentlemen's agreement" 100 per cent operative.

Bluenose Blossoming

The new class of racing yachts — named after the swashbuckling old Bluenose schooner—is arousing plenty of interest in Nova Scotia sailing circles. Six of the new Nova Scotia-designed yachts are nearly ready, and word from Halifax says an even dozen will be knifing the whitecaps in Halifax harbor by June.

All the talk now is about the new yacht's performance, but the experts seem to agree she will be a credit to her province, the old Bluenose and her designer, Billy Roue.

Trilogy:

Although Montreal's football squad has been named Alouettes, a citizen comes up with a pertinent suggestion that for reasons of history and tradition they might have been called the Seigneus instead. Writing to Dink (Montreal Gazette) Carroll, the Citizen pointed out that Montreal already has its baseball Royals and its hockey Canadiens or "Habitants." Football Seigneus, he suggested, would round out the trio of components in the old Quebec Feudal system — the King or Roi, the Feudal Barons or Seigneus and the peasants or habitants.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

LESSON NO. 997
By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Elva Tyme has the cutest way of making a blind lead. She simply shuts her eyes and lets fly a card. She hopes it will be a heart or a diamond. The red cards are more cheerful looking, she thinks.

A blind lead means a lead that you choose without any indicator from partner. And rule tells which card to lead from that suit.

When picking out a blind lead, follow this order of preference: Top of a sequence and such; fourth best from a long suit of four or more cards; highest of a short suit of three cards or less.

When it it not a blind lead, it must be a directed lead. A lead is directed when partner has given some indication of a suit he likes. As when he had bid a suit.

In a directed lead, you have been advised which suit. What card do you lead from that suit? Same as rule tells you to lead from a blind suit; sequence top or fourth best or highest of a short.

Suppose your partner has bid hearts and opponents end in a bid of spades: : :You will lead a heart. Select the heart to lead from these:

♥K 9 6 3

Your lead should be your fourth best way; the trey. The fact that your partner has bid that suit does not change the card to lead from it. Stick to one rule and save your side grief.

Against suit contract, you should not lead away from an ace or a king. But that restriction applies to a blind lead. You know why. Your opponents may have the best cards in that suit.

But when your partner has bid a suit, he has given you reason to believe he controls that suit. Consequently, leading away from the king is not dangerous for your side.

Ancient Mariner may remind you of days when players always led highest of partner's suit. But that dropped off with bustles.

JUST IN!

Column Hollywood

Hollywood, May 28 — (AP) — Ladies, do you feel low, run-down, depressed? Then dye your hair, advised Ann Dvorak.

Ann used to be a brunette. Then she turned blond. Now, for "Bel Ami" she is a poile de carotte, or carrot top to you.

"I don't suggest that girls should indiscriminately dye their hair," Miss Dvorak says. "But if a woman is tired with the way she looks and needs perking up, she should change the color of her hair."

Ann claims her periodic hair changes are not of her own choosing.

"That's where too many girls make their mistake. When they decide to dye, they want to become blonds. Actually, few girls can be blond effectively, and I'm not one of them. Only girls with light hair should try it."

The last trainmen to go on strike in Hollywood were engineers working on the "Perils of Pauline" set. A Southern Pacific train was being used and the railmen remained on the job until 6 p.m. . . . Red Skelton will hunt deer in Montana this July, but with a camera. He can't bear to kill 'em.

New York, May 28 — (AP) — Greg Rice's home town, Missoula, Mont., has turned up another runner who may be as good as Greg . . . Speaking of miles, Sweden's Lennart Strand may find the competition rough when he arrives, what with Eddie Walsh doing 4:12.3 in last Saturday's IC4-A meet, Tommy Quinn running 4:17.4 in an easy victory Sunday and Les MacMitchell, Roland Sink, Jimmy Rafferty and Early Mitchell rounding into shape . . . Mitchell trained dogs for combat service in the Marines . . . now he's back training his own dogs for service on a cinder path.

CHICAGO CUBS NOT COUSINS TO CARDS ANY MORE

Only Won Six Out of 22 Last Year but This Season Have Split in Six Games

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

Thanks to southpaw Johnny Schmitz, Chicago Cubs aren't "cousins" to St. Louis Cardinals any more.

Failure of the Bruins to beat the Red Birds more than six times in 22 meetings last season almost cost Manager Charley Grimm a pennant. The Cubs may not repeat as National League champions but it's a cinch they'll better their 1945 record against St. Louis with Schmitz doing the bulk of the work.

Chicago has split even in six starts against the Cardinals with Schmitz earning two of the decisions, his latest being a 4-1 victory in yesterday's only National League contest. St. Louis reached the lean southpaw for only five hits. In 18 innings the pennant favorites have nicked Grimm's new ace for only two runs and 12 hits.

While winning four and losing two, the ex-sailor has tossed one shutout, two one-run games against the Cards and coasted to a 19-3 romp over New York Giants. His only setbacks were a relief loss, 4-3, to Pittsburgh, and 13-inning defeat in Brooklyn 2-1.

In the American League, Ted Lyons' regime as Chicago White Sox manager continued to produce successes as the Sox reeled off their third straight triumph, trimming St. Louis 9-2.

With Luke Appling's four blows leading the attack, the Sox buried the Brownies under a 20-hit barrage while Ed Lopat coasted home to his third verdict. Lopat had a shut-out up to the eighth.

Rain forced postponement until tonight of the Yankee Stadium night baseball debut. Washington will be the attraction with a crowd of almost 70,000 expected.

Cheese Regulations Changed

Ottawa, May 28 (CP) — The Agriculture Department announced yesterday all cheddar cheese made in Quebec and Ontario on and after June 1 must be large, white and unwaxed cheese to be sold only for export to Britain. The announcement said provision would be made for cheese factories to cut cheese for their milk suppliers' use throughout the summer.

Three British Golfers Survive First Round

By The Canadian Press

Three former British amateur champions and two visiting American competitors survived the first round of match play for the amateur title at Southport.

Alex Kyle, 1939 winner and defending champion throughout the war years; Dr. William Tweddell, 1927 titlist; Maj. Cyril Tolley, winner in 1920 and 1929, and Frank Stranahan of Toledo, all defeated their opponents. Charles Evans Jr., of Chicago won by default.

New York Yankees had their eye on a legal strikeout as they filed a motion in State Supreme Court to "strike out" the Mexican League's defence that organized baseball is a monopoly. The Mexicans made the claim in defence against the Yanks' claim to a permanent injunction restraining them from tampering with Yankee players.

Hamilton Tigers defeated Brampton Excelsiors 15-3 last night in a Senior Ontario Lacrosse Association game at Hamilton, avenging their previous defeat at the hands of the Brampton bunch. Jack Gair led the homesters with four goals. Morrice had three, Gillespie two, and singles were scored by Southwick, Smith, McKenzie, Gaudaur, Crowe and Teather.

National Hockey League governors, convening in New York June 17 will have high on their agenda the problem of what to do with the dormant New York American franchise. The governors may also consider appointment of an assistant to President Mervin (Red) Dutton, with Lt.-Col. Clarence Campbell of Edmonton, former N.H.L. referee, strongly favored for the post.

Back from the Canadian Legion convention at Quebec, H. L. (Punch) Broadbent says the natives greeted him with smiles, or at least indifference— and he thought it was wonderful. When he visited the city as a member of the old Ottawa Senators, he and his teammates were considered fair game for a hail of snowballs and the occasional chunk of coal.

Yesterday's Stars

(By The Associated Press)

JOHNNY SCHMITZ, CUBS — Held St. Louis to five hits in earning fourth decision by 4-1 score.

LUKE APPLING, WHITE SOX —Led 20-hit barrage with double and three singles, driving in two runs in 9-2 romp over Browns.

MAY WITHDRAW FROM CIRCUIT

El Paso, Tex., May 28 — (AP) — O. E. Maxey, president of the El Paso Club of the Mexican National League, said yesterday he would pay off his players and withdraw from the circuit if it was no longer represented in organized baseball.

At Durham, N.C., today, W. G. Bramham, head of baseball's minor leagues, said he had received no communication on the subject from league officials, President Fernando Maldanado and Secretary Hector Raynal. He added that if the league had been withdrawn, he would not endanger his franchise operating outside organized baseball, but would attempt to join another circuit.

The league started as a six-club circuit with El Paso, Torreon, Chihuahua City, Saltillo, Mexico City and Juarez, but Torreon and Mexico City recently were dropped because they were in the same cities as the Pasquels' Mexican League teams and couldn't compete.

Rochester Wings May Make First Division This Year

(By The Associated Press)

Rochester Red Wings, a second-division ball club for the last four years, are giving every evidence of finishing in the International League's top half this season.

Currently in sixth place, manager Burleigh Grimes' hustling crew had taken six of its last nine contests and is only 7 1-2 games behind the pace-setting Montreal Royals and five games back of the runner-up Syracuse Chiefs.

Ineffective hurling was chiefly responsible for Rochester dropping 14 of its first 22 contests. Glenn Gardner and Lloyd (Whitey) Moore were the biggest pitching disappointments. However, Bud Byerly, Roy Bruner and Max Surkont have come along now and Eddie Joost and Chuck Diering, the teams heavy hitters, continue to club enemy pitching.

The Wings also have Danny Murtaugh, Al Kubski, Warren Robinson, Don White and Johnny Bucha batting .300 or over. Art Rebel, outfielder sent from the parent St. Louis Cardinals of the National League, has begun to find the range and the first baseman Chuck Baron has started to snap out of a bad slump.

Rochester is second only to Montreal in scoring runs and base hits.

Three games were scheduled yesterday but all were rained out.

A. & N. FLASHES DOWN POINTERS BY 14-13 SCORE

Held to five hits and two runs for seven innings by the fine hurling of Don Boyle, former ace chucker of last year's Columbian Squires junior Ontario champions, the Army and Navy Flashes' bats exploded suddenly in the 8th and blasted the offerings of the youthful chucker to all corners of the lot for seven hits and eight runs Monday night in Point Anne. The Ox Pointers who were leading 6-2 to this point staged a gallant comeback in the ninth, scoring four runs, one short of a tie, and went down to defeat 14-13 in a free scoring Belleville Softball Association game.

Boyle held the Sedore-coached crew of youthful veterans scoreless for four innings, then the veteran bats nicked him for four hits and one run in each of the fourth, and fifth. They blasted his curves in the eighth and took Bradshaw, who relieved Boyle in the 9th in their stride. They pounced on the relief hurler's slants for five more hits and four runs — and that was enough for victory.

Relieved by Hook

Beaupit started on the mound for the Veterans but was relieved by Hook late in the game. The Ox Pointers got no less than 19 hits from the pair of veteran pitchers, but they fell short in the last chukker and couldn't squeeze in enough to pull the game out of the fire.

The Pointers scored two in the third, came back with four more in the fifth to make the count 6-2. Down four runs after the disastrous eighth, they made a valiant effort to regain the lost ground and tallied three more in the 8th. But the Sedorians came back with four more in the ninth, and the best the Pointers could do was do likewise, one run short of a tie and two runs short of a win.

Genereaux had a perfect day at bat for the Pointers, getting four hits and two walks for six. Horwood, Whitehead, Bennett, M. Green and son Murney Jr. kicked in with two hits each.

Big Vern Goyer paced the Flashes' attack with four solid smashes for bases. Lundberg hit safely three times with Ronsky getting a towering triple. Two homers, three triples and three doubles marked the game.

KING K.O'S BOLOS IN THIRD ROUND

Toronto, May 28 (CP) — Two dynamite-laden punches in the third round gave Arthur King of Toronto a knockout victory over Detroit's Pete Bolos in the main event of a boxing card here last night.

The Toronto Negro landed a left hook to the jaw followed by a hard right to the body that crumpled the Detroiter. His handlers worked over him for five minutes before he could be assisted from the ring. Both men weighed 126 pounds.

3 Young Girls Sent to Jail

Halifax, May 28 (CP)— Three young girls who told the court they hitch-hiked from Ontario to see "friends in the service," were convicted yesterday on vagrancy counts and sentenced to three months in prison.

"I don't think I am guilty," said Shirley Tooly, 18, Cornwall, when asked to plead. Joan Bouley, 18, Cornwall and Gloria Sullivan, 18, Toronto, entered not guilty pleas.

The girls, arrested in a local restaurant a week ago, said they had spent the last of their money that night and had been promised jobs in a cafe the next morning.

CHAPTER 10

At 9 o'clock the following morning, Gordon was chatting with the desk sergeant at police headquarters who referred him to the police clerk, who knew "a powerful lot 'bout Denver."

The genial clerk lifted out a photograph with printed forms and a newspaper clipping attached to it. "This the feller you want?" he inquired.

"Yes, that's the slicker," said Gordon. "Mind if I read your facts on his career?"

"Not at all. Sit over there. Call me when you're finished."

The clerk ambled into the adjoining office. Gordon studied the clipping and the attached printed forms. It was a strange set of criminal facts that made a story which left a long, tortuous trail like that of a fox.

The blunt, non-committal entries on the forms, when pieced together, recounted that Alvin Oliver had been a technician at an X-Ray laboratory. He had stolen company funds and served six years for that theft.

The newspaper account explained that Oliver through sly schemes, eventually had become a trusty in the warden's office, and one day had seen a thousand-dollar check lying on the warden's desk. The strip of signed legal tender had been a donation to the prisoners' Christmas Fund, and had been sent in the name of Clifford Morley's first wife, Laurie, and signed by Morley. Oliver, the story said, must have made a copy of Morley's signature.

Having served his term Oliver was released. In need of ready cash, he had forged a check, with Clifford Morley's name on it — the amount was small—to see whether he could pass it and discover whether his hand had lost its cunning and become rheumatic in the damp air of the prison cell. The bank detected the forgery. The police snared Alvin Oliver. The bank-teller identified him the same day as the man who cashed the check. But Morley had been asked to pass final verdict on the signature before the courts did their work on the case.

After much questioning into Oliver's history, past and present, his age and employment reference, Morley had a long talk with Oliver after which Morley had said the signature on the check was not a forgery, but his own. This killed the bank's case against Oliver.

The story added that everybody concerned had apologized to Oliver, and Morley had promised to make up for the humiliation and embarrassment to the former embezzler.

To do that, Morley had invited Oliver to be his house guest at his palatial valley home on Callada Road five miles from the town center of Denver. The story ended.

Gordon tapped nervously on the green table-top, he was troubled by what he had read.

"Mr. Garn," he called. The elderly clerk entered from the adjoining office.

"Do you remember any more of the details of this case?"

"Reckon so. Sure. That fellow Clifford Morley lived in Ben Iverson's Mansion. Big spooky house. His wife Laurie married Morley after Ben died and left the Double Jackpot Gold Mine to her. She was quite a rip-snorter. They say she was the washwoman at the mine when Ben Iverson married here. After that, she went in for culture a lot; opera and painted pictures and big feathered hats. Guess this Morley must have had some fancy dude ways she liked. It was quite a weddin'—and this Oliver lived with Laurie and Morley until she died."

"How long was that?"

"'Bout three years."

"How did she die?"

"Can't say. Doctors said she got a bad attack of influenza and went galley West.—Laurie seemed as tough as a pinto horse; big fat woman; yet up in that valley house she just got sicker and sicker and thinner and thinner until she cashed in."

* * *

Pearman's is a super-speedy realty firm in Denver. The doors are plate glass and imitation bronze; there is indirect lighting, with air humidified and scented.

When Gordon told the unbending receptionist he'd like to make an inquiry about a piece of property—the Morley house—the receptionist bowed him eagerly into the presence of a bald bird who beamed at the mention of the word "Morley".

"Splendid piece of property, on Callada Road. Nothing better. Unusually low price too. Morley's been anxious to sell it. Excellent view," gabbled the land-holder. "You could have it for a bagatelle. Property is going up by leaps and bounds, that piece of land should double in price in a year! Yes sir."

"Yes, yes, so I've heard," said Gordon. "It's nothing definite that I have in mind. I'd better drive out there and look it over."

"I'll drive you out there myself. When would you like to see it, tomorrow?"

"No, today. But you needn't bother. If you'll give me the key, I'll go through it this morning. You see, it's not for myself, but for someone back East."

"Oh, I see, just a prospect! Well, I'll give you the key."

Pearman pressed a buzzer and in a flash was confronted by an expectant secretary.

"Give Mr. Lewis the keys to the Morley house."

The secretary scrambled like a chicken after corn; returned clucking joyfully and pressed a ring of keys into Gordon's hands.

"Look it over carefully and let me know how it strikes you," said Pearman. "There's a gardener there sometimes. He's a little eccentric. Don't go looking for him."

Gordon drove Creswell's car around the square where the County Building stood. There he turned north, drove three miles, turned left on the double lane concrete highway—Callada Road—then two miles north.

White-capped mountains hunched their shoulders under the weight of sky. Far to the west the golden sun glinted from the peaks.

He saw the Morley house beyond a barrier of pine, fir, and bayberry that fronted the road. He stopped his car at the driveway entrance, walked between two scowling stone lions.

It was a three-towered, rectangular mansion. Gordon saw the whole story of Denver latent in it. An old structure, with oak frame, grayish stucco and strained limestone, granite and a huge leaning chimney in the midst of three towers. It suggested Denver millionaires, belles of the gay nineties, booted prospectors, champagne and strawberry blondes.

It squatted far back, hidden from the concrete road by short pine trees and vines. The exterior was decorated with old figures, half Flemish and English, scrambled with occasional Victorian fretwork and gingerbread designs. Some designs were stamped in the gray stucco and cement, showing all its scabrous dull lime, pebbles, and crushed glass.

Shining in the late sunlight were several windows with oval-shaped panes. The second storey extended far over the base of the house, throwing a shadowy and apprehensive gloom over a long, narrow terrace.

"A house where it would be mighty strange to hear a laugh," thought Gordon. "What a casket to live in!"

Gordon turned to the doorway, tinged with green moss that had long since gathered over the woodwork. The green verdigris of the lock stuck to his fingers.

The hinges groaned as Gordon pushed back the heavy door. The house exhaled its musty breath, like a disturbed sleeper.

The front rooms were haunted with furniture covered with grayish white sheets. The stairs creaked sadly as he climbed them, walking near the mahogany spindle bannister, he did not grip its dusty surface.

He opened the first door at the stop of the landing. It might have been Clifford Morley's suite. There was a large room, with a smaller one adjoining it. Both were provided with furniture, elegant and costly.

The floor was covered with a mouldering carpet once skilfully and richly wrought. In one corner stood a pink marble sculptured head on a pedestal. Some pictures—that looked old-fashioned, showed a mellow tinge. Near the fireplace an intricately carved cabinet, a piece of antique furniture which seemed to be English or French. Gordon looked through it; it was empty.

Two objects appeared out of place in the handsomely furnished room. One was a large map or surveyor's plan of a tract of land, which looked as though it had been drawn a good many years ago, and was dingy and bore finger marks. The other was a portrait of a stern old man, in Victorian garb; collar and mustache, painted roughly, but with a bold effect, the face had a remarkable strong expression of character.

He turned and walked down a long narrow hall, passing a reading room or a sitting-room, and opened another panelled door.

He entered a suite of rooms larger than Morley's. Laurie's picture hung on the wall near a hazy mirror. Otherwise, the room was empty. The floor was still covered with flowered Victorian carpets. Gordon's heavy footsteps roused fine dust that irritated his nose and throat.

"That's damn odd," thought Gordon. "Here's her suite, at the other end of the house. Why? The whole house is furnished; only her suite is empty."

He crossed the room to the picture, lifted it away from the wall—lighter color showed beneath. It had hung there a long time. He recrossed the carpeted floor, and opened closets; he saw nothing but walls, flaked with peeling paint, and musty.

He was deep in thought when suddenly he fell back with the shock of a blow on his head and dropped to the floor. His astonished eyes glanced up. He looked through what had become a haze, and saw a lean, vicious face peering down into his.

A high-heeled boot of the stranger forced Gordon back and kept him flat on the floor. The attacker pointed a gun at him.

"Don't be crazy, man, I'm not a thief!" groaned Gordon, gesturing feebly with his hand. "I'm from the real estate office. I came to look over the house."

"How I know?" he gritted. "You maybe tell lies!"

The sharp eyes studied the keys for a moment, and the name—p-la-t-e- attached to them.

Reluctantly, the gun disappeared into a hip pocket of dirty blue dungarees. "Meester, I am sorry. I 'pologize. You should not make like robber, and come in here alone; you should ask me first. I theenk you come to take something. Come, downstairs, please, I fix your head. It bleed!"

The half breed led Gordon into the kitchen of the house, and fetched water, clean cloth and iodine.

Gordon winced as the iodine bit into the bump on the back of his head. The half-breed grinned showing yellow teeth.

"The medicine, she bite like rattlesnake, no?"

"Like two rattlesnake, yes."

The man's name was Chino.

"You like house? You buy house?" he asked.

"Perhaps. I don't know yet. You know Mr. Morley?"

"Yes, senor."

"Mrs. Morley?"

"Yes," Chino laughed unpleasantly.

"You shouldn't laugh, Chino, at a dead woman!"

"I tell you to stop laughing!"

Little Benny's Note Book

Us fellows were walking along just walking along, and we stopped to watch the new bilding going up across from the bank, Sid Hunt saying, Oh boy, free.

Meening a big pile of broke up wood with a sign saying Free Wood, and Sam Cross said, Jimminy, all they expect you to do is just take it away and you can have it.

Sounding like a swell chance to go in the lumber bizzness, and I said, Hay, let's all get together and take it and store it some place till next winter and then make a whole pile of money selling it for people to bern, You've got the biggest back yard, Glasses, how about it we pile it back there? he said.

My father's got his vegetable garden back there and he gets mad even if they hang the wash there, Glasses said. What's a matter with sticking it in your own back yard? he said, and Puds said, Well, our back yard's kind of small and it's kind of crowded already, and my mother hasn't been feeling very good lately. How about piling it neet down somebody's celler? How about yours, Benny? he said.

I wouldn't mind, but I've got a little pile of empty cans down there now and I have to put up a argument pritty near every day or else I could not even keep that down there, so I better not add any complications, I said. Hay Sid, you've got a swell empty celler, I said, and Sid Hunt said, That's just the way my father claims he's going to keep it, too.

Which just then a old man drove up in a old waggon attached to a old horse and started to throw the wood in the waggon, and I said, Hay mister, do you need any help? and he said, I could use it but I aint going to pay for it.

The result we helped him anyways, just for luck till we got tired of the exercize.

Being about 3 minutes.

Claims He Knew Of Death Only 3 Weeks Later

By WILLIAM BOSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Amsterdam, May 28 — (CP Cable) — Pte. Stefan Kolesar of Edmonton and Vancouver contended today at his trial for the murder of a Netherlands airforce sergeant that he knew nothing of Sgt. Louis Stork's death until his arrest three weeks after the event when he was charged with the murder.

During an hour-long cross-examination, he stuck to his story that he left Stork and Pte. John Merkley of Gravenhurst, Ont., when Stork resisted the Canadians' efforts to take his jeep from him the night of Jan. 19, 1946. Merkley already has been sentenced to death for the slaying of the Netherlander.

Kolesar said he walked to Merkley's room, reaching it as Merkley drove up in the jeep. Kolesar claimed that Merkley told him he had driven Stork 'out of town and left him on a road some place.'

Kolesar said that a revolver produced in the court martial as the weapon with which Stork was clubbed to death was not his alone, but his and Merkley's.

The court adjourned until tomorrow for a summing up of the case.

Says 25,000 Fascists Organized

Rome, May 28 — (AP) — The Italian news agency Ansa said a Neo-Fascist leader arrested recently in Milan told police that underground Fascists have formed a secret military organization of 25,000 men. The agency quoted the arrested leader, identified as a Capt. Faccini, as saying "A high personality" was secretly to have reviewed the force somewhere in Northern Italy.

Stolen Military Articles Found

Calcutta, May 27 — (AP) — Calcutta police said today stolen military articles valued at $45,000 were recovered last night in a raid on an inconspicuous house in an ill-lighted, twisting lane. Articles seized included aluminum ingots, cigaret lighters and beer.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE

Toronto, May 28. (CP)—The mining groups and the industrials posted minor index gains and the estern oils were down narrowly on the stock exchange at noon. Trading continued on a small scale at 671,000 shares for the first three hours.

Featuring the early afternoon trade was the loss of about 3 points by Brazilian Traction, in fairly active selling. Winnipeg Electric was down nearly two points and Goodyear Tire and Hiram Walker dropped a point.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

New York, May 28 — (AP) — The stock market today resumed its advance to another 15-year average high after absorbing considerable early profit-taking.

Irregularity was the rule at a moderately active opening. Steels, motors, rubbers and selected industrials then stiffened and gains of fractions to 3 points or so predominated near the fourth hour. Some rails remained indifferent. The pace quickened on the comeback.

Among Canadians traded on the big board up to noon Canadian Pacific added 1/8 at 19 5/8, Distillers Seagram gained 3/4 to 117, International Nickel was up 1/8 at 40 1/4, Dome Mines lost 1/8 at 23 7/8 and Hiram Walker was unchanged at 140 1/2.

HOGS

Toronto, May 28 — (CP) — Grade A, dressed, bacon-hogs, were unchanged at Brantford, $19.75 plus transportation, in the only market reporting settled quotations early today.

Deputies Face A Heavy Task

By SYLVAIN MANGEOT

London, May 28 — (Reuters)— The statement of Foreign Minister Vyacheslav M. Molotov of the Soviet Union on the problems of great-power collaboration in framing a European peace settlement throws into sharp relief the task confronting the deputies to the conference of Foreign Ministers, who reassembled in Paris Monday. They will continue work on preparation of the drafts of 5 European peace treaties, and on re-examination of outstanding questions from the Foreign Ministers conference.

Coinciding with Mr. Molotov's statement came the announcement by Lt.-Gen. Lucius Clay, United States representative on the Allied Control Council in Germany, that the American zone is to discontinue reparations deliveries to the Soviet zone pending clarification of the Potsdam decision to treat Germany as an economic whole.

This announcement, in conjunction with Mr. Molotov's declaration, makes it plain that inter-Allied approach to the question of a permanent settlement in Germany is no less fraught with difficulty than their approach to the five treaties now under discussion in Paris.

Mr. Molotov's pronouncement strikes London observers not so much for its content — because the main lines of Russian argument were made known recently in Paris — as by its tone of blunt criticism. It is also noteworthy as a direct counter to some of the main points made by State Secretary Byrnes of the United States May 21 in his broadcast on the Paris conference.

Russian Letter

Written for The Canadian Press
By V. PEREVALOV

Moscow, May 28 — (CP)—Further progress in the development of towns in the sub-Arctic is reported by Russian planners, who have seen new villages spring up in the far north and older settlements steadily expand.

"Boom towns" include Vorkutsk in the Pechora River basin, close to a coal-field developed during the war, and Anderma, an industrial town on the coast of the Kara Sea.

Veteran of the northern towns is Igarka, established in July, 1929, on the river Yenesei, and now boasting a population of 25,000. Ocean-going vessels call regularly for timber cargoes and the city contains schools, hospitals, theatres and factories.

Accompanying the growth of the cities has been a steady advance in experimental cultivation of crops, with most vegetable and grain crops successfully produced.

Pensions: Disabled ex-servicemen in Russia are receiving a wide range of compensations ranging from pensions fixed according to their loss of working capacity, extra rations and special housing facilities.

Ten per cent of all new or repaired housing is allotted to war pensioners, who may also apply for government loans to set up on farms. About 80 per cent of all disabled veterans are working or studying at vocational schools.

Special medical commissions have been created to deal with the disabled, and a quarter of the country's sanatoriums and health resorts have been set aside for their use free of charge.

Mining Boom: Yakutia, a vast area on the northeast section of Soviet Russia, is still supporting a flourishing mining industry which had its inception in 1923, when gold was found on the Aldan River.

Gold is still being mined, and rich deposits of platinum and silver have been discovered. Other minerals present in commercial quantities are tin, mica, molybdenum and wilfram. Thousands of tons of salt are produced annually from the area.

WAR IN NORMANDY

initial bridgehead on the eastern flank of the enemy at Caen. The British leader was at that time in command of all British, Canadian and American ground forces.

He intended by means of this threat to draw main enemy reserves into that sector, to fight them there and keep them there, using the 1st Canadian Army and the British 2nd Army for this purpose.

Having committed the main enemy reserves on the eastern flank, his plan was then to break out of the western flank, using Gen. Bradley's American armies, and pivoting the whole front on Caen.

The United States break-out thrust was to be delivered southward to the Lire River and then was to swing eastward to the Seine River and Paris. This was designed to cut off all of the enemy south of the Seine where the bridges were destroyed by air attack.

The strategy evolved from a consideration of the disposition of enemy reserves in western Europe, the pattern of rail and road communications leading to the interior of Normandy, and the immediate task of obtaining ports, Lord Montgomery says.

The capture of Cherbourg and the Brittany peninsula and the opening of ports there meant the Allied forces were required to make rapid territorial gains in the west. On the eastern flank at Caen, the acquisition of ground was not too pressing, provided the Allied requirements for airfields was met.

This pointed to the need for breaking out on the United States front and if this expansion in the west was to go rapidly enemy weight had to be drawn from that flank.

One-half of the 279-page book which The Canadian Press obtained for review is devoted to the Normandy campaign. While no direct quotations were permitted from the book—at present exclusively for high-ranking officers—this is the Normandy plan set down in the book by Lord Montgomery as he explained it to senior British, Canadian and United States officers at a conference in London April 7, 1944, two months before D-Day.

Lord Montgomery says in "Normandy to Baltic" that he never once had cause or reason to alter the plan and added that an understanding of the Normandy battle essentially requires this fact to be appreciated.

We are a fortunate people. We walk the middle road.
Through our Government's wise measures of control, we have, by resisting the temptation to rush after luxuries, been able to enjoy them in moderation.
We have, by keeping necessities at the top of our buying lists, kept the prices of both necessities and luxuries at the bottom.
Hardly another nation in the world today can point to so fine a record.

Yes, we are a fortunate people because we walk the middle road—the road of moderation in all things—in our thinking, in our actions and in our pleasures.

In the years of greater abundance, which are so surely ahead,
The House of Seagram believes that moderation, as always, will continue to be

MURDERERS OF THE BATTLE OF THE BULGE

These four men are former members of the first S. S. Panzer Regiment, and they are now on trial at Dachau for their part in the massacre of American prisoners of war during the historic Battle of the Bulge. Scores of American soldiers, caught in the first surge of the German offensive, were shot down in cold blood at Malmedy. These men are alleged to have confessed going through the field of fallen Americans, finishing off the wounded by shooting them in the head.

Fourteen Germans Hanged for Murders At Dachau Camp

14 More of 28 Convicted Go to Gallows Today

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

Landsberg, Germany, May 29 (AP)—Martin Gottfried Weiss, commandant of the Dachau concentration camp where thousands of Europeans were tortured and put to death, was hanged this morning in Landsberg prison.

Fourteen of his associates at Dachau preceded him to the gallows yesterday.

Another 13 were to be hanged today, completing the largest mass execution ever conducted by the United States Army.

All 28 were convicted by a military war crimes court last December for murdering more than 300,000 men, women and children at Dachau—once a synonym in Germany for terror. The court heard testimony that men were burned alive at Dachau, that others were immersed in ice water for experimentation and that thousands were beaten.

Over a harrowing three-hour period yesterday one Nazi dropped through the trap of the twin black gallows every 15 minutes. Each walked up the 13 steps alone and unaided.

Dr. Klaus Karl Schilling, 74-year-old physician who had gained wide renown in pre-Nazi days, shuffled to the gallows trembling but regained his composure as the hangman bound his feet in the shadow of the cell block where Adolf Hitler wrote "Mein Kampf."

Asked if he cared to make a last statement, Schilling lifted his bearded chin in a defiant attitude.

"Nein," he snapped. "Schnell, bitte schnell." ("No. Hurry, please hurry.")

Used Inmates to Test Theories

It was Schilling who used 1,200 unwilling inmates of Dachau to test his theories of malaria immunization. More than 400 of them, mostly Polish priests, died. He asked the court at his trial for time to conclude his malaria experiments.

As one body was being cut down, another condemned man was led to the second gallows. The executioners worked swiftly. One of them, a German, is a member of a Landsberg family which has killed men legally for 200 years. Together, they have hanged or guillotined nearly 3,000 persons.

Simon Kiern, who used Dachau inmates for pistol practice and who once killed a man with one blow, walked to the gallows carrying a bouquet of pink and white flowers.

Friedrich Ruppert, who beat inmates with a riding crop and who arranged the execution of 90 Russian officers, made a last request as the hangmen slipped the black hood over his head.

"Tell my wife I was thinking of her and I died bravely," he said.

SITUATION TAKES "CRITICAL TURN" IN MANCHURIA

Communist Leader Asserts Chiang Kai-Shek Had Taken Over Campaign

Nanking, May 29 (AP)— Gen. Chou En-Lai, China's No. 2 Communist, today asserted that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek personally had taken over direction of the government's Manchurian campaign.

He asserted the situation in civil war-ravaged Manchuria had taken a "critical turn."

Gen. Chou made his statement to The Associated Press a few hours after the government's central news agency reported that National troops had captured the important city of Kirin (Yungki) from Communists.

(In Peiping, the Independent newspaper, Shih Chieh Jih Pao, reported that government troops captured Liaoyuan, a railroad junction northwest of Szepingkai. It said the troops then pushed northward along the Szepingkai-Tsitsihar rail line to Wolungtun.)

Gen. Chou's assertion was the first note to disturb the hopeful atmosphere that pervaded China in the last few days. The Communist leader is his party's negotiator in peace discussions with government officials and Gen. Marshall, U.S. Envoy.

Even as he spoke, members of the third party Democratic League were arranging to resume peace talks with the Kuomintang (Chiang's government party). They were handicapped, however, by the continued absence at this critical stage of the Generalissimo, who remained in Mukden.

Communist leaders say that without Chiang present, any discussions would have little validity.

Shock Restores Voice to Deaf-Mute

Seattle, May 29 (AP)— Claude Berger, a deaf-mute for 62 of his 65 years, could talk today and could hear the sound of his own voice—and to a man who "prayed and prayed and prayed for this" it was nothing short of a "miracle."

Berger fell yesterday while at work in the Army Service Forces depot. He said later he "just let out a yell" of fright and when a supervisor ran over to ask if he was all right, Berger said "I feel fine."

Doctors suggested a childhood shock probably caused the defect, adding that the shock of the fall undoubtedly caused the restoration.

Success of Canadians and British On Caen Front Illustrated in Book

Editor's note: In the following story, second of a series, Ross Munro of The Canadian Press reports on Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery's book "Normandy to Baltic." Munro, a war correspondent with the Canadians from North Africa to Germany, saw many of the campaigns which the famous British commander analyzes.

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, May 29 (CP Cable) — The success achieved by Canadian and British troops on the Caen front in deliberately retaining at heavy cost, but according to strategic plan, the main German strength in Normandy in June and July, 1944, is illustrated clearly in Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery's book "Normandy to Baltic."

The privately-distributed book, based on the Western Front operations off the 21st Army Group, refutes criticism that the British-Canadian actions in the Caen sector were "a failure," as charged by Lt.-Col. Ralph Ingersoll in his recently-published book, "Top Secret."

(Col. Ingersoll, publisher of the newspaper PM and a liaison officer between the British and American commands during the fighting in Western Europe, criticized Lord Montgomery and Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, Supreme Allied Commander, and praised Gen. Omar Bradley, Chief United States Army command in the field, in his book.)

Lord Montgomery admits that breakout operations from the Allied bridgehead suffered considerable delays and says that one of the main reasons was weather.

Speaking of this inability to get southeast of Caen rapidly, Lord Montgomery said the plan to draw enemy forces to Caen achieved such success that it was impossible to make rapid headway in that sector which the Germans regarded as most vital.

He mentions criticism which appeared in the press at the time that there was a "danger of a stalemate in Normandy," but reminds the reader that in the original plan he had given D-Day plus 90 as the target date for lining up on the Seine, while in fact the first crossing was made on D-Day plus 75.

He says that it was understandable that there were despondent critics in June and July, 1944, but well-laid plans were maturing satisfactorily even then and the obviously basic design of broad plans could not be revealed at that time. When the breakout occurred it carried all before it.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, May 29 — (CP) — Synopsis. The Pacific air mass which has pushed eastward across the Rockies is moving slowly eastward bringing showers and thundershowers to all the Rocky Mountain regions. The strong southerly flow of warm air over the central states has pushed northwestward past Lake Athabasca in Northern Saskatchewan and has also spread eastward north of Lake Superior giving temperatures over 80 in White River region yesterday afternoon while Southern Ontario remained near 70.

REDISTRIBUTION PLAN OUTLINED BY ST. LAURENT

Representation in The Commons Would Be Increased From 245 To 255 Seats

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, May 29. (CP)—Discussion touched on a wide variety of agricultural topics in the Commons yesterday after Justice Minister St. Laurent outlined the government's redistribution plan under which representation in the Commons would be increased from 245 to 255.

Taking the floor before study of agricultural estimates was resumed, Mr. St. Laurent said the government's plan would mean increased representation for Nova Scotia, Quebec, Ontario and British Columbia. Manitoba and Saskatchewan would lose one seat each while the other provinces would remain unchanged.

This is how the representation would be divided if the government plan is accepted, the present representation being in brackets:

Prince Edward Island four (four); Nova Scotia 13 (12); New Brunswick 10 (10); Quebec 73 (65); Ontario 83 (82); Manitoba 16 (17); Saskatchewan 20 (21); Alberta 17 (17); British Columbia 18 (16); Yukon one (one); total 255 (245).

It would be up to the Commons to decide what method should be used to determine representation. The government had found there was dissatisfaction with the system used in the past of taking Quebec and its 65 seats as the basis for fixing the representation of the other provinces. The government had attempted to work out a system by using Ontario as the basis, but this proved unsatisfactory.

SHIPPING STRIKE SPREADS DESPITE OTTAWA PARLEY

Three-Score Vessels Tied Up and More Seamen Arrested for Being Absent

By JACK WILLIAMS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa May 29 (CP)—Representatives of the Canadian Seamen's Union (T.L.C.) and the government go into conference again today in an effort to settle the strike of lake seamen.

With the strike in its third day there was a marginal increase in hope the discussions, which started yesterday, might provide a basis of settlement, but those closely in touch with the developments were frank in admitting they might turn one way as quickly as the other.

Yesterday Labor Minister Mitchell held a 90-minute meeting with a union delegation headed by President J. A. (Pat) Sullivan. Later he spent the same time at two meetings, with George Donovan, Secretary of the Dominion Marine Association, and Senator P. G. Campbell, Association Counsel. At the end of the day the minister announced he would meet the union representatives again in the morning. Whether or not there would be a joint meeting would depend on those discussions, he said.

Might be Indication

Should a joint meeting be called it would be generally regarded as a favorable sign—an indication that the minister and his advisors had found some hope of a settlement which would prove agreeable to both parties.

The main difficulty to be overcome appeared to be the details of how an eight-hour day, a reduction of four hours, was to be introduced. It was understood it was at that point discussions between the union and operators broke down in Toronto early last week. There was disagreement on the number of deckhands to be employed, on the periods they might be required to work to make up their eight hours and on the overtime rate to be paid cooks.

Those were points which, it appeared, formed the basis of yesterday's conversations and the fact a further meeting was scheduled for today was considered

Two Convicts Soon Captured After Breakout

Kingston, May 29 (CP)— Two convicts, Joseph Lenthier, 26, of Montreal, and John B. MacIntosh, 27, of Peterborough, were speedily recaptured last night, following a breakaway from a work gang near the prison during the afternoon.

Lenthier was found hiding in a tree in the woods just north of Elginburg, 10 miles from Kingston.

MacIntosh was seized on the south shore of Loughboro Lake, near Elginburg village.

Neither man offered resistance and they were immediately bundled into cars and taken back to the penitentiary.

They had been working with a gang outside the penitentiary walls earlier in the day and escaped in a car stolen from the outskirts of the city. The car was found abandoned at Elginburg.

The men showed amazing indifference to possible recapture as they walked in prison garb more than a mile from the penitentiary gang to the northwest section of Kingston, where a car owned by T. L. Smith was stolen. Smith gave chase in another car but was outdistanced. The convicts had apparently abandoned the car near Elginburg and headed on foot for the heavy swamp area near there.

Lenthier was sentenced at North Bay last December to five years for housebreaking and armed robbery. At Peterborough, in October, 1945, MacIntosh was sentenced to four years for attempted armed robbery.

Authorities said both men probably would be charged with escaping custody.

RADIO AND MOVIES TO SUIT CHILDREN APPROVED

Niagara Falls, May 29 —(CP)— The Ontario Urban School Trustees Convention here yesterday approved a resolution from Toronto urging selection of special pictures for Saturday matinee showings and also agreed to draw up a memorandum on suitable radio programs for children.

LAST-MINUTE HITCH IN PLANS TO SETTLE STRIKE

However, Hitch Fails to Dampen Official Optimism End is Near

Washington, May 29 (AP) —A last-minute hitch in plans for settling the United States soft coal strike failed to dampen official optimism that the end is near.

While for the record no one would go any stronger than reports of "progress," one official in a position to know said privately he saw "practically no chance" that the day would end without an agreement.

The strike is in its 59th day — counting the only partially effective two-week truce which ended last Saturday.

Despite the general air of expectancy, however, the government has not relaxed its efforts to bring about a settlement before the shutdown regains its stranglehold on industry.

Secretary of the Interior J. A. Krug called John L. Lewis into another morning session, although the hour was not announced in advance.

The last-minute delay developed even as lawyers for Mr. Krug's Federal Coal Mines Administration and the United Mine Workers (A.F.L.) headed by Mr. Lewis drew up tentative contract provisions.

The major terms on which Mr. Lewis and the government were said to be in agreement as of yesterday call for:

1. A 45-hour, five-day week to replace the present six-day work week, with the basic wage rate boosted from $1 an hour to $1.18 1-2. Time and one-half would be paid for work beyond 35 hours each week. This would net the miners $59.25 for a 45-hour week compared to their previous $63.50 for 54 hours.

2. Two health and welfare funds, one financed by the operators at the rate of five cents a ton of coal produced and administered jointly, the other made up of present payroll deductions for such things as medicine, surgery and hospital care in cases where such payments already are made. This fund would be administered solely by the union.

Charged With Driving Tractor When Intoxicated

Chatham, May 29 (CP) — James Emery, Dover Centre, charged with driving a tractor while intoxicated in a crash with a parked truck, was remanded here yesterday to June 3 and released on $25 bail.

WANTS EVIDENCE DECLARED SUBJECT TO IMMUNITY

Defence Counsel Has Witness Admit Names Used in Charges Were Embassy Officials

By ALAN RANDAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Montreal, May 29 (CP)— Defence counsel, fighting fiercely for Fred Rose, charged with conspiracy to communicate information to Russia, sought today in court to have the evidence of the key crown witness, Igor Gouzenko, declared subject to diplomatic immunity.

Defence counsel Joseph Cohen put forward this claim, after having previously been turned down when he objected that Gouzenko's story of the setting up of an espionage organization by Rusia was hardly related to the present case.

Mr. Cohen next interrupted the crown's examination of the 27-year-old former Embassy cipher clerk, by special prosecutor Philippe Brais, K.C.

Receives Permission

Mr. Cohen, got permission of the court to "question the witness to lay the basis of a legal argument."

In his questioning of Gouzenko he said, he would show that names of Russians mentioned in the indictment against Rose were those of Embassy officials. Gouzenko admitted this.

He said also that documents to back his story of espionage in Canada were taken from the Embassy. And with this Mr. Cohen started his argument that these documents were subject to diplomatic immunity and so was Gouzenko's testimony.

"I submit it is up to the court to uphold this diplomatic immunity," said Mr. Cohen.

He served notice he would argue long and loud on this tack.

When the former cipher clerk of the Russian Embassy in Ottawa appeared on the witness stand, Special Prosecutor Philippe Brais K.C., called Harold Main, Winnipeg photographer, and formerly a next-door neighbor of Gouzenko in Ottawa to identify him.

The court was cleared of the public to protect the young witness who has been under police protection ever since he went to the Federal Government last Fall and told of things he had learned about espionage while working in the Russian Embassy.

Mr. Justice Wilfrid Lazure, presiding over court of King's Bench where Rose, the Labor-Progressive Member of Parliament for Montreal-Cartier is on trial, warned as a further step to protect Gouzenko, that no pictures could be taken in court.

He gave his age as 27 and spoke in English.

Special Prosecutor, Philippe Brais, K.C., told the court the witness had been under observation for acute appendicitis until yesterday and suggested Gouzenko might have a chair if he thought it necessary.

The court agreed.

NURSING EXAMINATIONS DELAY MOST OPERATIONS

Hamilton, May 29 —(CP)— Due to nursing examinations depleting the hospital staff, all but emergency operations at the Hamilton General and Mount Hamilton hospitals have been deferred until Saturday, Dr. M. G. Brown, superintendent, said yesterday.

9 Dead, 4 Missing In Pennsylvania And N. Y. Floods

Thousands Homeless When Susquehanna R. Runs Wild

Pittsburgh, May 29 — (AP) — On a wild rampage of death and destruction, rivers and creeks boiled out of their banks today to inundate valuable farming and industrial areas in Pennsylvania and New York.

At least nine persons drowned and four others were missing as muddy flood waters, fed by four days of almost continuous rains, spilled unrelentlessly into homes and business establishments.

Estimates of damage exceeded $3,000,000. Thousands were homeless.

The swirling waters of the Susquehanna River raced virtually out of control, striking hardest at Williamsport. Eyewitnesses said the Central Pennsylvania community of 43,000 lay helpless today in the most crippling flood since 1936.

The raging river crested at 31 feet five inches at Williamsport late last night, 8.5 feet above flood level. Eighty per cent of the city's industries are flood-bound, 60 per cent of residential areas awash in several feet of water.

One Third of City Under Water

Elmira, N. Y., looked Old Man River — the Chemung, a Susquehanna tributary — right in the face. One third of the community, its 50,000 residents battling the raging torrents at every turn, was under more than five feet of water. Utilities were disrupted. All roads but one closed.

Hundreds of volunteers, in heavy trucks and rowboats equipped with radios, helped throughout the flooded areas.

The Susquehanna crashed thru a sandbag-reinforced 23-feet dike at Athens, Pa., early today. One quarter of the 4,000 residents were evacuated to higher ground as torrents of rushing water — as high as nine feet — reached 1st-floor windows of homes. The entire business section of the town was inundated.

All agencies in the three-state area: Pennsylvania, New York — and even in nearby Maryland — stood by for disaster work. Volunteers prepared for action as authorities warned the flood crest in danger areas would not be reached until late today — perhaps later.

In some sections, weathermen forecast more rain.

Most roads along the Susquehanna River were washed out. The Lackawanna Railroad suspended service west of Kingston, Pa. A landslide near Plainsville blocked traffic on the Lehigh Valley's main line into Wilkes-Barre.

Property damage in Williamsport was estimated at $1,500,000. Other severe damage resulted at Bradford in Western Pennsylvania where Mayor Hugh J. Ryan said losses exceeded $1,000,000.

Six of the dead were reported in Pennsylvania, with three others listed in New York State. The missing were all New Yorkers.

CONVICTS RECAPTURED

Kingston, May 29 —(CP)— Kingston penitentiary guards last night recaptured two convicts who had escaped from a work gang near the prison during the afternoon. Joseph Penthier, 26, of Montreal, was found hiding in a tree in the woods just north of Elginburg, 10 miles from Kingston. John B. MacIntosh, 27, of Peterborough, was seized on the south shore of Loughboro Lake near Elginburg village.

Pilot-Shooting Gun For Jet Plane Being Developed by U.S. Army

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

Dayton, O., May 29 (AP)— A new kind of gun that shoots a pilot out of a jet plane is being developed for the United States Army Air Forces.

This gun stretches, like a telescope, while firing. In the cockpit, behind the aviator's chair, the gun is only 38 inches long — the longest a fighter cockpit will accommodate. As it shoots, it stretches to five feet, providing velocity without reaching the high accelerative force necessary with a 38-inch stroke.

The ejector began as a war project. It is even more necessary now, since all the jets and any other planes approaching the speed of sound will require test pilots.

The gun shoots out the pilot— at a speed of 60 feet a second — while he sits in his cockpit chair, ejecting both man and seat. The gun is hooked to the seat back by a long tube that fills the gun barrel like a projectile.

Both dummies and living men have been shot upward in laboratory tests. There, seat and occupant are propelled up a 30-foot track, fitted with brakes to stop them before reaching the top.

The top acceleration that a man can take without risk of crushed vertebrae still is undetermined.

Wind blast is one risk. Because jets fly at high altitudes, the pilot must wear an oxygen mask, goggles and helmet. Modifications of these have been made to prevent blowing off and to prevent injury to the face.

The Germans tried similar experiments, apparently using prisoners. Photographs show that features become temporarily distorted. The flesh is forced back in ripples. Air gets under eyelids and puffs them out. Nose tips flatten like being pushed down by a finger.

City Employees Of Rochester, N.Y. End Their Strike

Rochester, N.Y., May 29 —(AP) —Agreement of city officials to meet with organized city employees brought an end today to the city wide shutdown which yesterday left 30,000 union workers idle.

Termination of the picketing shutdown, which union leaders earlier had expected to take 60,000 workers away from their jobs in this city of 325,000 population, came shortly ofter 2 a.m. E.D.T.

Frederick H. Bullen, executive secretary of the State Mediation Board, sent here by Governor Thomas E. Dewey, concluded hours of negotiation by announcing union acceptance of a three-point declaration of policy.

The work holiday climaxed a controversy which began May 15 with abolition of 489 jobs in the public works department which the federation of state, county and municipal employees (AFL) sought to organize.

Exact issues during the drawn-out labor dispute were vaguely defined. An A.F.L.-C.I.O. joint strategy committee, which negotiated with the city and directed the shutdown, said the union's basic objective was to establish that "employees have the right to organize and bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing."

'Legal' to Draft Foreigners Says Fritz Sauckel

By THOMAS A. REEDY

Nuernberg, May 29 (AP) — Fritz Sauckel, Hitler's labor boss, testified blandly today that it was "legal" to draft 5,000,000 foreigners to work for Germany's war effort.

Sauckel told the international military tribunal that the Fuehrer issued "laws" validating forced labor and the governments of occupied territories followed suit.

He insisted that several millions came voluntarily to Germany to work and said the tieup of the S.S. and police with labor recruitment was only a "protective" measure. Punishments against entire villages for failure to meet labor quotas were inflicted "locally" and without his knowledge or consent, he said.

In 1942, Sauckel asserted, it became apparent that voluntary recruitment was failing to fill the bill and after the battle of Stalingrad Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels proclaimed a "total war effort" and laid down a work or starve dictum for foreign labor.

"The army said it was senseless to bring these people to Germany to work," said Sauckel, the 15th of the 22 defendants to take the stand in his own defence. "The army wanted to make soldiers out of them and I resisted that."

He said he also had controversies with other ministries and drew a picture of the Reich government beset with squabbles as the knowledge of impending defeat dawned.

SEEK TO AMEND CRIMINAL CODE

Toronto, May 29 —(CP)—Hon. Leslie E. Blackwell, Attorney-General of Ontario, yesterday announced that he had asked Justice Minister St. Laurent to introduce an amendment to the criminal code which would bring it in line with the criminal law of England, "so that in a case like the Tobias case the trial judge would not have to charge the jury with respect to manslaughter." The remedy, he added, was in the hands of parliament.

NURSING STAFFS HOLD CONFERENCE

Members of the nursing staff of the Victorian Order of Nurses of Kingston, Brockville, Gananoque and Belleville had an interesting conference in Kingston yesterday. Miss Vivian Adair, nurse in charge of Belleville district, presided for the discussion of publicity of Victorian Order activities, and gave a well arranged paper on this topic. Miss Eleanor Fothergill, nurse in charge of Kingston V.O.N., presided for the discussion of prenatal work and policies of the Victorian Order. The nurses were entertained at dinner by the Kingston committee following their business session.

Proceeds From Auction Sale For Boys' Camp

Want a new radio, car battery, pair of nylons, refrigerator, lawn mower, or any of those things made scarce by the war?

Then here's your chance.

On Saturday afternoon at three o'clock, the Y's Men's Club is holding a huge auction sale on Campbell Street, just off Front, at which will be sold all the things mentioned above plus a host of other useful articles for man or woman.

Merchants of Belleville have generously donated these pieces of merchandise to the members of the Y's Men's Club and the proceeds of the sale will be used to further the service work of the club including the wiring and equipping with electricity the Boys' Camp at Moira Lake, where annually 150 children spend an enjoyable supervised vacation.

Mr. Norman Montgomery, auctioneer, has donated his services to the club, and will be in charge of the sale of the merchandise.

Rev. J. E. Beckel New President B. of Q. Conference

Napanee, May 29 — (CP) — Rev. Hamlet C. Walfraim of Lindsay, secretary of the Lindsay Presbytery, was elected secretary of the Bay of Quinte United Church Conference to succeed Rev. James E. Beckel of Elgin who had the office for 12 years and was elected president of the conference at this session. The new president was formerly of Rawdon.

Rev. Alfred Poulter of Madoc will be the assistant secretary. Rev. J. E. Glover of Hastings was re-elected treasurer and the Rev. J. R. Trumpour of Cannifton secretary of the Belleville Presbytery is chairman of the business committee.

The Missionary and Maintenance Committee today reported an allocation of $145,000 for the Bay of Quinte Conference for 1945 and the amount raised was $149,416, it was an increase of $11,151, over 1944 and all seven Presbyteries shared in the increase, six exceeding their allocations.

For 1947 the objective for the whole church is $2,175,000, of this amount the share of Bay of Quinte Conference is $176,000. This has been allocated to Presbyteries as follows: Belleville — $31,350; Cobourg $17,600; Kingston $30,800; Lindsay $14,850; Oshawa $31,900; Peterboro $24,750; Renfrew $24,750; total $176,000.

It was recommended that Rev. H. B. Neal of Renfrew be chairman, and Rev. J. W. Gordon of Port Hope be appointed secretary of the standing committee.

Gladstone Murray Will be Speaker At Joint Meeting

Former general manager of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation and today Canada's spokesman for private enterprise, Mr. Gladstone Murray, a name for many years linked with Canadian and British radio, will on Monday evening speak to a joint meeting of the local Junior Board of Trade and the Chamber of Commerce. The meeting will be held at the Bay of Quinte Country Club.

A native of Maple Ridge in the Fraser Valley district of British Columbia, Mr. Murray is a graduate of McGill University in Montreal and also is a Rhodes Scholar which saw him study at Oxford in England. After many years in radio work he has turned his interests toward publicizing the proud record of achievement shown by private enterprise.

MR. GLADSTONE MURRAY

But Gladstone Murray has not always led the measured life of one occupying his former position in close association with radio. He was one of Canada's aerial heroes of the First World War with 3,200 hours of combat flying, and four decorations to his credit. He won the Victoria Cross, the D.F.C., the Croix de Guerre and the Italian Silver Medal for Valour.

After that war Murray wrote for Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express, did publicity work for the League of Nations and in 1923 helped establish the B.B.C., the beginner in governmental radio broadcasting. He returned to Canada in 1936 after about 27 years in Britain and on the Continent, and became general manager of the C.B.C. He was also director general of broadcasting for Canada.

His address at the Bay of Quinte Country Club Monday evening, which is expected to be relative to private enterprise, is one which will be well worth hearing by his Belleville audience.

Motorists Fail To Heed Stop Signs

That Stop street signs erected on city intersections mean just that and are not to be taken as a highball sign inviting careless speeding through intersecting streets, is being learned the hard way by large numbers of local motorists.

Practically every day city police officers have occasion to check motorists running through "Stop" signs without first doing just that and as result are called upon to contribute towards the city coffers in the way of fines. Three motorists were checked Tuesday night for running through Stop signs, while another motorist was checked for driving without brakes.

At Ann Street School a potential home run hitter clouted the ball just a trifle too hard with result one of the school windows was broken. He agreed to pay the damages.

David M. Salisbury

David Salisbury, Native of Moira, Attains High Position in U. S. Company

Announcement of the appointment of David M. Salisbury as executive vice president of the Westinghouse Electric Supply Company, New York, was made today by B. W. Clark, company president. Mr. Salisbury, formerly vice-president and general manager of the company, succeeds Walter Williamson, who has retired.

The new executive vice president of Westinghouse was born in the village of Moira, Huntingdon township a little more than fifty years ago, and is the son of Mr. Eali Salisbury and the late Mary Salisbury. He moved with his family at an early age to Calgary, Alberta, where he received his early education.

Brother Noted Physician.

Mr. Salisbury is a brother of Dr. Clarence Salisbury of Ganada, Arizona, who won international renown a few years ago when the story of his work in organizing and supervising an Indian hospital in that part of the United States was given to the public.

He is one of a family of 12 children, nine of whom are living and for the most part residing in California. Cousins of Mr. Salisbury in the district are: Messrs. Wallace Salisbury, Arthur Salisbury, Roy Salisbury, all of Belleville; Edgar Salisbury, Stirling; Mrs. Earl Morrow, Stirling, and Mrs. Howard Connor, Tweed.

Curiously enough, his father is one of four Salisbury brothers, Eali, Samuel, John and Billa, who married four sisters named Mary, Phoebe, Melissa, and Margaret Foster, all of whom were born in Huntingdon township.

In Business Since 1915.

Mr. Salisbury has been in the electrical supply business since 1915, when he joined the Northern Electric Company at Calgary, Canada. In 1918, after working for electric companies in Oakland and Fresno, Calif., he joined the Electric Railway & Manufacturer's Supply Company in San Francisco. This company was acquired by Westinghouse in 1920.

Subsequently, Mr. Salisbury served as branch manager in the Supply Company Salt Lake City office until he was made manager of the North Pacific district with headquarters at Seattle, Wash. He was appointed general manager of the Supply Company in 1943, with headquarters at 150 Varick Street, and the following year was elected vice president.

Mr. Salisbury was educated in Canada and California. He is married, and has two children, and is at present a resident of Manhasset, Long Island. He is Vice President of the National Electric Wholesalers Association.

Electrocution Cause of Death Jury's Verdict

A verdict of death by electrocution as result of his endeavor to disentangle a fishing line from electric power line, and not through drowning as had been suspected, was returned by a coroner's jury at the adjourned inquest held Tuesday evening looking into the death of Earl Wager, Trent Road.

Wager, an employee of the Canadian Industrial Alcohol Company at Corbyville, died on the evening of May 21st when while fishing near the pump house at Corbyville he fell into the Moira River. The body was recovered the following afternoon.

"We the jury find that the said Earl Leslie Wager did come to his death in the evening of May 21st, 1946; that his death occurred at the building known as the pump house which belongs to the Canadian Industrial Alcohol Company; that death was due to electrocution as result of attempting to disentangle a fishing line from some electric power wires which enter the pump house when he received the shock."

Eight witnesses were called by Acting Crown Attorney Gordon S. Robertson, the inquest being conducted by Coroner Dr. Russell J. Scott.

GIRL GIVES DOG AWAY AFTER 2 POISON ATTEMPTS

Brantford, May 29 (CP)— Thirteen-year-old Barbara Campbell has found a home for her dog Tarzan, a Great Dane which twice has narrowly escaped attempts to poison him. Barbara said a few days ago she would give the dog away rather than have him subject to repeated poison attacks and the dog is going to a home in nearby Brant Township where she can visit him now and then.

Jack Truaisch Deputy-Chief Kingston Police

Former well-known resident of this city, and a son of the late Detective Sergeant J. M. Truaisch, of the Belleville Police Department, John T. Truaisch, head of the Ontario Provincial Police detachment at Kingston, has been appointed deputy chief of the Kingston Police Department, it was announced today.

Deputy Chief Truaisch had served with the Ontario Provincial Police detachment in Kingston since 1941, being transferred there from duty at Sudbury.

Previous to his joining the O.P.P. in August, 1935, he spent three months as county constable of Hastings County, later joining the Ontario Police Force with which he served for ten months.

He served with the O.P.P. here for one year before being transferred to Sudbury in 1936, where his duties covered the district of Hornepayne and other areas. He was transferred to the Gogama district, later being returned for duty to Sudbury.

His father the late Detective Sergeant Jack Truaisch served for many years with the police department here and succumbed to a heart seizure while on duty. His mother resides at 180 Church Street.

The new deputy chief is married and has no family. He is a nephew of J. V. C. Truaisch, who recently retired as postmaster here.

Noisy Processions After Weddings Banned by Police

Picton, May 29—Noisy processions of cars which usually follow weddings here, are to be prohibited here. Chief of Police Bert Biddle has issued a warning that action will be taken, both in regards to the excessive speed of cars in the parade, and the noise.

"On Saturday two funeral processions were disrupted and bereaved persons grossly humiliated through certain individuals sounding horns continuously in a wedding celebration," said the chief.

"It is strictly contrary to law to keep sounding horns and thereby create a disturbance, and all persons are notified that henceforth, the law will be strictly enforced and post-nuptial blatancy must be terminated or otherwise participants will be subject to the penalty of the law," warns the chief.

It has been customary for cars to race through the streets after the wedding car, following the ceremony, with horns sounding, and on busy days this has proved hazardous to both pedestrians and motorists.

Veteran City Employee Retires From Service

While the familiar adage that a "rolling stone gathers no moss" might in a certain sense be applicable to Mr. George Gleason, Boswell Street, twenty-five years of "rolling" have still left the above named gentleman a resident of this city.

But time does take its inevitable toll and after a quarter of a century service with the city as operator of the city roller, Mr. Gleason last week retired owing to ill health.

"Practically every street on the west side of the river has been paved since I became an employee of the public works department," stated Mr. Gleason as he recalled the various city officials under whom he had worked. Two thirds of the streets in the west end of the city have also been paved during the last quarter of a century according to the retiring roller operator.

A native of Northumberland county, Mr. Gleason for 32 years operated a sawmill and threshing machine in the Warkworth and Burnley district before coming to Belleville. During his first year with the city he worked on the crusher then operating on Zwick's Island. The next year the crusher was moved to the site of the present quarry north of College Street.

James G. Mills was city engineer at the beginning of Mr. Gleason's term with the city, while he has successfully served under the late Charles Campbell and the present engineer, Charles A. Mott. City works foreman a quarter of a century ago was J. Henderson.

WAR HERO HANGS SELF

Cambridge, Ill., May 29 (AP) —Richard E. Younggren, 27-year-old war hero, hanged himself yesterday in his cell at Henry County jail where he was awaiting trial on a charge of murdering his mother with a hammer. IN MEMORIAM

WOODS — In loving memory of our stepmother, Mrs. Wm. Woods, who passed away May 27th., 1946.
—Sadly missed by Nellie and Nyland.

KENNEDY — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother, Susan Spencer Kennedy, who passed away May 29th., 1943.

A wonderful mother, woman and aid,
One who was better, God never made,
A wonderful worker, loyal and true,
One in a million, that, mother, was you.
Just in your judgment, always right,
Honest and liberal, ever upright;
Loved by your friends, and all you knew,
A wonderful mother, that, mother, was you.
—Ever remembered by Garnet, Reta, Roy and Wayne.

KENNEDY — In fond and loving memory of a dear mother, Susan D. (Spencer) Kennedy, who passed away May 29th., 1943.

She was a wonderful mother,
She played life's battles square,
No matter when we needed her
We always found her there.
So on this day our hearts go out
To the dearest and best of mothers
Who never had time to think of herself
But always thought of others.
—Sadly missed and ever remembered by daughter Mary, of Belleville and son Wesley, of Cobalt, Ont.

KENNEDY — In fond and loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother, Susan D. (Spencer) Kennedy, who passed away suddenly May 29th., 1943.

Mother of our hearts we miss you so,
Often, dear mother, our tears will flow
Dimming your picture before our eyes,
But never the one in our hearts that lies.
Beside your grave we often stand,
With hearts both crushed and sore,
But in the gloom the sweet words come
Not lost but gone before.
—Sadly missed and ever remembered by daughter Laura, son-in-law Reginald and grandchildren.

SHIPPING STRIKE

an indication there was hope of progress being made in bringing the differing viewpoints together.

Three-Score Tied Up.

Three-score or more vessels were tied up today by the Canadian Seamen's Union strike against lake ship owners for an eight-hour day. More seamen were arrested on charges of absence from ships — the union's figure of arrests stood at 52. Tension continued high at lake ports where picket lines stood fast against sporadic calls by owners for police assistance.

But the excitement that gripped the piers in the first two days after the strike was called Sunday had given way to a dogged struggle in which neither side showed signs of yielding. Leaders of the union and of the ship owners were gathered at Ottawa with federal labor department chiefs headed by Federal Labor Minister Mitchell and the only hopeful sign from Ottawa was that the meetings are continuing.

So far the owners and the union men have not met at a conference table since the meeting at Toronto broke up May 21 with both the owners and the union blaming each other for responsibility in the breakdown, and the union issuing its strike call. Yesterday Mr. Mitchell conferred separately with the owners and then with the union; he announced further meetings with the union today.

Some Ships Sailing.

The union estimated that 70 vessels were tied up by the strike, including one laker and several department of transport ships in the Maritimes. Reports to The Canadian Press showed at least 61 ships strikebound or else lying outside ports where strikers waited to greet the crews.

But ships also were sailing. The Canada Steamship Lines' package freighter City of Windsor cleared Toronto for Montreal; three vessels sailed from Kingston and others were moving all along the great inland seas. Some of these were manned by non-union crews; others had union crews that still hadn't docked to answer the strike call. Still others were apparently steaming with only officer crews.

Senator P. G. Campbell, counsel for the Dominion Marine Association, said at Ottawa that "ships are manned and sailing; there doesn't seem to be any scarcity of crews." The union strike headquarters at Toronto listed 61 ships tied up Tuesday and early today said the number had increased.

Keeping Crews Intact

A survey by The Canadian Press showed 61 vessels tied up along the lakes and down east — 17 at the lakehead; another six held at anchor outside the lakehead breakwaters; 13 at points along the Welland Canal; six at Cornwall, one at Goderich, eight at Toronto, three at Montreal, one at Halifax; in addition, six Federal Transport lighters at Maritime ports.

The half-dozen vessels lying at anchor off the lakehead, three ships carrying union crews lying at anchor in Humber Bay west of Toronto harbor, and other isolated vessels at anchor were asserted to be held on owner's instructions apparently in the hope of keeping crews intact in case of an early settlement.

From east to west up the long Great Lakes water route the port picture was much the same. From Kingston three vessels moved out with non-union crews. Strikebreakers were escorted to the Kingston wharves by a squad of 14 policemen. Seven seamen arrested on charges of breach of the Canada Shipping Act appeared in court yesterday; were remanded to today.

Several Brushes

At Cornwall where Royal Canadian Mounted Police were on duty along the canal there were said to have been several brushes between strike-breakers and union men but no arrests were reported. Second mate James Sullivan of the freighter Joseph P. Burke was struck on the head by a stone in one flare-up; the freighter J. O. McKellar cleared eastbound with a non-union crew; another ship was tied up.

At Toronto seven seamen were arrested on the waterfront picket lines but they were charged with trespassing on C.S.L. property. The arrests followed attempts of the unionists to board the C.S.L. package freighter City of Kingston, docking from Hamilton. The seven were remanded until today on bail of $100 each which was provided.

The steamship City of Windsor yesterday was the first ship to sail eastward out of Toronto with freight since Saturday afternoon. The union charged that crews were stranded on three vessels—the Gray, Judge Kenefick and the Howard L. Shaw lying at anchor in Humber Bay. A number of other vessels were lying at Toronto docks.

Along the Welland Canal, 30 union seamen who spent nearly 24 hours in jail on Canada Shipping Act charges before being released on bail returned to the picket lines at Thorold last night. Crews of three more freighters joined the strikers' ranks at Port Colborne, bringing the total held there to 13 vessels.

Warrants Sworn Out

The crew of the coal freighter Alexander Leslie walked off the ship at Erieau. Pickets were on the job at Owen Sound where three ships were tied up but two other vessels cleared port. Pickets were on the job at Goderich, where the Algorail is tied up by the strike. The freighter Windox was stranded at Collingwood. The freighter C. E. Huntley unloaded grain at Sarnia without incident and proceeded to dry dock at Collingwood.

Warrants were sworn out for 84 seamen at the lakehead but only four had been served by last night. The four seamen — from the Renvoyle—were remanded on $50 bail on charges of absence without leave.

Mas picketing continued quietly at Fort William and Port Arthur where about 17 ships were tied up. In addition six vessels rode at anchor outside the breakwaters and the union charged the owners were holding the ships out of port simply to keep the crews intact. These six included the Huronic, big package freighter of the C.S.L.

Gov't. Won't Interfere

Federal Justice Minister St. Laurent in a telegram received at Toronto yesterday by John Buckley of the Toronto District Labor Council affirmed that as far as he knew neither the Department of Justice nor any other government agency had anything to do with arrests of seamen. "Nor would it be proper for the government to attempt to interfere with the process of the courts of justice," said the Minister's wire.

A vice-president of the seamen's union, Dewar Ferguson, declared that two small companies had signed agreements granting the eight-hour day with a 12 1-2 per cent increase in wages. He named the companies, operating altogether about a dozen vessels, as the Pidgeon River Timber and Navigation of Fort William and the Abitibi Navigation Company of Toronto.

GENERAL'S DAUGHTER BRIDE OF GYPSY

"Lucky Arthur" Smith, a gipsy who lived on Stebbing Downs in a shack, is shown with his bride, the former Miss Edith Helen Hume Henderson, of Martin's Hall, Stebbing, after their marriage. The bride is the daughter of the late General H. Hume Henderson, who died three years ago. He was a commander in the Indian Army. The romance was born when Smith same to Martin's Hall to help Miss Henderson with the garden. The couple planned a real Romany honeymoon, "pitching our tent where fancy takes us." Smith said it would be strange leaving his shack for a mansion but guessed he would "get used to it."

Moisture Abundant for Present, Crops Planted Earlier Than Usual

Toronto, May 29 (CP)—Heavy rain during the last 10 days has done much to improve spring crops throughout most of Ontario, it is indicated in the weekly report issued by the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Many counties report abundant moisture for the time being and some crops have been planted earlier than usual. In most sections a large percentage of cattle are already on pasture and potato and corn-planting is general. Several districts report spring grain well-rooted and making favorable progress.

Fruit crop possibilities are believed to be good in some counties but others report the situation as disappointing. Satisfactory crops are looked for in Grey, Lincoln, Durham, Northumberland and Dundas counties But orchards in Brant and Welland are not up to expectations.

In southern Ontario tobacco planting is under way and reports from that area are favorable.

Main worry of many farmers is the problem of securing help for the harvest. Agricultural representatives report inquiries from farmers, many of whom will require assistance as soon as haying begins. In Middlesex county some relief from the labor situation was brought about last week by the placing of additional German prisoners of war on farms.

Milk and cheese flow, below normal for some weeks in many sections of the province, is reported to be improving steadily.

In Renfrew and Stormont counties traces of spring floods still remain but farmers are hopeful that their seeding operations will not be retarded to a serious extent.

Emphasis of Civilian Over Military Aspects Given by Defence Officials

By JACK BRAYLEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, May 29 —(CP)— Deliberate emphasis of civilian over military aspects of the recent Operation Muskox has been given by defence officials here but there has been no lack of confirmation for the Arctic expedition's chief finding — that large-scale invading forces could deploy through the snowy tundra of that vast undefended area.

One authority asked to comment specifically on the military results of the 3,500-mile trek from Churchill, Man., through the Arctic Circle to Edmonton, Alta., frankly said he thought the exercise had been "embarrassed by too much publicity."

He said the military aspect of the expedition had been given almost a sinister twist while the interest of American observers "irresponsible" speculation thereon had made it appear that the United States was going to move in to assume a defensive role that was the sovereign responsibility of Canada.

He referred to criticism of the intent of the exercises which has appeared in the Russian press and thought that it might have resulted from overemphasis of American and British participation.

In the first place, he said, Canada would not entertain criticism from any quarter for military investigations carried out within her own borders and in the second place Russian military attaches had an equal opportunity with British and United States officials to apply for a seat in one of the snowmobiles. In fact, Russian military men had gone to Churchill to study the expedition's program and watch its start.

There have been preliminary reports on the results of Muskox expedition, but the final report embodying various phases of the exercise will not be released until August. This report, which may be disclosed in part through a press release, will touch on various subjects ranging from discipline to mechanical developments.

Already, he said, the experts had reported on the mechanical troubles which had developed en route and suggestions had been blue-printed which would remove these problems in army vehicles used in subsequent Arctic manoeuvres. Suggestions for winter clothing improvements have also been embodied in practical plans already carried out.

Col. J. T. Wilson, army research chief who directed Muskox, has issued interim reports on the results of the expedition in all of which he has emphasized the civilian aspect of the trek.

Col. Wilson, following this argument, pointed out that no engineer who has built a bridge fails to overload it and thus test it before its opening to the public.

In the same way the Arctic was used by Muskoxers to rigidly test equipment such as engines and clothing which would be used in the less severe climates of southern Canada.

BRITISH INVENTION

London (CP)—A British invention that attracted much attention recently was a thrust borer to facilitate underground pipe and cable installation without road disturbance. This machine can be operated by one or two men and guarantees accurate alignment of each thrust tube.

Robin Hood Craze Hits Old London

London (CP)—Robin Hood and his merry men have stolen the thunder of the atom bomb. In every suburb in London, on the commons and in the parks, children are playing with bows and arrows.

Trees in gardens of bombed houses are being stripped of branches for weapons. The craze may have been inspired by a recent film.

DISPLAY ROYAL ROBES

Gore

Gore — Mr. and Mrs. Burton Redner called on Mr. and Mrs. Willie Fox and Mrs. Julia Fox Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Foley of Wellington were noon hour and afternoon guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Brickman and Audra.

The Young People's Union held their closing meeting for the winter months on Friday evening. Following their usual meeting a ball game was enjoyed and lunch and then celebrated the 24th of May with sky rockets, fire crackers, etc.

The Merry Makers Club held an afternoon tea at the home of Mrs. Mac Wallbridge on Friday when they entertained the members of the executive of the Women's Institute and also Miss Irvine a leader of the girls along with Miss Carson.

The girls put on the program then Joan Redner and Florence McFaul showed how to pack a suit case when going away for the weekend. Elda McFaul showed the ladies how to properly lay a table for two.

Minutes of last meeting were read by Anita Redner. The girls then passed their books around which they have started on their new project.

With Miss Irvine serving the tea for the occasion, refreshments were then served by Anita, Barbara and Sybil Redner, Joan Redner, Elda and Florence McFaul, Wilma and Maryland Redner.

Mrs. Elmer Young and Mrs. Mac Wallbridge, leaders of the girls' club assisted. Mrs. Wallbridge demonstrated on how to make a rose out of an orange and creamed cheese used for the decoration of the centre of a relish dish. A vote of thanks was moved the girls by Miss Audra Brickman, seconded by Mrs. H. Weese on the delightful afternoon.

Following a social hour all departed for their homes, thanking Mrs. Wallbridge for the very enjoyable afternoon.

Those who attended the W. A. Convention from Centre W. A. on Wednesday were Mrs. Keeler, Mrs. Ralph Redner and Mrs. Earl Fox.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Brickman of Quebec spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Roy Brickman and family and also Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Brickman of Belleville.

Rev. E. W. Todd was a noon hour guest on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Winston Pulver.

Mr. Everett Brickman called at Mr. Willie Fox's on Sunday morning.

Mr. Lorne Humphrey and friend of Toronto called Sunday forenoon on Mr. and Mrs. Winston Pulver.

A meeting of the trustee board was held at the home of Mr. R. Redner on Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Herb Pulver, Mrs. Melvin Pulver and Mrs. Geo. Pymer spent Wednesday with Mr. and Mrs. Earl Titterson of Chatterton, Mrs. Pymer remaining for a few days visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Green, Barbara and Bobby spent Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Green and family.

PROTECT NEO-FASCISTS FROM MOBS

The Fascist elements in Italy "L'Uomo Qualinque" or party of the common man, are subject to rough treatment from Milan crowds whenever they gather. Under the leadership of Guglielmo Giannini they have entered the electoral campaign. Here fists were flying and Italian police tried hard to control the crowds, placing several under arrest.

Australia Plans Permanent Forces

Canberra (CP)—Australian service departments are considering proposals which will provide a permanent Australian Navy, Army and Air Force strength of 60,000.

Figures under consideration provide for a standing army of 35,000, an air force of 15,000 to 20,000, and a navy of 9,000.

Family Holds Estate For 27 Generations

Brading, Isle of Wight (CP)—For nearly 900 years there have been Oglanders living at Nunwell Park—ever since the 3,000-acre estate was given to Richard d'Orglande by William the Conqueror in 1066 in recognition of the part he played in subduing the island.

Today this beautiful 50-roomed house—one of the oldest in the country—is occupied by Brig.-Gen. C. F. Aspinall-Oglander, 27th generation of Oglanders to live there.

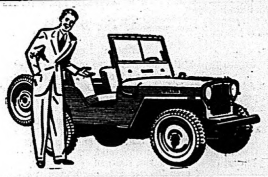
ATTENTION FARMERS



IF YOU ARE TRACTOR MINDED, COME TO THE FOLLOWING

FREE DEMONSTRATION

And see for yourself just how easy the new Universal JEEP can handle a Plow, Disc, Cultivator, or any Farm Implement, as well as drive any power machine that is belt driven or driven by power takeoff shaft.

These mighty JEEPS are absolutely guaranteed to handle any farm work and to stand up to any abuse you could possibly put them through, and to do your work more economically than you have been accustomed to.

Besides using them as a tractor, they are being used as light trucks, passenger cars, portable power units, and in the Winter time you can get a snow plow attachment that will keep your Winter roads open with ease. Without a question they are the wonder machine of the twentieth century.

SO TO SEE THE MIGHTY JEEP IN ACTION, COME TO

RAWDON TOWNSHIP, North of Stirling, Ont.
FRIDAY, MAY 31st — 1 to 5 p.m.
ON CONCESSION 4 — CLARENCE McGEE'S FARM.

After you have seen this demonstration you will be convinced that you can farm more profitably and more easily with a new Universal JEEP and that the JEEP will actually pay for itself in economy alone.

Ontario Municipalities

The annual report of Municipal Statistics for 1944 just issued by the Ontario Department of Municipal Affairs is a mine of interest to the people of every municipality and of unusual interest to those who are vitally interested in municipal affairs such as officials, members of municipal bodies and those who look forward to municipal service in council, school board or other capacity. These reports have been published for a number of years and are steadily expanding.

Something of the size and importance of Ontario can be noticed from the number of incorporated municipalities which total 942. There are 27 cities, 7 separated towns, 141 towns, 156 villages and 570 townships, 43 counties reduced to 38 for municipal administration, and 11 Northern Ontario districts.

Tax levies for 1944 amounted to $111,380,748, a decrease of $165,732 or .14 per cent from the year 1943. The per capita levy for 1944 was averaged at $31.11. Despite the additional government grants for educational purposes, the levies for education have risen by 1.1 per cent above those of the previous year and this is before any allowance was made for approximately $3,164,076 additional subsidy granted for the relief of educational costs. When determining the total levies for educational purposes, it is necessary to include with the preceding amounts levied by the local townships, the amounts which are also included in the county levies for education. County levies on municipalities included $2,318,940 for education which, added to the $43,502,006 for education of the municipalities, results in $45,820,946 attributable to education or 41.1 per cent of the total tax levies.

It is indicated that "arrears of taxes are now at the lowest amount on record with the Department. "It is believed it will not be long before the tax arrears, if this trend continues and an aggressive tax collection system is maintained, will be principally those of the current levy." This is general throughout the province.

Properties acquired for taxes increased from $12,872,522 in 1943 to $13,422,460 in 1944.

At the close of 1944 the gross debenture debt was $252,660,600 or $70.58 per capita and 8.2 per cent of assessed valuation. That has meant a reduction from the previous year of 10.2 per cent. The gross debenture debt was in 1944 at the lowest since 1919. The net debenture debt as of December 31, 1944, was 6.9 per cent of assessed valuation.

Britain's Future Road Pattern

Two schemes of long-range peacetime planning occupied the United Kingdom House of Commons recently, both aimed at speedier and more efficient communications.

The Minister of Transport, announcing a ten-year program of road building and improvement, stressed its flexibility. The program can be readily adjusted, not only to varying national and local conditions, but especially to fit the overall employment policy. Moreover, it forms the framework for town and country planning. The purposes underlying the program are: the promotion of safety, improvements to assist areas requiring new development, including better access to ports and markets, improved through communications, the rehabilitation and improvement of towns and country, especially devastated areas, better access between the home and work and the reduction of traffic congestion, and efficiency of agriculture.

During the first stage, covering the next two years, it is proposed firstly to make good the repairs neglected during the war and damage from military activities; secondly to improve particularly dangerous places; thirdly to resume schemes interrupted by the war, such as the unfinished tunnel under the Thames below London, the Severn estuary bridge and the Tyne tunnel. Roads for reconstructing the damaged cities will also be started.

The second stage, lasting to the fifth year, is to include the completion of maintenance repairs, activity on major roads, and the relief of traffic congestion. The last five years will be devoted to full reconstruction of the principal national routes. Some of these will be most economically constructed as new motor roads and some will be improvements of existing roads. New roads, for example, are projected between London and South Wales, London and Carlisle (by-passing Coventry, Birmingham, Wolverhampton, Manchester and Preston), Bristol and Hull (by-passing Birmingham, Leicester, Nottingham and Doncaster,) Hull and Liverpool (by-passing Leeds and Manchester). The existing "through" roads to be improved are: London and Plymouth, London and Southampton, London and Brighton, London and Dover, London and Ipswich, London, Doncaster, Newcastle and Edinburgh, Carlisle and Glasgow, and the Scottish network connecting Edinburgh, Glasgow, Fort William, Inverness, Stirling, Perth and Aberdeen.

It is intended to make the through roads exclusively for motor traffic, thus freeing the existing main roads from much through motor traffic, and making them safer and pleasanter for pedestrians, cyclists and local motor traffic.

Mr. Barnes explained that apart from the trunk roads, for which the Ministry is responsible, the initiative in highway improvements rests primarily with the local authorities. The Ministry and the local authorities together will undertake the preparatory work necessary to bring certain major schemes, such as the proposed new Forth Bridge, to the stage at which they could be begun at short notice if required by employment policy. Expenditure on the first year's work is estimated at eighty million pounds.

Old Testament Accuracy

Sir Charles Marston, who died at Stratford-on-Avon recently, sold his prosperous bicycle and motorcycle manufacturing business in 1925 to devote the remainder of his life and his fortune to proving the historical accuracy of the Old Testament. The noted archaelogist financed numerous expeditions whose achievements included discovery of the tombs of the Jewish Kings in Jerusalem and the walls, tombs and palaces of Jericho.

Describing some of the evidence unearthed by these expeditions, Sir Charles wrote: "In the matter of the Old Testament, the task of future students has been greatly simplified. They can now study that wonderful literature with new faith in its authenticity and in its reasonable correctness."

Modern science, Sir Charles asserted, made allowance even for miracles. The Jericho expedition in 1929 probed the Biblical story that the walls of the city fell down when Joshua's trumpets blew. Food preserved through three millenia confirmed that Jericho had indeed met a sudden end.

Maple Leaf

If they substitute the maple leaf for the coat of arms on the flag of Canada, which maple leaf will it be? Distinctive patterns are on the sugar maple, black maple, silver maple, red maple, Manitoba maple, all known in Canada, or parts of Canada, along with others to a total of 17. All are different in color, size and shape. World varieties of maple total 70. The trees vary in age, height, size and color of leaf. Age of over 100 years, height of 130 feet and leaves 19 by 21 inches are on record. Best known is the silver maple, found from the east coast westward to the Lake of the Woods. It is a slow-growing, long-lived tree. The wood is hard and strong. Average forest height is 80 feet. Sometimes it goes to 130 feet and as much as five feet in diameter.

DIAGNOSIS

"Ah," said the doctor, "it is plain
You overstuff yourself with sweets."
"No," said the patient. "Think again.
I stick to bread and simple meats."

"Strong drink, perhaps," the doctor said,
"The cause of your ill health must be."
The worried patient shook his head:
"The strongest drink I take is tea."

"Your teeth! You ought to have them 'rayed.
They're sources of infections grim."
"These are the finest dentures made,"
He said, and passed both plates to him.

"You smoke too much?" He answered, "No!
I scorn the weed, the truth to tell."
The doctor shouted: "Up and go!
If that's the case, you should be well!"

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS.

20 YEARS AGO

May 29th., 1926

Potatoes are now selling on the Belleville market at $3,00 per bag.

Mr. E. O. Keeler, Pine Street, left to day for Chicago, Ill.

The Misses Wallbridge, Geo. Street, who have been in the South of France for the winter, are now in England and will sail for home shortly.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Harman, who have been abroad for some months, expect to sail for home on June 3rd. When last heard, from they were in Paris.

Over 50,000 gallons of perfectly good beer are in process of being poured into the Moira River from the tanks of the Roy-Wolfe Brewery. The disposal of the beer is being done under the supervision of Inland Revenue officers, of the Dominion Government. The footbridge was lined today with sad citizens who watched the steady outpour.

30 YEARS AGO

May 29th., 1916

Messrs. Harry Wallace, Herbert Berkley and J. Brooks of Kamsack, Sask., are expected to arrive here shortly to join the 155th. Battalion Band. Mr. Wallace and Mr. Berkley are old Belleville boys and Mr. Brooks is a resident of Saskatchewan. All are fully qualified musicians.

Dr. R. W. Tennent of this city, who has been in the war zone for the past year, is expected to arrive home next week.

Mrs. J. A. Floyd of Mattawa, Ontario, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. R. P. Hamilton, Cedar Street.

40 YEARS AGO

May 29th., 1906

The city gas works showed a profit last year of $1,726.72 over all. At present the output of gas is 44,000 feet per day as against 15,000 feet when the works were run by the old Gas Company at the same time of year. The city council is considering borrowing $20,000.00 to extend the service in the city. Under ordinary conditions using the profits to extend the service would take ten years to supply the wants of all prospective users. Under the circumstance it would appear that the proper course for the council to pursue is to submit a bylaw at once to the ratepayers which would give the civic authorities power to issue debentures for the $20,000.00 required for the work. We believe that when the matter is properly laid before them the property owners will be almost unanimous in favor of such a bylaw. It must not be forgotten that the people who pay the taxes are the ones most interested and it is to them the proposition should be submitted.

50 YEARS AGO

May 29th., 1896

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Lake of this city have received word of the death of their son-in-law, Cyril W. Bird, which occurred on Feb. 12th last in Central Africa where he and his wife, the former Annie Lake, served as missionaries. Mr. Bird, who was 32 years of age, was in the employ of Haines & Lockett, shoe merchants here, before preparing to become a missionary. He attended Bethel Hall. He and his wife were married in Bethel Hall by the Rev. J. M. Hodson, pastor of Bridge Street Methodist Church on Jan. 14th., 1891 and they left for the mission field on February 5th.

Mr. Paul Lalonde has returned home after a very successful season with Hi. Henry's Minstrels.

LEGAL RESTRICTION

In England, for many years after the Magna Carta, a woman could not legally accuse a man of murder.

SPEED TO BURN

Naturalists say cheetahs, which resemble leopards, have been noted travelling 70 miles an hour.

JEWS AND ARABS CAN DO BUSINESS

A lot has been written about the alleged enmity between Jewish and Arab inhabitants of Palestine. There is enmity between extremists on both sides, but the ordinary Jewish and Arab people get along about as well as do the mixture of races and religions that make up the population of New York. They do business with each other, participating in trade and commerce just as if all were of the same race. Here an Arab banana merchant and his Jewish customer try to decide the problem of how many bananas make a kilo-weight. The problem eventually was solved.

CANADA-BOUND

Commander Sir Aylmer Firebrace, C.B.E., R.N. (Retired), is to receive a civic welcome and luncheon when he visits Toronto on May 28 to address the Dominion Fire Prevention Association. He is head of the British National Fire Service. Toronto fire fighters served under him in London, England.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Thinks Future Welfare Of City Depends on Wide Awake Citizenry

Editor
The Ontario Intelligencer

It is useless to dwell on what might have been unless it is to make use of our errors as a guide in future endeavors. However, there seems little doubt that the city of Belleville has not taken advantage of all the opportunities for future development, or all the possibilities involved in the expanding tourist boom. It would be unfair to ignore the obstacles created by continued government controls and restrictions, shortages, and labor troubles. It is, at the same time, nothing less than sheer self indulgence to pretend that the City Council, the Chamber of Commerce, and other civic minded organizations have exploited the opportunities of this immediate post-war period in the positive and forceful manner which the exigencies of the situation demanded.

The hotels in the city are turning away travellers every night. Salesmen are doubling up in what rooms they can find. Of what possible avail is it to prepare attractive brochures, at considerable expense to the city, when there are no accommodations for any one who might be attracted by the advertising? The tourists and visitors who are sent on to other towns today, because they cannot be accommodated here, are the ones who, next year, will not even bother to stop in Belleville.

What hope is there of influencing new business and industry to locate in Belleville, when only the most cursory examination is needed to reveal the hopeless lack of housing facilities for hundreds of families already residing in Belleville? Yet one city official informed a group who were investigating the possibilities for developing a low rental housing project here, that we had no housing problem that would not be relieved by the closing of the air force stations surrounding the city.

In a preface to an atlas of Prince Edward and Hastings counties, published in 1878, Belleville is described as being the most active and progressive town in this part of the province, and a veritable hive of industry. The picture has changed. In the life of a town there is no status quo. It either goes ahead or it slides backwards. The revitalizing influence of the war on Belleville's economic life has provided an impetus which can be developed to a logical end by imaginative and vigorous city management, enthusiastic community support, effective planning, and a more widespread and active participation in civic affairs; or, on the other hand, we can slip farther and farther back into a semi-coma of apathy and indifference, letting other towns outstrip us in wealth and progress, until in the end we become that sleepy, half-forgotten town whose glories are all in its past.

There is a choice to be made, and the sand is fast running out.

LEASE NOT VIOLATED

Cambridge, Mass., May 29 — (AP)—Having a baby doesn't violate an apartment lease under which the lessee was to be the "sole occupant," is the opinion of District Judge Edward A. Counihan. Owners of an apartment leased by Mrs. Wanda Bradley, wife of a discharged soldier, sought to evict her because, they maintained, she violated the lease when her new arrival was added as a dweller. Said Judge Counihan: "To eject a lessee in a case like this would be against public podicy. I don't want a case like it in here."

WANTS PAY FOR REPAIRS

Portland, Ore., May 29 (AP)—Carl A. Peterson, fed up with the way traffic officers gave him parking tickets mailed city auditor W. E. Gibson a bill for $6.80 to pay repairs on his windshield wiper, which Peterson explained had been broken three times by policemen attaching the tickets.

PUTREFACTION IS PART OF THE DIGESTIVE PROCESS

In a talk about the autointoxication" bunk here the other day I quoted from Howell's Textbook of Physiology (there is no better authority) this statement:

If that is too ponderous this is what it means in simplified language: Lean meat, cheese, white of egg and the living, vital part of beans, peas, wheat, indeed all animal or vegetable food that grows decomposes or rots during the healthy course of digestion. This decomposition, rotting or putrefaction is due to the germs and fungi that inhabit the healthy intestine. This part of the digestive process, which misguided Wiseacres have learned to regard as a harmful thing is essential, for it converts such food material into amino-acids, from which the body can build the various kinds of protein or living material needed for growth and repair.

Like a voice the past, one correspondent complained the other day that he could not find I forget now just which kind of fancy sour milk which he thought he needed to discourage the activities of the "harmful" germs in his colon—remember how the bunk merchants exploited that idea twenty years ago?

Another reader reporting that he was astonished to find that my advice to pay no attention to a delay of a day or two and let nature take its course was right, for he now requires no laxatives and, as he expressed it, "no longer has antointoxication if he misses a day or two"....

Even this man, who is probably of a high I.Q., persists in thinking autointoxication is real.

So far as any absorption of "toxic waste" or "poison" or anything of the sort from the intestne is concerned, I assure you, folks, it does not happen—except in the bait or come-on literature thrust into your hands by quacks and nostrum mongers.

In making this assertion I am not unmindful of the curious notions the late great sage of Battle Creek cherished about this. But then, many a doctor of his day shared some such belief. In the first six or eight years of my own practice I prescribed various "intestinal antiseptics," and queer diets to combat autointoxication from intestinal putrefaction. Our knowledge of the physiology of digestion was limited as compared with what we have learned about it since Roentgen discovered the X-ray in 1895.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Blood

Is there any difference in the consistency or thickness and thinness of blood in normal persons? Has a person living in a tropical climate thinner blood than a person living in a cold climate?

(F. W. H.)

Answer—No, to both questions. The booklet "Blood and Health" answers many similar questions and tells how to deal with anemia. For copy send ten cents and stamped self addressed envelope —a clean coin and no clipping, please.

Cod Liver Oil

Somewhere I have read that adults should take cod liver oil. Please advise if only children should take cod liver oil.

(Mrs. S. G. W.)

Answer—No reason why adults should not take cod liver oil. It is all right for children if they don't mind taking it; if they have any considerable repugnance for it they may as well take their vitamin D in pleasant or tasteless forms. Send ten cents and stamped self addressed envelope for booklet "V-I-T-E Spells Youth."

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Who said: "There is a higher law than the Constitution?"

This statement was made by William Henry Seward, anti-slavery Senator from New York, in a speech in the U. S. Senate March 11, during the debate on Henry Clay's compromise of 1850.

The context of Seward's speech shows clearly that he meant that the fugitive slave act and slavery in general, should consider moral as well as constitutional law; but he was accused of advocating measures outside of and beyond the Constitution. It is believed that this extreme statement cost him the Republican nomination for the presidency in 1856, when John C. Fremont was nominated.

Eight years later in a speech at Rochester, New York — October 25, 1858 — Senator Seward referred to the slavery struggles as "an irrepressible conflict between opposing and enduring forces."

This catch phrase further alienated moderate anti-slavery people in the North and probably cost Seward the Republican nomination in 1860, when Abraham Lincoln was nominated.

Before joining the new Republican party Seward had been a member first of the Anti-Mason party and then of the Whig party.

He was secretary of state throughout the eight years of Lincoln's and Johnson's administrations and is regarded as one of the ablest and most successful men who have ever occupied that office.

He settled the Alabama Claims with Great Britain, purchased Alaska from Russia and negotiated a treaty with Denmark for the purchase of the Danish West Indies, now known as the Virgin Islands, but the last treaty was rejected by the Senate.

Siam Complaint Poses Problem For U. N. Body

By CHARLES A. GRUMICH

New York, May 29 — (AP) — The United Nations Organization was confronted with a new problem today in the form of a Siamese complaint charging French troops in Indo-China with "unjustified aggression."

It was the first time that a non-member of the United Nations has appealed to the world peace agency, and thus presented the organization with a question on procedure. The issue was given an odd twist by the fact that Siam is a former enemy nation as well as a non-member, while France is not only a member but was an ally in the war against the Axis.

Siam's complaint was made public last night after dispatches from London quoted a British Foreign Office spokesman as saying Britain would support any Siamese move to bring before the Security Council ner current border dispute with Indo-China.

The Siamese complaint accused French troops of crossing the Mekong River on May 24-25-26 and "forcibly seizing Siamese territory which they continue to hold." The territory in question apparently was part of the area ceded to Siam in 1941 by the old French Vichyite regime in Indo-China.

Pribe Panymyong, president of the Siamese Council of Ministers, said the French attack "must be considered concerted action against Siamese sovereignty and the preservation of peace," and asked the U. N. for "your sympathy, assistance and co-operation."

The Siamese statement said no resistance had been offered to the French and that the incidents seriously affected rice-production for famine-stricken areas.

Mr. Panymyong complained that "the dislocation and the disturbance of my people, for which French aggression is solely responsible, compromises in the most serious manner the efforts of my country to assist in feeding the famine-stricken area."

Under the terms of peace with Britain, Siam must pay 1,500,000 tons of rice in reparations.

The Security Council is now in indefinite recess awaiting further reports on the Soviet-Iranian case.

45 Cases Heard In Police Court

Trenton—Forty-five cases were heard in Trenton Police Court before Magistrate T. Y. Wills and B. C. Donnan, Crown Attorney.

Ross Eric Masters, West Street, was fined $10 and $6 costs on a charge of dangerous driving. He was also fined $25 plus $2.50 costs for leaving the scene of an accident. Masters was proceeding east on Dundas Street at a high rate of speed and struck a parked car owned by Harold B. Stinson, 466 Front Street, damaging it to the extent of $166, but failed to stop. When apprehended by police, Masters admitted his guilt.

George Alfred Anderson and John A. Goodwin appeared on 4 charges of theft each. On the four charges Anderson was found guilty and sentenced to 6 months definite and 6 months indefinite at the Ontario Reformatory. On a charge of being intoxicated he received 10 days concurrent to run with the 6 months indefinite. Goodwin was also found guilty on all four charges and sentenced to 6 months definite and 6 months indefinite.

Given Suspended Sentence

Kenneth R. Smith and Farley Grant Burrows both appeared on charges of assault. Smith received suspended sentence for 1 year and paid $21.50 costs. Burrows received suspended sentence for one year and paid $31.00 costs.

Charles Potts was charged with assaulting T. A. Sine in a local beverage room. Police were called and Sine complained that Potts had struck him in the stomach. Sine was taken to the office of Dr. Byrne. The case was enlarged to June 18th.

Guilty of Assault

Ross Vaughan of Toronto pleaded guilty to assaulting police and got 6 days to date from May 23. He was also charged with trespassing on the railway, found guilty on the evidence and received 6 days to date from May 23rd. Parker Wallace, his companion, appeared on the same charge and got 6 days.

LAC. Charles Edward Walsh, of 6 RD, appeared on a charge of dangerous driving, also charged with leaving the scene of an accident. On the dangerous driving charge he was fined $10 and $18 costs. For leaving the scene of an accident he was fined $25 and costs of $2.50.

Raymond Tanghe of Quebec province was fined $30 for leaving the scene of an accident and a breach of the Highway Traffic Act. Tanghe struck a very valuable dog on Victoria Avenue and failed to stop and report the accident to police. A local citizen secured the license number of his car and he was apprehended by police at Cobourg.

Case Again Enlarged

A local merchant facing three charges under Wartime Prices and Trade Board regulations had his case enlarged to June 11.

Alfred L. Morrison, Norman R. Kuhn, Clarence Whaley, Gerald Lafferty, Larry Best, Herbert Webb, Wm. C. Ryckman and Jack Glenn paid the usual $13 each for being intoxicated.

6 speeders paid the usual $7.50.

For failing to obey the traffic light it cost Harry Mountenay and John H. Ketcheson $4.50 each.

Harvey Johnston and Jack D. Hodge paid the usual $2 each for breach of the parking by-law.

Fred L. Badgerow appeared on a charge of non-support and was ordered to pay $13 weekly.

How Danes Made Movies of Resistance To Hun Aggressors

Copenhagen, May 29 (AP) — During the final weeks of the German occupation of Denmark, one film company here began filming the story of Danish resistance to the Nazis.

Resistance leaders provided them with 20 German uniforms by waylaying Nazi soldiers at night, stripping them and tossing them into the nearest doorway. When Lauritzen said he needed a German Major's uniform for one scene, the Danish underground leader replied:

"That's a little more difficult. I guess we will have to kill one. But don't worry. We won't get any holes in his uniform."

At this period patriotic Danes were also busy dubbing out their own collaborators. They cornered one on the fourth floor of a building.

Someone called an ambulance and when the driver drove up to the door and called "where is the injured man?" —one of the resistance men shouted down here he comes!" And they tossed him down to the pavement from a fourth-floor window.

This resistance movie—"Red Acres"—has become popular throughout Europe and Lauritzen hopes it will be the first Danish film to have a wide showing in America. Hitherto Copenhagen-produced pictures have been shown only to Danish clubs in the United States.

Field of Designs Reduced to Two

Ottawa, May 29 (CP)— Suggestion that filibuster might be in prospect was made at a lively session of the parliamentary flag committee yesterday at which the field of designs was reduced to two—a red ensign with a maple leaf and a flag composed of red and white triangles with a green maple leaf.

The elimination was made by motion after 32 members of the 37-man committee had voted for the designs as follows:

1. A red ensign with a golden maple leaf in the fly in place of the traditional coat of arms; designed by Donald Baird of Truro, N.S.; 18 votes.
2. A flag composed of red and white triangles bearing a green maple leaf in the centre of the diagonal line separating the two colors; designed by La Ligue Du Drapeau National of Quebec; 10 votes.
3. A white ensign with a red maple leaf in a red circle in the fly bearing four diagonal blue stripes; designed by J. W. Leroy Holman of Summerside, P. E. I., three votes; eliminated.
4. A flag with a silver and red crown on a blue canton in the masthead corner and three red maple leaves on a white field in the fly, designed by Col. A. F. Duguid, army heraldry expert; one vote; eliminated.

Aussie Jay-Walkers Cause of Accidents

Sydney, Australia (CP)—State authorities in New South Wales are considering a campaign to improve the behavior of pedestrians who are blamed for 1,443 traffic accidents last year.

Twenty were killed and 238 injured crossing roads casually; 12 were killed and 161 injured running across roads; 13 were killed and 191 injured because of carelessness due to over-drinking; six were killed and 63 injured by walking with their backs to oncoming traffic; 10 were killed and 70 injured because of hesitation in front of approaching cars.

Loan to France To Help Nation's Rehabilitation

Washington, May 29 — (AP)— France turned with renewed vigor today to the job of getting back on her feet backed by a loan of $1,370,000,000 from the United States.

The two countries made a number of agreements in connection with the credit arrangement which President Truman and French President Felix Gouin announced jointly last night. The loan talks began here 12 weeks ago.

In addition to the credit the United States promises these things:

1. To help France sell her goods here. This might mean an ultimate reduction in American tariffs on French goods.
2. An additional credit — of perhaps $25,000,000—to buy about 750,000 tons of American shipping.

France, in turn, pledged itself not to raise its tariffs on American products and joined with the United States and Britain in their campaign to expand world trade through lowered tariffs everywhere.

Of the $1,370,000,000 total, France will get:

1. A direct loan of $650,000,000. The interest is three per cent, it must be repaid in 25 years.
2. Credit for $720,000,000 more. The interest is 2½ per cent. This must be repaid in 35 years.

If France has a year of "extraordinary and adverse economic conditions" — the U. S. will decide on this — France in that year can defer repayment completely.

As a result of the agreement, the U. S. wrote off $266,000,000 in lend-lease supplied to France during the war. France's reverse lend-lease to the United States was about $800,000,000.

Questions and Answers

Readers may direct their questions, giving their name and address and mentioning the name of this paper to Information Branch, WPTB, 490 Sussex Street, Ottawa.

Q. How many cans of evaporated milk should I get for one coupon and how much should I pay?

A. You are entitled to purchase 96 ounces of evaporated milk with each coupon . . . that is six 16 ounce tins. This milk sells for 10c a can in some stores and 11c in others depending on what they charged for the same brand in 1941. Some times the larger stores will sell six cans for 58c as a special sale price.

Q. I am boarding in a home where I have one room and two meals each day. The landlady wants the room for her daughter and has given me notice to vacate. How much notice must she give?

A. As you are a boarder and taking your meals in this home you are only entitled to one week's notice if you pay your rent weekly and one month's notice if you pay monthly.

Q. The other day I bought 3 phonograph records and was surprised to find that I was charged five cents more on each record than I have paid in the past. Was this dealer correct in boosting his prices?

A. Yes . . . price ceiling regulations on phonograph records were suspended by the Prices Board on May 11, although if prices rise too sharply on any items suspended from ceiling the Board will consider re-imposition of ceiling prices.

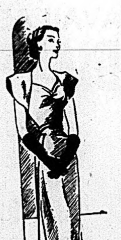
Q. I lost two ration books some time ago and was unable to buy sugar with coupons I had saved. The books have now been located. Is there any way I can use these coupons?

A. Sorry the coupons which you still have in your books became invalid some time ago and are no longer of any use. It would be illegal for you to present them for the purchase of sugar and illegal for any shopkeeper to accept them.

Q. Last week I bought a pair of overalls for which I paid nearly double the price I paid last spring for the same make and when I asked the storekeeper about the price he said that last month he was allowed to increase his prices on all work clothing. Is this correct?

A. Although price increases were authorized by the Prices Board last month these increases should not in any case exceed 25 per cent on any one article. As you have mentioned the name of the shop charging this excessive price, we have notified out investigation branch and this merchant's prices are being investigated.

Simple Beauty



Mauve-pink evening dress.

By VERA WINSTON

THE EVENING frock that relies on line, fine workmanship and fabric to carry it through to success, is always an easy winner. It requires no extrancous detail and is beautiful whether it is a foil for jewelry or unadorned, as shown here. The fabric is silk crepe in a delicate mauve-pink, and the design accents what appears to be a matching apron. Sewn part way down on the skirt it does form a panel in front with the draped waistline tied into a soft bow in back. The sleeves, broad and loose, are lined with purple taffeta. The bodice has a softly draped bustline.

Holloway Y.P.U. Holds Banquet To Close Year

Members of Holloway Street United Church Young People's Union, Tuesday evening, observed the near conclusion of another successful season's work when in their League rooms they held their annual closing banquet with representatives from district Y.P.U. groups in attendance.

Approximately 85 young people attended the closing banquet which was presided over by Miss Maude Burke, president of the Holloway Y.P.U. Guest speaker for the evening was Rev. Wilbur Howard, B.A., Toronto, interdenominational boys' work secretary for Ontario.

Referring to present day conditions, Mr. Howard stated the young people of today had permitted a multiplicity of living to take the place of quality. He likened God to an all-consuming fire which consumed all which was unworthy.

The world of today needed an all-consuming fire, according to Mr. Howard. It needed something which would destroy the mistrust among nations and permit the peoples of the world to get along together. The world needed Christian convictions which blended into everyday life, rather than that which was turned off following church attendance on the Sabbath.

Toast to Church

Introduction of the guest speaker was by Myrn Richardson, while appreciation was expressed by Miss Margaret Hillis. The toast to the Church was proposed by Rev. Charles Perkins with response by Ray Gunsolus, while the the toast to the young people of the United Church was proposed by Don Williams with response by Harry Denton. Isobel Richardson proposed the toast to the guests to which Phyllis Davis of Frankford, responded.

Musical entertainment during the program was provided by Alec Gordon who rendered a piano solo in three part numbers, while Miss Norma Arkles led in a spirited sing-song with Miss Anne Clare as accompanist. Miss Doris Scott expressed appreciation of the young people to members of the Women's Association who catered to the banquet.

Spoke of Summer Camp

Rev. Lloyd Shorten, of Foxboro United Church told of plans for "galloping" leadership training classes which will be conducted in the various churches, and also spoke of the annual summer camp at Oak Lake. Miss Jean Badgley referred to early season program of the Holloway Street Church tennis club.

Another feature of the evening was the presentation of a gift from the Y.P.U. to Rex Chaplin and Lois Liddle, who are to be married on Saturday.

In a fitting gesture to show appreciation to their leader of the past season, members of the Y.P.U. presented a book, "The Citadel" to Miss Burke, the presentation being made by Miss Richardson.

A Distressing Hair Ailment Requiring Medical Attention

By HELEN FOLLETT

THERE is a very distressing hair ailment called alopecia areata and, let us hope, my paper friends, that you never experience it. In a single day the hair may fall, leaving a bald spot, sometimes the size of a silver dollar. One gets up in the morning, and there it is. There may be several bald areas. It is enough to make the heart sick.

Children and young people suffer from this affliction more than individuals of middle age or advanced years. Some specialists believe that the cause is parasitic, others say frankly that they do noe know. Which doesn't mean much to a girl who finds dreadful vacant spaces staring at her from the mirror.

Various Treatments

Dermatologists have various treatments that restore the normal growth; that is why professional help should be sought, though many times the trouble will correct itself. However, medical care may ward off other spots that may be on the way.

Usually, within six weeks, there will appear a light fuzzy growth on the naked area. It may be lighter than the normal color of the hair; it may even be white. This first growth soon fluffs away. Then the permanent hair comes in, of the natural shade.

Vigorous Massage

The purpose of massage is to stimulate the blood streams, from which the silky shafts get food, drink and lodgings. Use the oil as hot as the flesh can bear. Do rotary movements with the finger tips. Endeavor to pick up the flesh, roll it between the fingers and release it from close contact with the scalp.

Give the glorious mop special attention to prevent a recurrence of the trouble. Shampoo every week or so with a liquid soap or one of the cream or oil preparations that are now so popular. Give the hair a vigorous brushing once a day.

Huge Handbags

By ALICE ALDEN

HUGE HANDBAGS seem to show no signs of relinquishing their popularity. The big bag and the over-the-shoulder bag seem at home no matter what the costume, the time of day, the season, or the section of the country. Straight from California comes this picture of movie starlet Martha Vickers wearing a light spring suit as a background for her Ben Brody bag. China pin point plastic is used for this whopper which has shirring across the top, and a broad handle finished with a large gold-plated belt buckle.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A Rumor Made Him Jilt Her— So She Married For Spite

Anybody who can solve the mystery of why people act on rumors, before bothering to check on their truth or lack of it, should get the Nobel Prize or a reasonable facsimile thereof.

You'd think the logical thing do not. What they seem to do designed to shake your confidence in someone you love, would be to go straight to the person in question and say, "How come?" Then you'd get the story straight.

But do most people do anything as sensible as that? They do not. That they seem to do most often is rush off half-cocked and commit the worst blunder they can think of at the moment, with apparently the idiotic idea that the mess they make of everything will make somebody sorry. And generally nobody ends up being sorry but themselves.

That's the sort of foolishness that brings about a situation like this:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"Perhaps the best way I can begin is to tell you I married for spite. You see, Jim and I loved each other since we were children. Then the war came along and he was drafted. After several leaves, when he spent all his time with me, we became engaged and planned to be married on his next furlough.

"Through some misunderstanding Jim heard I was to be married, and before he learned it was untrue he met and married a girl within a month's time. All this he explained to me later.

"I was so angry because I was 'jilted,' that I married a man I did not love just to spite Jim, and by doing so made my life very miserable. My husband knows I do not love him, and he feels the some about me, but neither will consent to a divorce because of the children.

"Jim has his divorce and wants to take up where we left off. I love Jim, but I can't give up my two children, and yet I can't live like I am any longer. Could you tell me if I divorced my husband would I get custody of my children? Do you think Jim and I could be happily married? We both realize our mistake and are willing to start over again.

"Very Discontented"

If your present husband is willing to give up the children without contesting your divorce action, you could undoubtedly get custody of them. But it seems to me you'd be a thorough-going weakling if you called off this marriage for no better reason than you apparently have.

Neither you nor your Jim seem to feel the slightest responsibility for the happiness of the people you each married to spite the other. You used these people as a means of revenge at the time, and now, because being married to them no longer suits your purposes, you have no scruples in throwing them aside. What kind of people are you, anyhow?

You say you're both "willing to start over again. Well, that's very white of you. And what about the people whose lives the two of you are ruining between you? They've got to start over again, too, remember, and maybe it won't be as easy for them as it will for you and Jim, who are looking forward to being with each other.

If you have any conscience and any character at all, you'll stop trying to figure out ways of getting out from under the results of what you've brought on yourself. You'll stop thinking that your own happiness is all that matters and will begin thinking about others, for a change, and especially about what you owe the man you married for such unworthy reasons. You'll make up your mind to do your best to give him what you owe him and that is, to bury the past, accept the responsibility for your early tragic foolishness and make a sincere attempt to give your husband and children a happy home. If you went at it in such a spirit, you might really succeed, you know, and be surprised to find that you're happy, too.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Breathe deeply; get chesty

Do you know that you can pluck prettier cheek roses out of the air than any you can dip out of the rouge jar? It is a fact. The main trouble with beautifying practices is that we prefer the synthetic. The compact will lay on the factory blush in less than thirty seconds. To create the real one we have to do a little work that takes time. But aren't the results worth it?

Deep breathing accomplishes the following things: it awakens the blood streams, makes them dance and prance, and that's good for a lot of the troubles of little Pale Face. The brain, fed by the freshly aerated blood, becomes alert and refreshed. Keep that in mind when you are down in the dumps; put on your seven league boots, beat it out into the open.

When taking long, deep inhalations, you wash out your lungs, make them laugh. The muscles of the abdomen get exercise that they rarely or never get in the sedentary life. The chest is expanded. There is a distinctly beneficial effect upon the nervous system.

Whenever you conclude that life is kicking you around, and that you can't keep going, lie down flat on your back, take long, deep breaths for ten or fifteen minutes. You'll be surprised.

The deeper the breath, the farther the diaphragm is forced into the abdomen, giving the liver and the intestinal tract a sort of messabe that helps them to function normally. The air is forced into the very cellar of the lungs. Exhalations should be slow and executed with a certain amount of force to send away the stagnant air. As one exhales, the diaphragm lifts up into the chest cavity. The girl whose collar bones are little shelves should do deep breathing exercises every day for at least ten minutes, as should the girl who bawls because she puts up a poor front with chest flattened.

When doing air-washing, stand tall, hands on hips, head balanced. Keep the abdomen drawn in at all times, if you would have an attractive figure.

Lapping up the ozone will help the pint-sized girl to grow taller. Growth continues until the age of eighteen, as a rule, sometimes longer. Forces that contribute to normal bony development are fresh air, sunshine, exercise and the correct diet. Breathe fresh air continually, bask in the sunshine, romp and play.

Milk is the best of growers; it contains calcium, which is necessary for bone construction. Cereals provide phosphates. Liver provides iron. Green fresh vegetables will give one vitamins. Besides these of course one should have meat, poultry, fish, fruits and root vegetables.

City Slicker Dress

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Corsage Problems for Junior-Senior Banquet

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Do you think it's good taste for High School girls to wear orchids to their Junior-Senior banquet? Our High School is a rather small school, each junior and senior is buying her own corsage, and while some of the girls can afford to buy orchids, others cannot.

D. S.

You have two questions here: (1) Is it good taste for High School girls to wear orchids to a simple school affair, and (2) Is it kind for girls to indulge in an extravagance beyond the means of their schoolmates? (1) To my taste orchids are too sophisticated for teenage girls to wear, particularly to a school affair (in the language of flowers the meaning of orchid is "grandeur"). And (2) not only would these High School girls show better taste to wear flowers appropriate to their age, but also in buying simple flowers that the other girls can afford, they would be revealing their thoughtful and human consideration. Much more charming than the expensive and elaborate orchid for these corsages would be one or two small gardenias, a cluster of sweetheart roses or the somewhat larger Pinocchio roses or Talisman rosebuds or sweetpeas. And for wearing in the hair there is a wide and imaginative choice of simple and lovely blossoms.

Informal House Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

At my informal house wedding next month, my attendant and I are wearing street-length dresses. Should we wear hats? I am going to carry a small white Bible. . .should I wear gloves? Should my mother wear a hat?

A. K.

Is isn't necessary for you and your attendant to wear hats, but you may, if you think that hats add harmony to your ensemble. You should not wear gloves. And your mother, who will be the hostess in her own home, should not wear a hat.

Announcing Daughter's Marriage

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My daughter, who is in the service is planning to marry before she comes home. I am having the marriage announcements engraved. Do you think that I should send them out as soon as she is married? Or would it be proper to wait until she comes home, have a dinner party for a few of her intimate friends, announce the marriage at the dinner, and mail the formal announcements the following day?

S. M.

My advice is that you abide by the customary pdocedure. . mail the marriage announcements as soon as possible after the ceremony has been performed. I don't see any point in waiting until after the dinner to mail the announcements. The dinner you are planning to give when your daughter arrives home would then be given to celebrate the marriage, not to announce it.

No denying the smartness of navy with white. Navy alpaca makes a smart dress, a band of white pique marking the round neckline. Wide button-on cuffs of white pique, and two pique darts at the waist.

Fashion Flashes

NOWADAYS a hat shop looks like a flower garden in full bloom. A delightful hat of the ageless type, is a bottle green straw on padre lines banked with pale blue and yellow blossoms touched with pussywillows and finished with tiny green and brown velvet bows.

Gracious elegance is the keynote of many of the new evening suits. A black crepe sheath has the top fashioned of palest pink lace over nude chiffon, the top part of the bodice frosted lightly with tiny silver beads. Over the bodice is a bolero with the curved front cut away to disclose the lace and give the effect of a wide, curved, bare midriff.

Travel- light-wardrobes take building up, centreing about double duty items such as a belted three-quarter length coat of white wool jersey trimmed with a large, stylized flower in multicolored sequins. Can be worn for daytime, afternoon or evening, and even over a beach suit for cabana wear.

Styles come and go, but one style that endures is the casual felt hat made with high draped crown, and dipping brim. It is trimmed with simple ribbon band and cocade. Just now these hats are high style in pale pastels.

Cool days bring out interesting suits. An attractive suit is in black silk crepe in a ribbed weave. The jacket buttons under a fold and the skirt continues the line in a folded pleat. Top is of pale gold silk crepe with black polka dots and has a bow-tied neckline that forms a cascading scarf over the jacket. Matching cuffs on the bracelet-length sleeves.

Washington Looms as Latest Stumbling Block in Boston's Pennant Path as Race Tightens

Excellent Mound Staff With Hitting in the Clutches is the Answer

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

Washington's five-star pitching staff, with its accent on dipping knucklers and darting butterfly pitches, looms as the latest stumbling block in Boston's pennant path.

Only seven games off the Red Sox pace, and a scant half game out of the runnerup spot, Ossie Bluege's Nationals have "fluttered" into the flag chase on a sizzling two-week record of 11 victories in their last 13 starts.

The ancient Johnny Niggeling and Dutch Leonard each have accounted for three decisions in the recent hot streak, Niggeling going all the way three successive times. Roger Wolff, Mickey Haefner and Walt Masterson of the starting contingent each have one verdict and Sid Hudson and Rae Scarborough triumphed on relief.

Leonard's latest success was a neat 2-1 effort against New York last night, spoiling both Bill Dickey's home debut as Joe McCarthy's successor and the Yankee Stadium's first night game.

Larry Macphail outdid himself with the finest lighting plant in baseball floodlights but the Yankees still couldn't see Leonard's flitting "dipsy doodles." Topcoat weather, a threat of rain and a chilly wind combined to cut the opening attendance to 48,895 paid, still the largest after-dark crowd of the season.

Tigers Close on Leaders

Detroit also closed on the leaders. Freddy Hutchinson accounted for his second victory, 6-1, allowing only five Cleveland hits.

Chicago White Sox ripped off their fourth straight triumph for their new skipper, Ted Lyons, slugging three St. Louis Browns hurlers for 15 hits and a 9-2 romp The Red Sox were rained out against Philadelphia.

In the National, Brooklyn lead was sliced to two games on a combination of St. Louis' 12-2 slaughter of Chicago and New York's night-game edge over the Dodgers.

Dick Sisler finally hit his home run stride and pounded a round tripper with the bases loaded in an eight-run Cardinal fifth frame.

Lefty Dave Koslo did a seven-hit job on the Brooks for his 4th success, snapping Brooklyn's seven-game victory string. Pittsburgh put on a big inning, scoring four in the seventh, to overcome Cincinnati 6-3.

What's Doing in Sport

(By The Associated Press)

Mexico's Davis Cup team arrived in Montreal yesterday to prepare for its first-round North American series against Canada June 13 to 15. Eliminations are still being held to determine the members of the Canadian team, with Don McDiarmid of Ottawa, and Henri Rochon and George Robinson of Montreal, undefeated to date in the Round-Robin series.

The United States turf's money-winning table may be due for a shuffle tomorrow when First Fiddle and Armed go after the rich suburban handicap at Belmont Park. First Fiddle threatens Sea-Biscuit's old on second place among the money winners and Armed has a chance to pass Exterminator as the leading gelding.

Ian Patey, a former champion, went down to defeat at the hands of Leonard Crawley in the day's chief upset in British amateur play at Southport yesterday, but other British and American favorites survived second and third round match play. All three American entries are still in the running.

St. Louis Cardinal Pitcher Johnny Beazley, who has gone the route only once this season, is returning home to check his ailing right arm, Manager Eddie Dyer announced last night. Beazley lasted 1 1-3 innings against Chicago Cubs yesterday.

BATTA WINS 5-3 FROM LATTA IN OPENING GAME

Jerry Stojan Scatters Six Hits Over the Seven-Inning Route

Scattering six hits over the seven-inning route, Jerry Stojan, Batawa righthander held the Latta nine to three runs in the opening game of the City and District Baseball League in "Shoetown" Monday night, and walked off the diamond with a 5-3 win tucked under his belt.

Stojan stopped the Latta batters cold in every innings but the 4th and he should have repeated in that chukker, but his mates got careless and errors plus a single paved the way for the only three runs of the pastime for the visitors. Stojan struck out six and walked four.

Doc Empson's brigade failed to back up Clark, their pitcher both at the bat and in the field. They threw the ball around with abandon especially in the 4th when their bobbles plus a lone hit enabled three Shoemakers to cross the plate. Clark was touched for seven hits all told and struck out two walking none.

Take Two-Run Lead

Bata took a two-run lead in the second innings. Muffet went out, pitcher to first and Smith lined a single to left centre. Aquino got on, on a Latta error and Peacock lined out a hit to right field scoring Smith. Aquino dashed home on a passed ball, Stojan forced Peacock at second and Harry smacked out the third hit of the inning. Solmes went out to end the frame.

Errors were largely instrumental on the Bata trio of runs in the 4th. Peacock, first man, got the only hit, and all runs were scored on bobbles after Clark had whiffed the next two batters.

Latta scored all three runs in the fourth on a similar exhibition on the part of the Shoemen. Rogers drove in two runs with the only hit of the chukker, and the other run came in on Bata errors. Empson and Chapman got two hits each for the losers with Smith, Peacock and Harry doing likewise for Batawa.

Sports Roundup

(By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.)

New York, May 29. (AP)—Why Lennart Strand was given a clean slate when other Swedish star runners were convicted of collecting too much expense money was cleared up when Honest Lennart reached here yesterday. He has only been running in serious competition about a year. . . Lennart started out as an oarsman and didn't begin running until he mingled in a few army contests. . . When the army took him—as a motorcycle dispatch rider—a substitute took his place in his club's four-oared crew, he explains ruefully the crew then won the championship of Sweden. . . Strand is here for a brief outdoor season (He has promised to run in Sweden July 8) and he isn't sure about coming back to run indoors. . . 'I'd like to see a race before running on boards, not start in like Gunder Haegg, just 48 hours off a boat," Strand explained. . . . How did he like the sidewalks of New York?. . ."I don't like sidewalks—in New York, or Malmoe, either."

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

The SACOS-Mountain View softball game, scheduled for tonight at 6:30 at the Fair Grounds here has been diverted to the Mountain View diamond, owing to alterations to the diamond here still being underway, League President Al. Hitchon announced today. The diamond, it is stated, is expected to be in playing shape by the end of the week.

• • •

Allan Kelleher, young baseball star of this city, has ben released by the Kingston Ponies management, it was learned today, and the youthful southpaw is expected to remain for the season in the Limestone City where he is said to have signed with the Locos senior team. Kelleher is well thought of by the Ponies' management, but he needs experience and seasoning before being ready for the pro ranks. However, he has lots of time for he is only seventeen.

• • •

"Moose" Matthews and his Trenton Flyers baseball squad are having a strenuous time trying to shake off an injury jinx. Out in Batawa the other night, while playing an exhibition tilt, Lee, their ace catcher broke a finger trying to spear a fast ball, and another player strained the ligaments in a leg. The other night at the Alemite Field, Kerr, another first-string player suffered a severe injury when he strained a muscle or tendon in the groin, while swinging at a fast one. He was carried off the field on a stretcher.

• • •

Those young chaps you see galloping around the Alemite Field prior to any ball game, armed with pencil and score-pad, may be the sports editors and baseball writers of the future. They are the proteges of "Red" Townsend, who last year started a unique innovation in sports circles here. He inaugurated a course of baseball-scoring instruction, and the idea has caught on like wildfire with a number of BCI students.

• • •

At present, "Red" has about ten in the class and the youngsters are taught how to score games, by chalk talks, illustrated lectures and verbal instruction. They are showing more enthusiasm than six bobby-soxers at a nylon sale, and they are to be seen at anything that looks like a baseball or softball game, taking down the official statistics.

• • •

The student scorers are tested by scoring actual games and examinations are held in the same manner. The kids show exceptional promise, according to "Red" and one or two of them at the present time, are very proficient with pencil and score-sheet. In fact, one of them was the official scorer at the Latta-Batawa game in Shoetown the other night, and his box score and summary appears in today's edition.

• • •

Townsend thinks highly of his students and predicts that in a year or so, the lads will rate with the best baseball statisticians in this district.

• • •

They almost called out the Reserve Army, the Marines, the Fire Department and the Governor General's Foot Guards the other night down Montreal way, when it was reported that a miniature atomic bomb had exploded in the Forum, and was wreaking havoc with the seats, the ring and the populace in general.

• • •

However, it was not an atomic bomb, nor an elephant gone berserk, merely one Wladyslaw Talun, Ponderous Pole who, not satisfied with his treatment by Montreal rasslers and fans, had proceeded to break up the Forum into tiny pieces, and let the chips fall where they may. It seems the Pole went wild when spectators, scores of them, jumped on the ring apron, and kicked and punched him, while a few of the braver ones stood in the background and merely heaved chairs in his general direction.

• • •

A big wrestler named Miquet, 260 pounds of pachydermic brawn and muscle, peeled off his coat, leaped into the ring and attempted to restrain Wady. The Pole promptly hung one of his slow sledgehammer drops on Miquet's proboscis, and the fight was on. It was some time before the Pole cleared the ring, and dared all of Montreal to come and get him.

• • •

And that's the bloke who wrestles with Whipper Watson here on Friday night. If he develops another of those berserk rages, Manager Walt Gerow might have to walk to Rossmore to work on Friday morning, for that's where the remnants of the Arena are liable to be, if Wady sees "red".

• • •

"Speedy" St. Louis' Kiwanis Juniors, fresh from their victory over Lefty Whitman's Stewart Warners in the City Baseball League opener, take on the hard-hitting Napanee squad at the Alemite Grounds tonight. Walt. Gerow's umpires have been ordered to shout "Play Ball" sharp at six-thirty of the clock, so if you want a good seat, better tell the better half to have the supper ready so you can trot up there in plenty of time.

• • •

Prexy Don Thomas, of the Baseball loop has called a conclave of the league's arbiters for the near future, and the pad and mask fraternity will go into a huddle over ways and means to give the teams and fans the best service possible. The League, according to the president, will not stand for any half-hearted play, or monkey-shines on the part of the umps, and they must present a neat appearance, call games on scheduled time, and in general conduct themselves as gentlemen. They will be fully protected by the executives, but at the same time, they must adhere to the rules and regulations of the game so that all concerned will be satisfied.

• • •

It is a good move on the part of President Thomas and his master-minds. Fans, generally do not want to see sloppily dressed umpires any more than they do sloppy decisions, or plays. Clothes may not make the man in this respect, but they go a long way towards pepping up the game, and making baseball, in this city at least, the popular sport it was some years ago.

CONN IS SHARP AND READY TO MEET JOE LOUIS

Down to 182½ Pounds and Confident He Will Win the Title from Bomber

By JOHN D. HAMILTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Greenwood Lakes, N.J., May 29—(CP)—With nearly a month to go before he meets Joe Louis for the heavyweight boxing championship of the world, Billy Conn is sharp as a razor and cocky as a terrier.

The 28-year-old Pittsburgh Irishman, who was knocked out in the 13th round of his 1941 meeting with Louis, is down to 182 1-2 pounds and confident of victory. He talks easily and casually of his chances and declares with obvious sincerity: "I wish the fight was tomorrow."

Veteran observers who have watched both Conn and Louis in training see Billy's point. Louis, who started training some time after Conn, is still considerably overweight. He has been slow getting into shape and Conn is rated as better bet right now, whereas three weeks of hard training can help Louis a lot. Conn followers are a little worried that their fighter may be a little too fine for this stage of training. "He might stale off some," they say.

But Billy isn't worried about it. He's more concerned about the gate.

As he talked to reporters at this clean and comfortable training camp in Northern New Jersey's green, wooded hills, he mused: "If I only had $500,000 I'd be satisfied. Who'd want to work if he had $500,000?"

Conn won't make $500,000 on the June 19 battle, despite the fact that promoter Mike Jacobs estimates the gate will go well above $3,000,000. There are too many taxes and too many expenses to pay. But if he gets the title away from Joe, Conn will be on his way to his retirement fund.

"Sure, I feel swell," he told the fight writers. "I'm right down there. Weight 182 1-2 now and I'll weigh in at 180 or under. That's my best weight. I was 174 when I met Joe before."

Conn's appearance supported his words. He still overlaps his trunks a bit at the waist but his legs are hard and the punching muscles in his shoulders are like jumping snakes.

"Nervous? Why? There was 64,000 out there before. All it means to me is the gate. I only see the flare of guys lighting cigarets anyway. They can build the bleachers out to Philadelphia and I won't care."

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By MEL SUFRIN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Vancouver, May 29 — (CP) — The jigsaw puzzle of Canadian amateur golf is awaiting the resumption of the Canadian amateur championship tourney in Edmonton July 29 to set the pieces straight.

After a wartime lapse of seven years since the last Dominion airing in 1939, the question of who's who in the Canadian amateur show is nigh on unanswerable.

In British Columbia, however, the situation has just untangled itself.

And surprising enough, it was not the Canadian amateur golf champion, Kenny Black of Vancouver Glen Oaks, who came out on top in the B. C. amateur tourney.

It was a rookie link artist, Lyle Hurschman, skipper of a tugboat on the Fraser River, who first took up golf five years ago for relaxation. He made the experts sit up and take notice when he rolled through the preliminaries and then took Black's measure with a three and two win in the 36-hole final.

A comparative unknown before he entered his first B. C. tourney, Hurschman was a surprise from the start as he knocked out such experts as Hugh Morrison, Vancouver City champion, and the highly touted Monty Hill.

It was in the semi-final that he met a young golfer who also gave promise of a brilliant future. He was 17-year-old Bill Mawhinney who had moved into the semi-final round by disposing of starry Lou Stafford, Portland, Ore., amateur.

At home in the cream of coast amateurs at the age of 17, Mawhinney should be right in with the best of golfers anywhere in a few years.

It isn't cricket — or it didn't look like cricket when they fancied up the respectable and time-honored pastime here last week. An all-day cricket match was embroidered with a play-by-play broadcast, a gymnastic display and a 40-piece band.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

LESSON NO. 998
By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

With your eyes wide open, you may be dreaming. But it does not prevent you from making the correct blind lead. Your lead is blind when you have had no tip as to which suit partner prefers.

When you start with a blind lead, you are practically on your own. You must make your decision without knowing what partner may have. Your selection is best determined by rule.

For a blind lead, your first choice is an honor top. With no honor top, your second choice is fourth best of a long suit. With no honor top or long suit lead, last choice is highest of a short.

When partner has bid a suit, your lead is not blind. You know of a suit that partner may like to have you lead. He has virtually asked you to lead that suit. It is a directed lead.

Thus, when you lead partner's bid suit, it is a directed lead. In a directed suit, do you know which card to lead? Your basis for a blind lead tells you. The same goes for a directed lead.

If the directed suit is headed by a sequence, lead the sequence top. If headed by A K with others, lead the king as is customary.

If it has no sequence and is at least four cards long, lead the fourth best. If it has only three cards or less, lead the highest.

Suppose the opponents have ended in a spade contract after your partner had bid hearts. If it was your lead, you would lead a heart. Lead from these hearts:

♥J 10 9 55

Your lead in this case would be the jack of hearts; top of the sequence. If your heart ten was the six, your holding would be J 9 6 5. You would then lead the five; fourth best of a long suit.

From this last combination, suppose you did not have the jack. Holding 9 6 5, your lead would be the nine; highest of a short suit.

Have a heart and lead it.

Hollywood Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, May 29 (AP) — Judith Anderson is deserting Hollywood for good, but strangely enough, she's not bitter.

"I'm throwing the towel in" the actress said. "But I'm not blaming Hollywood completely."

Miss Anderson said she never remained here long enough to further her firm career.

"I'd always be rushing off to Broadway or England after I complete a picture. Thus I could never follow anything up. And during the past two years I've been travelling considerably." The "travelling" comprised her extensive tours to entertain American servicemen, including one long trip to the Pacific.

"Whenever I came back to Hollywood I'd always be cast as a mean, middle-aged woman," she sighed. "I guess that's how I'm typed in the movies.

Bob Hope opened his cross-country show in Glendale and San Diego during the weekend and took $82,113 out of the south-city alone. "We'll either bring back vaudeville or kill it," quipped Hope, and it may well be the former, judging from the reaction...The Anne Baxter-John Hodiak wedding in Burlingame June 14 may be postponed because of her work in "The Razor's Edge."

Oddity: Artie Shaw, who bought his Beverly Hills house for $95,000 in 1940, sold it for $95,000 recently...Sabu will vacation in Paris before returning here...John Houseman had to change a snowstorm to a rainstorm in "That Girl From Memphis." Reason: Corn flake shortage.

NELSON FAVORED TO BEAT BURTON

Newton, Mass, May 29 (AP)—Byron Nelson ruled a top-heavy favorite to defeat Dick Burton, the British open titlist in the opening half of America's first international championship challenge golf match in almost a quarter-century today on the Charles River Country Club's long and tricky course.

Nelson, who will be playing that layout for the first time since he bested seven top local rivals in easy fashion in the "Big Eight" tourney four years ago, is in fine form for his competition, while his 38-year-old British opponent arrived from England only Monday and has yet to rid himself of "sea legs."

Burton will be further handicapped because he has just returned from five years' military service and has had little opportunity to regain his pre-war skill which brought him the British title in 1939—the last year that championship tournament wsa held.

After today's opening 18 holes, Nelson and Burton will leave for Mamaroneck, N.Y., where they will play the second and final round of the 36-hole duel as a part of the Goodall round-robin tourney.

Junior Big Four Football League Now a Reality

Toronto, May 29 — (CP)—The Junior Big Four Football League was a reality today with four teams entered — Toronto Argos, Toronto St. Michaels, Hamilton Tigers and Oshawa Red Devils. Ross Trimble, former coach of the Ottawa Rough Riders, was elected president of the junior loop at its organization meeting here last night.

Opening games are set for Sept. 13. The senior Hamilton and Argonaut clubs are solidly behind their respective junior outfits, while the St. Mikes entry has the benefit of the college organization which sponsored the great St. Michael's junior hockey team. The Oshawa team is sponsored by the automotive firm which for years has supported the famed Oshawa Generals in junior hockey.

9 NEW RECORDS ESTABLISHED AT ATHLETIC MEET

Albert College Students Show Fine Form in All Events, Banquet Held

Old standing records went by the board and nine brand new ones were established by the track and field athletes of Albert College at the meet held recently on the college grounds.

The meet, one of the most successful in the history of the college, started at 10 a.m. and ran through until nearly 4.30 p.m. with competition being very close in practically all the events.

The new senior champion of the college is Donald McCullough, of Kingston, Ontario, who won the title after Tom Patterson of London was forced to withdraw after he had suffered a broken collarbone while participating in the running broad jump.

Intermediate champion is John Lill, football star of Kapuskasing, Ont., with Larry McGaughey, another grid luminary romping home with the junior title.

Athletic Banquet

The meet culminated by an athletic banquet held in the college dining hall at which Mr. Doug Monnson, Queen's University athletic director was the guest speaker. Coach Monnson, gave an informative and at times humorous address on sportsmanship and citizenship.

Intermediate boys Shot Put: John Lill 39 ft. 6 in. (Kapuskasing).

Intermediate boys Pole Vault: Malcolm McKendry 8 ft. 6 1-2 inches (Prescott).

Senior boys Bowling: Bob Landon (London, Ont.).

Senior girls Bowling: Barbara Diment (Belleville, Ont.).

Senior boys Cross Country: Donald McCullough (Kingston).

Int. boys Cross Country: John Lill (Kapuskasing).

Junior boys Cross Country: James Taugher (Kingston).

Senior boys Swiming: Derek Bahnsen (Ottawa).

Int. boys Swimming: Geoff Scott (Montreal).

Junior boys Swimming: Jim Taugher (Kingston).

Senior boys Table Tennis: John Merkley (Ottawa).

LIBERAL MEMBER FOR PARRY SOUND TO PLAY LACROSSE

Wilfrid "Bucko" McDonald Makes Creditable Comeback With Cuigues Alumni

Ottawa, May 29 (CP) — Canada's national game—lacrosse — has come back to the seat of the nation's legislators and what's more, one of those legislators is coming back to lacrosse.

Wilfrid (Bucko) McDonald, the athletic parliamentarian, took time off from his duties on Parliament Hill as Liberal member for Parry Sound to "mix it" with the boys in a senior lacrosse league game Monday evening. He made a creditable comeback, and plans to play all season with a local team.

Bucko, who slightly astounded his more dignified neighbors in the Commons last winter by playing hockey with Hull Volants in the Quebec senior league, is thoroughly enjoying himself.

In the attack position with Guigues Alumni during his Ottawa lacrosse debut Monday, Bucko flashed a goal and an assist to help his mates defeat St. Anne's 5-3. Both are senior city league teams.

Talking with reporters afterwards, he admitted he "probably could do with a little less weight, but it's fun to get the feel of a lacrosse stick again."

In addition to enjoying himself, the former National Hockey League star is contributing not a little to the success of the lacrosse comeback in Ottawa His presence inspired a lot of confidence in the younger members of his team

The national sport has been absent from the Ottawa Valley for several years. A three-team league limped along in 1939 on very little support and gave up the ghost when war was declared

This year lacrosse came back, headed by Alex Connell, well-known sports veteran, and given a helping hand by the flourishing Quebec Lacrosse Association. Montreal Canadiens of the Quebec senior league, plan to play four of their home games in Ottawa to help bolster local in-

DAVIS RELEASED AS MANAGER OF TORONTO LEAFS

Player-Coach Bill Norman Named as Acting Manager Until New One Appointed

(By The Associated Press)

The announcement by Toronto Maple Leafs of the outright release of Harry Davis, its player-manager, provided the chief topic of conversation in the International League today.

Player-coach Bill Norman was named as acting manager until a successor to Davis, who was given his walking papers in Rochester Tuesday night, is appointed.

Leaf president Peter Campbell's only explanation for the move was that he thought it would benefit the club which currently is in 5th place, 3½ games out of second and 7 1/2 contests back of the front-running Montreal Royals.

Davis, veteran of 18 years in the game and field leader of Toronto since 1945, led the Leafs to a 3rd-place finish last year. Toronto has been playing .500 ball most of the year despite a weak attack. The Leafs rank last in the loop in scoring and base hits but they have the best fielding aggregation in the circuit and some of the finest hurlers.

The transportation strike postponed yesterday's Toronto-Rochester game and rain washed out the Baltimore-Jersey City tilt. In the only contests played, Montreal Royals increased their first-place margin over Syracuse Chiefs to three games by beating Buffalo Bisons 5-1, while the Chiefs split a twin-bill with the Newark Bears.

Cy Buker chalked up his third consecutive triumph of the season as he limited the Bisons to 5 hits. Coaker Triplett accounted for Buffalo's lone run with a homer in the third inning.

NO TRUTH IN REPORT

London, May 28 (CP Cable) — The Press Association, quoting its diplomatic correspondent, said today that there is no foundation for a report that Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery is going to Cairo to take part in the negotiations over a new Anglo-Egyptian treaty. CHAPTER 11

"Her ghost come back often. Theese very bad house."

"That room where you hit me. That was Mrs. Morley's bedroom?"

"Yes, senor. That is the first time I go in that room for much long time."

"So you're afraid of ghosts? Why, what's the matter with Mrs. Morley's bedroom?" Gordon inquired.

"Very unluckee room, Meester. Room of dead." Chino said solemnly.

"On, you're superstitious too," said Gordon with derision, trying to coax him on.

"No, no meester. I speak truth. That is room of dead. First her parrot, she died there, then Mrs. Morley's two dogs they died. Then Mrs. Morley herself, she die—all in same room! One, two, three! Four!"

• • •

He switched on his dim lights, leaned back wearily, letting a cigarette hang from his tired lips. Its smoke burned his eyes and nose; he spat it out angrily, turned on the radio to a blast of scat music, strangled the knob—gave his attention to the circuitous double lane road leading him toward the mountain capital.

"Circuitous, my God, it's like my mind, the maze of the Minotaur," Gordon said to himself. "Dead brick walls at every turn. And it seems to me, that you, Gordon, my boy, have had another idea that fizzled. You have a happy faculty for getting notions tnat waste your time. 'Find Cora Leroy' was your first breathless inspiration, so puzzle and throw a dash of the incongruous into the whole design, and you are so delighted you cannot sleep. Morley and Oliver! Two of them, 'Thick as two ticks on a sheep." Gordon recited the words of the bartender at the Gold Nugget. "If you had a brain in your skull you'd have a dozen theories on the reason for a friendship like that. And you haven't one good one.

'Gordon, lad, you should have taken one of those correspondence courses in detective work—as a detective everything you do comes out defective."

He re-entered the city by the same road, lit now by night lights, turned at the County Building, looming huge and gray in the clear air.

"Thanks, son. I don't want to read anything more about Denver. I'm leaving town tonight."

At the bar he stopped for a spot of brandy and soda, a bracer he needed.

The bartender inquired in friendly fashion about the bump on his forehead.

"Unrequited love," answered Gordon despondently.

"That's a new one for me," answered the bartender. "So this last drink's on me."

The spectacled desk clerk was sad to hear Gordon was checking out. The management had enjoyed Mr. Lewis's stay, and hoped the feeling had been mutual. He hinted delicately that some time Mr. Lewis might mention the Denver House in his magazine stories.

"Of course I will. Will you call the airport for a single seat going east? I'll be in my room. Let me know what you get."

"There's been a call came from Mr. Pearman, the real estate office, Mr. Lewis," said the clerk.

"Forget it," snapped Gordon.

"Very well, Mr. Lewis, I'll try to arrange for the midnight plane. Shall I have a taxi ready for you? I suggest you leave about 11:30. That will give you ample time."

"Double check," said Gordon, already headed across the lobby to the yawning elevator.

The Denver House corridor was like a cavern, the heavy carpeting mossy; Gordon's room was warm and oppressive.

He lay down, relaxed on the bed, face turned to the dresser where a small alarm clock was nipping away the time, with hands pointing to 9:30.

Facing the clock was the silent framed photograph of Audrey; lips provocative, eyes bright and questioning. Gordon wished it were 11:30 and he rushing like a comet toward her.

"And when I am riding toward her, where would that be tonight?" he thought, "Moonhollow, of course, the roses, Long Island Sound... I'll kick Mr. Alvin Oliver out, that's certain... dispose of him the first thing. How did that note I wrote when I left, strike her?"

"Audrey," he said to the picture, "I've just been a jealous fool. It's been a waste of time to leave you. I feel your Clifford Morley is quicksand—treacherous, like an undertow. I'd give everything I am to make you believe that, Audrey, but I never will, Audrey. I can't!"

Her eyes in the photo seemed fathomless. He turned the picture so it would face him and watch over him like a good fairy while he slept.

He finished the last piece on Denver he was writing for the magazine, typed his date line and "30", stuck the script into a manila envelope, placed it in the bottom of his bag, his suit on that, his blue oxford shirt; cuff links and striped tie; glanced through empty closets and dresser drawers, placed the open traveling bag on the chair near the dresser, added his paste, cream and brushes. He set the alarm clock for 11:30 punched a hole in the pillow and coaxed himself into a nap.

In the midst of his dreadful sleep he saw Morley walk by in a crimson cape, swinging a carved ivory cane. Gordon held a wooden walking stick. Morley snarled, then whipped from the inside of the cane a long, lean glittering sword and swung it, knocking it against the wooden stick.

Gordon awoke hot, gasping. The knocking continued. Dazed and fogged with dreams he went to the door. A colored elevator boy stood there with an innocuous young man.

"Clerk done rang your telephone, Mr. Lewis. You didn't answer, so he sent me up with the gentleman. He say he want to get some keys from you that belong to his boss, Mr. Pearman."

"Come in, fellow. We'll find your boss's keys in a minute. Just make yourself comfortable," said Gordon. "I think I left the keys of the Morley house in my jacket pocket."

"I wouldn't have called on you so late, sir. But Mr. Pearman was mighty excited. He said he had to have the keys at once. One of Mr. Morley's friends arrives from the East tomorrow and wants to live in the house."

"Live in the house? Superfine! Give him my congratulations. Here are the keys. Know the name of the friend?"

"A Mr. Oliver."

"Did you say Oliver?" Gordon grunted. "Sure of that?"

"Yes, sir. That's what they told me at the office. He lived in it before."

"Yes, I know he did," said Gordon.

"Good night, sir. Thanks for the keys." The young man smiled his way out.

Gordon, sitting on the edge of his bed, began puffing heartily on a cigarette.

"What's it mean?" he pondered. "Oliver back in Denver—leaving Moonhollow and Audrey. Something's brewing, and it isn't beer."

He lifted the receiver quickly and called the desk, saying, "This is Mr. Lewis, I've changed my mind about leaving tonight; cancel that plane ticket East, please."

"Glad to hear you're staying," chirrupped the desk clerk.

"Thanks," said Gordon, lowering the receiver. Then he said to himself, "I must keep out of Oliver's way if I can. He mustn't see me. He's plenty danger to Brad Lewis, plenty."

As Gordon unpacked, the jangling phone brought him back from mental wanderings.

A rich and racy voice sang out, "Hi ya, Brad—this the Red Hot mama of all outdoors. Whadaya know, and why?"

"Cora! Where are you? Thought you were on your way to Chicago!"

"I'm just leaving. I'm sore as a boil. Say, I've been calling all afternoon. Where've you been?"

"Busy working, what else?" answered Gordon. "What did you do oversleep your train? How are you feeling after your last round up?"

"Still fizzling with bubbly water, and filled with butterflies. Two Chinamen are skipping rope in my stomach, and that is only half of it," she moaned.

Gordon laughed. "And your Clifford's the same?"

"No, he's mad as a runner up. We cracked up last night in his car after we skipped the club. Cliff's at Willoughby Hospital." She recounted the details for Gordon—the left turn, the crash. She heaped abuse on herself for letting him drive the car. "It's that sore hand of his that did it. He'll be at the Hospital about a week until the stitches set themselves and his nerves untangle. I've got to play my two weeks at the Long Tail Club in Chi; got to get some folding money."

"But he'll be ripping mad if you leave him alone, won't he?" asked Gordon.

"Got to get some money. Clifford is broke, and I have to chow and pay the landlord when he doesn't," she said.

"We'll both be mighty lonesome without you," said Gordon.

"Brad, do me a favor. Take Cliff cigarettes and read the newspapers to him. Skip the page on bombings and suicides. You know what I mean. Keep him company. Will you?"

"Sure, Cora, anything you say. Glad to oblige."

"Thanks, Brad, I knew I could count on you. I won't forget it. I'll tell him you'll be around to see him."

Then her voice bade him goodbye, and he hung up the receiver. He sat back on the bed, lips pursed, fingers picking noiselessly at the pillow. He knew this was the perfect chance—to get better acquainted with Morley, while Cora was gone. The only obstacle to that was the possibility of running into Oliver.

• • •

Early the next day, immediately after his arrival at the landing field, Alvin Oliver presented himself at the hospital office and asked the number of Morley's room.

"Hello, trouble," grunted Morley from his bed when he saw Oliver enter his room, "What brings you to Denver? Are you sick?"

"I'm all right, Clifford. But who laid you out?"

"There's always a female wrecking the plans of men—and mice." He held out his left hand. "Hand closest to my heart, crony. What's so important that you can't telephone it?"

"First, why the left hand? What happened?"

"Blackie and I were drilling," answered Morley. "We hit rotten quartz; but it looked good, so I drilled for a one-stick blast to see what was underneath. The bit nicked me and we didn't open the ore vein, either, if it was there."

"Nothing serious?" asked Oliver looking at Morley's bandaged hand.

"No, of course not! Just the damn thing won't heal up!"

RECOVERS FROM BRIDE-SHIP BABY MALADY

Edward C. Nowicki, former corporal, of Chicago, Illinois, and his Belgium bride adore their infant son, Robert, 3-months-old, at Fort Hamilton Hospital in Brooklyn. Baby Robert was one of the babies stricken by mysterious malady aboard the S. S. Zebulon Vance, while en route to the United States. He recovered, but five other tots died, and three are still on the "critical list" at the Fort Hamilton Hospital.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was home erly on account of Saturday and he was looking out the living room window, saying, Wowie what a wind, look at those trees blowing.

Oh boy, that looks great, why dont we all go out and take a walk in it? said, and pop said, By gollies maybe that's a thought.

It certainly is, ma said. It's the gassliest thought I ever heard. I couldn't think of a werse day for a walk. The very idea of anybody wanting to go out and walk in a gail of wind is beyond my wildest comprehension, she said, and pop said, But my dear, I cant think of anything more invigorating.

And I cant think of anything more exasperating ma said. Who wants to be blown from piller to post like an unwilling straw? You cant even talk in such a wind, because you're too bizzy clutching your hat or your dress or trying to catch your breth, she said, and pop said, You're not suppose to talk, you're suppose to ruminate filosophically on the simbolism of the occasion. You should tell yourself proudly that if you can successfully buck everything nature has to offer, you should surely be able to buffet the adverse winds of man-made fortune, he said.

But for land sakes the wind blows dust in your eyes, ma said, and pop said, Not if you compromize by bending your head. In fact it's the ideal way to demonstrate that if you meet nature half way instead of opposing her, she'll werk with you and not against you, he said.

Well come on, pop let's just you and me go out and have fun walking in the wind, I said, and pop said, Well, I've proved my point now, so I'm sattisfied. I'm a reasonable man, he said.

Then I'll go out alone, I said. Which I did, and some of the other fellows were out and we had a swell time chasing hunks of paper around in cercles.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, May 29. (CP)— The Gold and Industrial stocks recorded sizable gains in the early market and the base metals were down. Western Oils showed little change. Volume was again light at 714,000 shares for the first three hours.

Beaulieu Yellowknife dropped to 72 cents at the opening and the price improved narrowly in the early afternoon to around 75 where it was down 18 cents overnight.

Normetal featured the base metals, climbing 13 cents to $2.15.

The food, paper, building and steel issues were the stronger industrial groups.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

New York, May 29. (AP)—Selected stocks continued to register 15-year highs today while many market leaders were depressed by profit taking on the recent upswing.

Dealings, most of the time, were speedier than those of Tuesday. Early gains running to a point or so were reduced or cancelled around midday and trends remained irregular near the fourth hour.

Gains exceeded losses among Canadians on the big board at noon. Distillers Seagram up 1-4 at 117 1-4, Dome Mines plus 1-2 at 24 3-4, International Nickel up 1-4 at 41 1-8. Losses were shown by Canadian Pacific down 1-4 at 19 7-8 and Hiram Walker minus 1-2 at 140.

Toronto, May 29 —(CP)— An Assize Court jury yesterday awarded Miss Eda Bela, 20, damages of $900 and costs in a breach of promise suit against her former employer, 42-year-old Clemente Papa, manufacturer of arts and specialty goods. The girl also charged seduction and claimed loss of prestige and reputation in her own family and circle of friends.

Bishop's Action May Close Rotary Club in Maniwaki

Maniwaki, Que., May 29. (CP)—The disbanding of the Maniwaki Rotary Club was forecast yesterday by its President, J. W. Sutherland, following a pastoral letter by Msgr. Eugene Limoges, Bishop of Mont Laurier, which advised all Roman Catholic members of the club to resign

The letter, read last Sunday in churches of the diocese, which includes part of Labelle, Wright, Terrebonne, Argenteuil and Montcalm Counties, described Rotary International as "freemasonry", and said the organization took a "neutral" position and membership was open to all classes and creeds.

Mr. Sutherland, manager of Canadian International Paper Company in Maniwaki, said he could not understand the attitude of Bishop Limoges. The club, organized last fall, had been meeting with success, and membership had reached 30. Since Sunday membership had dwindled to twelve.

Can't Carry On

"I am afraid it will not be possible to carry on," he said.

"I am a freemason myself," Mr. Sutherland said, "and I feel I am therefore in a position to speak when I say there is absolutely no connection between Rotary and freemasonry. The whole thing has been brewing for some time, but the climax has come as something of a shock, nevertheless."

Bishop Limoges, out of town until Thursday, could not be reached for comment.

Among members of the club reported to have tendered their resignations following the pastoral letter were N. L. Raymond, Liberal member of the Commons for Wright, and J. C. Nadon, Liberal member of the Quebec Legislature for Gatineau.

London Letter

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 29 —(CP)— The Washington barber, who cut Winston Churchill's hair during the wartime Prime Minister's recent visit to the United States needn't worry about professional criticism from George Ernest Parry who has been looking after "Winnie's" hair-dressing job since 1940. George just won't talk.

The "Talk of the Day" column in The London Evening News said Mr. Churchill returned to Britain "with a haircut that horrifies," but you can't get George to agree — or disagree.

As a matter of fact, George — at 78 barber to many of Britain's prime ministers during the last 50 years — is uncannily elusive. He apparently has taken a leaf from the books of the country's leaders on how to dodge newspapermen.

Since the "haircut that horrifies" comment appeared, George has been hounded by newspapermen. He also had an offer from the BBC to "air" his experiences, but inquiries at his shop brought replies he was "engaged," was "not available" or had "gone out of town for a week."

In between haircuts at the exclusive Penhaligon's hairdressing salon on Bury Street in London's fashionable West End, he was caught but the conversation lasted only about 10 seconds. After the introduction and handshake he muttered something about "two gentlemen waiting," shook hands and was on his way.

From a director of the company, Miss Ellen Smart, it was learned Mr. Churchill's thinning hair grows slowly and he has it cut about once a month. For the last six years George has parked his equipment in a little black bag and gone to the former Prime Minister's Hyde Park Gate home. The job usually is done in Mr. Churchill's bedroom while he smokes a cigar and dictates to two secretaries at once.

The company, established 75 years ago, is the court perfumer, but Miss Smart would not say whether the present Royal Family is looked after, either in the way of perfumes or hairdressing. "I'll tell you one thing, though, we did provide Queen Alexandra with perfumes," she confided.

MAY SOLVE MYSTERY

Distribution of a snapshot found in the pocket of an American airman killed in Italy may solve the mystery surrounding identity of the flier. The snapshot was of an army nurse. She has now been identified at Lt. Betty Hencke, ABOVE, of the Army Nurse Corps, who is currently stationed in Stuttgart, Germany, hospital. The identification was made from the snapshot of Mrs. Anna M. Adams, of Dorchester, Mass., aunt of Lieut. Hencke. The nurse may be able to shed some light on the identity of the unknown airman.

Black Market In Meat Said To be Beaten

Toronto, May 29 — (CP) — Yesterday's hearing before J. D. McNish, Royal Commissioner investigating distribution and sale of meat and meat products in the Toronto area, was interrupted while the Commission sought new quarters but a three-hour session brought evidence of unusual practices in the sale of meat and enabled Mr. McNish to delve into invoices, cash books and other records kept by wholesale and retail dealers.

The hearings were transferred from a courtroom in City Hall to a local hotel room, where the noise and confusion had an adverse affect upon witnesses and retarded progress.

One witness who appeared before Commissioner McNish yesterday was Carl Abrams, a retail butcher. He told of buying meat from a jobber friend and said he had not made any profit on the transactions. He explained the situation in this way:

When his friend, Harry Finklestein — who peddled bread to restaurants — needed meat, he came to Abrams store. Abrams charged Finklestein exactly the price charged by the wholesale house.

Replying to a question by Commissioner McNish, witness said he never charged Finklestein "a nickel" for the service. He believed Finklestein just wanted the meat to keep his bread customers happy.

Many Interested

"As a matter of fact, I don't think he charged any more than it cost him," he said.

"There will be plenty of people interested in this kind of setup," commented the Commissioner.

Witness said his wholesale business had been incorporated under the name of Park Packers Products Limited and rented to John Cauldwell. Abrams said he did the buying for his tenant, who manufactured sausage. In one week he bought 3,000 pounds of meat for his tenant, he said.

"Do you do all this buying and record keeping for Cauldwell for nothing?" asked the Commissioner.

Other witnesses heard yesterday denied they had taken part in black market dealings, as previously alleged by other witnesses.

Meanwhile as the hearings resumed today there were indications that black market activities have sharply decreased in the past two weeks. The amount of data collected by the Commission already is quite considerable and it will probably be another week before hearings are completed.

Loggers' Strike Enters Third Week With No Settlement

Vancouver, May 29 — (CP) — The strike of 35,000 British Columbia lumber workers entered its third week today with negotiations continuing before Chief Justice Gordon Sloan, government appointed mediator.

The union, demanding a 25-cent an hour increase in wages, a 40-hour week and union security in the new agreement, presented its case at a hearing yesterday. After the operators state their side of the dispute at a meeting in Victoria today, Chief Justice Sloan will make recommendations to both parties on hoy he believes the strike can be settled.

Meanwhile, controversy flared over the union's proposed plans for thousands of its members to converge for a mass lobby on the provincial government within 2 weeks.

Harold Pritchett, district president of the International Woodworkers of America, referring to Labor Minister George Pearson's blunt opposition to the union plan, said criticism would make no difference — the members would march on the provincial capital as scheduled.

The only bright spot appeared when the union announced they would meet British Columbia's fruit growers here to discuss methods of resuming production of wooden fruit containers.

The move followed an appeal by acting Prime Minister Ilsley to both parties for resumption of production of the containers, urgently needed to save this year's fruit crop. Operators have already agreed to open the plant concerned.

Boxed Puss Jerks Erks

Capetown (CP)—This is the story of "Panther," the cat which travelled to South Africa from England in a packing case and lived, almost literally, for six weeks on the "smell of an oil rag."

A new aircraft engine, swathed in heavily tarred paper and packed in a strong wooden box, arrived at a South African training school from Britain.

When the mechanics opened the packing case they were astonished to find a scraggy black cat with a white chest lying beside the engine. Its only sustenance during the six weeks voyage had been the grease on the engine and the tarred paper. It became the "erks" pet.

RUDE AWAKENING

Boston, England (CP)— While nodding off to sleep at a property sale A. W. Palmer, blindly bought a shop, bakery, store, a four-bedroomed house and five two-bedroomed cottages all in good condition for £150 ($675).

GASOLINE COST DOWN

Melbourne, Australia (CP) — Drop in the retail price of gasoline in Australia by 1 1-2 cents to 45 1-2 cents a gallon has been announced. Its peak wartime price was 51 cents a gallon in 1943.

REDISTRIBUTION

Would Ask Amendment

If the system used in past redistributions was continued representation would be reduced to 238, with Saskatchewan losing four seats and Manitoba three.

Should the government's proposed method be accepted a joint resolution of parliament would be sent to the British House asking for an amendment to the British North America Act. The main change would be that the population of Canada as a whole, rather than the population of one province, would be used to determine how many seats each province should have.

Debate on the resolution to the redistribution legislation, introduced by Mr. St. Laurent, will be resumed next Tuesday and is expected to be prolonged.

After the House opened, State Secretary Martin announced the King's Birthday will be celebrated in Canada this year on June 10.

Transportation Minister Chevrier, replying to M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. Leader, promised to consider the removal of an anacronism in a section of the Canadian Shipping Act which, Mr. Coldwell said, permitted seamen engaged in an industrial dispute to be arrested and tried as deserters.

Royal Assent Given

In the Senate debate on a bill to change the name of Dominion Day, July 1 to Canada Day continued and Royal assent was given 13 bills, including the $1,250,000,000 Canadian Loan to Britain.

Senator W. D. Euler (L.-Ontario) tabled a report of the Senate Income Tax Committee recommending the setting up of an independent Board of Appeals to hear taxpayers' appeals from assessment on income or excess profits taxes.

Study of the agriculture estimates brought these developments:

1. John Charlton (P.C.-Brant) renewed a request that the Agriculture Department get behind efforts to wipe out Bang's disease in cattle—the cause of undulent fever among humans.

2. Agriculture Minister Gardiner disclosed that a new type of tuberculine is being used to test Canadian cattle. As a result some cattle showing negative reaction to the old serum were showing positive reaction to the new. The serum was similar to that being used in the United States.

3. Mr. Gardiner said he planned to submit to the Cabinet Legislation to continue freight assistance on the movement of feed grains from Western Canada to Eastern Canada.

4. Mr. Gardiner said the government would resume its prewar policy of giving grants to country fairs.

5. R. J. Henderson (P.C.-Lambton East) called for a campaign to control and wipe out insect and crop diseases in Southwestern Ontario.

Boards to Continue

6. Mr. Gardiner said the government would present legislation calling for continuance of the meat, dairy, wheat, special products and other boards until the expiration of food contracts with the United Kingdom.

These Boards were established during the war to handle farm products destined for export. The need for such Boards would continue for some years to come and he doubted if there would be any objection to their continuance.

He made the statement after several C.C.F. members called for passage of a National Natural Products Marketing Act to ensure orderly marketing of farm products on the home market.

Mr. Gardiner reiterated that such an Act has been ruled ultra vires of parliament and he felt it would be difficult to draft any such legislation unless the constitution was amended.

As long as the Wartime Boards continued in effect he did not see any reason for putting into effect National Marketing legislation.

FLOOD WATERS THREATEN INUNDATION

An airview of a section of Williamsport, Pa., as raging flood waters of the Susquehanna river covered a fifth of the residential areas of this city of 45,000 persons, high water cutting railroad and highway communications. The flood was caused by four days of heavy rains culminating in a cloudburst. The flood threatens to reach the disastrous proportions of the 1936 inundation which caused so much damage and made thousands in central Pennsylvania homeless.

Hard Coal Miners Seek New Contract With Operators

New York, May 30 — (AP) — As the lengthy strike of 400,000 soft coal miners came to an end, Pennsylvania's 76,000 anthracite diggers quit work today to await a new contract with the operators.

The present pact expires at midnight tonight. However, the work stoppage became effective for all practical purposes early today since no mining operations were scheduled for the Memorial Day holiday.

Leaders of John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers (A.F.L.) rejected yesterday an operators' resolution which would have continued the present contract for 30 days on a retroactive pay basis and served formal notice that the miners would not return to work without a contract.

Two subsequent operators' proposals — one for extension of the contract for 15 days and another for extension for a week — also were turned down, said J.B. Warriner, president of the Lehigh Navigation Coal Company and operators' spokesman.

Commenting on the union stand, Warriner said "the mounting obligations would be on the operators and there would be none on the miners that I can think of."

Both sides, however, agreed to a miners' resolution that "such firemen, engineers, pumpmen, maintenance men and men in similar capacities as may be required in their regular line of work" should continue on the job on a retroactive basis.

Report Denied Contract Signed

Owen Sound, May 30 —(CP)— The report from Canadian Seamen's Union headquarters in Montreal that the Hindman Transportation Company of this city had signed a contract with the union was denied by both company and union officials here today.

Joe Sullivan, union representative, and Capt. George Hindman, president of the company, both said the report was unfounded. The Howard Hindman is still tied up here. Also strike-bound is the Algosoo.

The Iocolite of the Imperial Oil fleet called here on Wednesday but she is not affected by the strike as her crew is already working an eight-hour day.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, May 30 —(CP)— Synopsis: Clear warm weather still prevails over southern Ontario and the eastern half of the United States, but a much cooler air mass is pushing southward off Hudson Bay and its leading edge now lies near North Bay and White River. Temperatures are expected to drop shortly through southern Ontario during the night. The advance of the cold air is causing rain in northern Quebec and northern Ontario and rain is also occurring in Alberta, southwestern Saskatchewan, and in the United States just east of the Rockies.

Congress May Not Pass a Single New Labor Law

Washington, May 30 —(AP)— Hedging with a couple of "ifs," some members of Congress speculated today that Congress may not pass a single new labor law, despite Washington's excitement over current labor unrest.

With the disputed draft section deleted from President Truman's emergency bill, the possibility of a complete "blow-over" of labor legislation was being widely discussed. Settlements of the soft coal strike, announced yesterday, obviously has taken off the main heat.

The big "ifs" are:

1. Whether President Truman signs into law the Case (strike-control) bill which a thumping 230-106 House of Representatives vote sent to him yesterday. Several Democrats have said he will veto it.

2. Whether the threatened June 15 country-wide maritime strike develops a new "crisis."

Observers generally agreed that developments in the maritime dispute are bound up with the future of the President's emergency bill. The Senate by a 70-to-13 vote late yesterday cut out what some legislators consider the heart of that bill — the provision for drafting into the army those who strike against government-seized plants.

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL

Hamilton, May 30 —(CP)— Wesley Grove, 21-year-old Hamilton press hand, today was committed for trial on 15 charges of arson. He appeared before Magistrate James McKay.

Grove is charged with setting fire to a garage owned by Alderman Leslie Parker last Oct. 30 and to a barn on property of W. R. Barnes last Nov. 5. The rest of the charges arise from fires which occurred this year.

IMMIGRATION PLANS OUTLINED IN THE COMMONS

Men Will be Brought Into Work in Sugar Beet Industry And Replace Prisoners

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, May 30 — (CP)—Canada is going to experience a population increase as a result of immigration announcements made yesterday in the Commons, but just what the increase will amount to has not yet been disclosed.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner told the Commons the government shortly will announce a plan under which hundreds of men will be brought to Canada to work in the Dominion's sugar beet industry and replace German prisoners-of-war who now are being returned to the United Kingdom.

He made the disclosure after Resources Minister Glen announced that relatives of Canadians will be allowed to enter the Dominion from foreign countries providing their Canadian relatives can support and house them.

Mr. Glen said the action was intended as a "short-term measure to provide for the admission to Canada of approved persons who can be both maintained until established and provided with housing by relatives."

It was also to meet "in some measure," the pressing demands being made on behalf of refugees or displaced persons with relatives in Canada anxious to provide them with homes.

Those to be admitted include the father or mother, the unmarried son or daughter 18 years of age or over, the unmarried brother or sister, the orphan nephew or niece under 16 years of age of any persons legally admitted and resident in Canada.

Thirteen Lives Believed Lost In Raging Floods

Harrisburg, Pa., May 30—(AP) —Murky flood waters receded slowly in Pennsylvania and lower New York today, leaving behind a debris-littered devastation that took at least 13 lives and caused property and crop losses expected to exceed $3,000,000.

Fed by four days of continuous spring rains, the Susquehanna and Allegheny rivers and their tributaries had boiled over Monday in the worst flood since 1936.

Thousands were made temporarily homeless as the waters spilled into residential and business areas of scores of communities. Today life in once flood-bound towns returned slowly to normal.

Williamsport, Pa., and Elmira, N.Y., were hit hardest by the racing waters of the Susquehanna, while the small community of Eldred, Pa., bore the brunt of the onslaught from the muddy Allegheny. Bradford and Port Allegany also dug out from the muck and mud deposited by the Western River.

The death toll was swollen today to at least 13 with reports of two fatalities in Tioga County, Pa.

Five Charged as Collaborators Defend Selves at Prague as Patriots

By JAMES DEVLIN

Prague, May 30 (AP) — Collaborator or patriot? The sometimes fine line that determines whether a man's actions were heroic or traitorous is the issue in the trial here of five former members of the Czech protectorate government.

Prague citizens appear more interested—and certainly more divided—in the protectorate government case than they were in the trial of Karl Hermann Frank, Germany's wartime State Minister of Bohemia and Moravia. Frank was executed last week.

The Czechs regarded Frank simply as an enemy who swaggered around Prague, taking lives and causing misery.

The five men now on trial are in a different category. They were a part of Prague in time of peace. They had gone to school and associated in business with many of the persons who now sit as spectators in Pankrac prison courtroom.

Now they sit in the prisoners' dock accused of collaboration — Jaroslav Krejci, former Prime Minister reputed Czechoslovakia's foremost authority on constitutional law; Richard Biernert, Minister of the Interior; Josef Kalfus, Finance Minister; Adolf Hruby, Agricultural Minister, and Jindrich Kamenicky, Communications Minister.

The prosecution claims that they held their offices because they wanted to, because they leaned toward the Nazi ideology or because they decided it was the easiest way to save their necks.

Their defenders argue that they were men who courageously remained in their native land, taking unpopular jobs to do the best they could to alleviate German actions against the Czechs.

The evidence looks damaging. They gave the "Hitler salute" at gatherings attended by the Nazis. They placed a hospital train at

Plain, Nourishing Food In Adequate Supply, Luxuries Rare as Ever

By The Canadian Press

Most Canadian homes have an adequate supply of plain, nourishing food but tasty "luxury" items are still as scarce as at any time during the war, it is shown in a Dominion-wide survey by The Canadian Press. The food situation is noticeably neither worse nor better on a general scale than it was a year ago.

Queues are not nearly as common as during the war but the odd line-up is still to be seen outside butcher and grocery stores in some cities.

Officials of some food companies say "the shortages are not as bad as they seem but result from "selfishness" on the part of some housewives who are buying far more than their immediate family needs, thereby making other households go without.

Some prices have risen during the last year and budgetting is figuring more prominently in many a housewife's planning. But despite occasional shortages she is still able to set a table with food sufficient to satisfy the family's hunger.

Reports from across the country are as follows:

Hard to Obtain

No one in Nova Scotia is suffering from any lack of a particular food and no black market is known to be operating. Products hard to obtain are shortening, jellies, condensed milk and chocolate milk powder.

Prince Edward Island housewives are still feeling the effects of the sugar ration but fruits, vegetables, beef, pork products and poultry are in good supply. Shortening is scarce.

Butter and eggs are ample in New Brunswick. Many products such as jam are available in "driblets." well-balanced, ample meals are the rule in the average household, and most prices are the same as a year ago.

In Quebec food is slightly harder to obtain than in 1945 and the dollar buys less than it did then. In short supply are corn products, candy, canned peaches and pears, vegetable juices, pork and beans, spices, rice, lard, gelatines, corn starch and cereals.

Many Ontario butcher shops have been almost empty for four or five weeks but relaxation of the beef prices ceiling appears to be bringing the situation back to normal. In Toronto, canned fruits—peaches, pears, cherries and plums—are in short supply and some officials call the buying "reckless." The person who is not in the store when products are put on the shelves is out of luck.

JUSTICE LAZURE RULES AGAINST DEFENCE COUNSEL

Holds Diplomatic Immunity Did Not Embrace Acts Prejudicial to Safety of Canada

By ALAN RANDAL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal May 30 (CP)—Fred Rose, who has sat through three days of court testimony and argument, had an off-day today to enjoy his freedom on $25,000 bail on which he is held on charges of conspiring to furnish secret data to the Soviet Union.

This was because in Quebec Province Ascension Day is observed as a holiday and the Court of King's Bench, presided over by Mr. Justice Wilfrid Lazure, adjourned yesterday until 10 a.m., Friday in the case of the King versus the 38-year-old Labor-Progressive member of parliament for Montreal-Cartier.

Highlight of proceedings so far has been the determined defence efforts to first of all to have the indictment against Mr. Rose quashed on technical grounds, then to have the authorization on which he was charged ruled out as too vague, and thirdly to have the testimony of Igor Gouzenko declared unprivileged because of diplomatic immunity.

For hours yesterday the defence led by Joseph Cohen K.C., argued that the public law of immunity for diplomats made evidence of Gouzenko, former Russian Embassy cipher clerk in Ottawa, and documents he took from the Embassy, inadmissible in court.

Rules Differently

Mr. Justice Lazure ruled differently. He held diplomatic immunity did not embrace acts prejudicial to the safety of Canada.

Further, he held that documents to be entered as Crown exhibits, were not diplomatic documents but rather the papers, such as telegrams and cables, of an organization designed for espionage and working against the interests of Canada.

Mr. Gouzenko, 27-year-old Russian trained for the secret service, admitted he took these papers from the secret embassy files when he had decided to inform Canadian authorities of an alleged espionage ring working in Canada.

When it had been decided Gouzenko's evidence was admissible the witness began the telling of his story—already well known through the report of the Royal Commission on espionage—of how an organization of espionage worked under the cover of embassy activity.

He did not produce any new details and had barely begun his story, expected to take two or three days, when court was adjourned.

LEWIS WINS WAGE BOOST, WELFARE FUND FOR MINERS

Contract Signed to End Strike Only Good as Long as Govt. Operates Mines

Washington, May 30 (AP) — After a 59-day work stoppage — broken only by a two-week truce —the soft coal strike is over. It ended late yesterday with John L. Lewis and Interior Secretary J. A. Krug signing a contract that ended the last major barrier to resumption of full-scale industrial output, starting Monday.

It ended with Mr. Lewis, chief of the United Mine Workers (A.F.L.) winning a $1.85-a-day wage boost, a health and welfare fund financed by royalties and nearly everything else he asked for the 400,000 bituminous miners whose walkout for weeks dominated newspaper front pages.

Promptly United States citizens caught the vision of an uninterrupted flow of post-war automobiles, radios, refrigerators and gadgets from long-troubled assembly lines. But the public was warned it also would get a bigger coal bill.

Seized Nine Days Ago

The government seized the mines nine days ago and immediately got down to bargaining with Mr. Lewis. Out of those talks came these principal contract terms, announced yesterday:

1. An 18½-cent-an-hour wage increase, which with overtime provisions will add $1.85 to the miners' daily rate and boost his earnings for a five-day week from $50 to $59.25.

2. A $25,000,000-a-year welfare fund financed by a five-cent-a-ton royalty on each ton of coal produced, to be administered by a three-way board. Present payroll contributions will go into a separate hospital and medicine fund to be controlled solely by the union. Payroll contributions vary in different coal fields.

3. Unionization of a limited number of foremen.

4. Standardized safety, sanitation and housing facilities.

Unrecognizable After Brawl

Sault Ste. Marie, May 30—(CP) —Constable Mike Perepelytz of the city police last night said in district court that police had to consult papers in a wallet to identify John Pavlokovich after a brawl. Pavlokovich was "disfigured beyond recognition," the officer said.

Perepelytz testified at a hearing of assault charges against three brothers, Garfield, Elmer and Gordon Brush, charged jointly.

The court also heard Mrs. John Hanison, formerly Eileen Brush, testify that Pavlokovich had made improper advances to her and that she had "pushed him!"

The case was expected to go to the jury today.

U.S. MILK RAISED ONE CENT QUART; BUTTER UP 11c

Another Rise is Seen If Subsidies Cut—Present Boost Means $250,000,000 More

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH

Washington, May 30 (AP) — The United States government jolted housewives today with a $250,000,000-a-year price boost for dairy products—and predicted still another sharp increase if Congress cuts subsidies.

Stabilization Director Chester Bowles estimated that the public will pay $250,000,000 more for food annually as the result of price increases of one cent a quart for milk, about 11 cents a pound for butter and approximately six cents a pound for cheddar cheese.

The new prices will become effective early in June and the exact amount of the increases fixed when the date is set.

Mr. Bowles also directed OPA and the Agriculture Department to institute controls on the use of butterfat in the hope of increasing butter production. These controls include a ban on the sale of whipping cream, effective July 1, and establishment of price ceilings on bulk cream for the first time.

Ice cream manufacturers also were authorized to cut down on butterfat without trimming prices. Butterfat gives ice cream its richness.

Why Bowles Reversed Stand

Mr. Bowles' approval of the dairy product price increases came only six weeks after he had turned down similar proposals. He said on April 15 that "nothing could start us on an inflationary spiral more surely than an increase in retail food prices."

In reversing his stand, Bowles said he was prompted by "apparent congressional determination to slash food subsidies," and by necessity to "maintain the nation's milk production in the face of increased feed costs."

"If all food subsidies were eliminated on July 1 as is being proposed in some quarters," Mr. Bowles said, "the price of milk would immediately jump two to three cents a quart in many areas, and butter would shoot up to about 80 cents a pound."

Half of the one-cent-a-quart increase ordered for milk results from higher grain and feed prices authorized earlier this month in a move to get more food for famine relief. The other half cent results from cancellation of plans to increase dairy subsidies July 1.

This price increase, Mr. Bowles said, will increase returns to farmers by 40 cents for each 100 pounds of milk, and, he hopes, cause them to "refrain from reducing the size of their herds."

Retrieves $10 Bill By Thrusting Hand Down Calf's Throat

Stratford, S.D., May 30 (AP) —A breeze whisked away a $10 bill which O. H. Gerharter, cattle buyer, handed to his son Allen, in a feedlot. A six-months-old calf picked it up and started chewing. "That ain't hay!" Gerharter shouted as he took hold of the animal and told his son to reach down the calf's throat. Allen retrieved the bill, about shoulder-deep in the calf's interior.

First Plan for Normandy Invasion Altered on Advice of Montgomery

(Editor's note: The following is the third in a series of four stories by Ross Munro, former Canadian Press war correspondent with the 1st Canadian Army in Europe, on Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery's new book, "Normandy to Baltic.")

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, May 30 (CP Cable) — Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery's new book, "Normandy to Baltic," reveals that he was opposed to an original Allied plan for the Normany assault as unsound because it did not provide for sufficient striking power. He proposed a broader plan to hit with much stronger forces and it finally was accepted only five months before D-Day, June 6, 1944.

Lord Montgomery's intervention meant the plan was revised from an attack on a narrow, one-corps front, to an attack on a two-army front of 50 miles and the addition of larger airborne forces.

These details of the victorious invasion of Europe are revealed for the first time in "Normandy to Baltic" which is being privately distributed to friends and colleagues of Lord Montgomery but which has not been released for public sale.

The alteration of plan necessitated the postponment of D-Day from May 1, 1944, to early June, the book shows. The initial invasion plan for "operation overlord"—code name for the invasion—was drawn up by a joint British-United States organization in London called "COSSAC"—which stands for "Chief-of-Staff to Supreme Allied Commander."

The COSSAC plan provided for the assault of only one corps of

Ship Companies Will Continue With Non-Union Crews

Operators Reply to Union Plan for Strike Settlement

By JACK WILLIAMS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, May 30 —(CP)— Hope for an early settlement of the lake strike of seamen spurted today with announcement by Labor Minister Mitchell that he would have an announcement to make to the Commons this afternoon.

Ottawa, May 30 —(CP)—Lake ship operators in a reply to a five-point strike settlement plan advanced Wednesday by the Canadian Seamen's Union (T.L.C.) said today the companies proposed continuing to operate their ships, if necessary with non-union crews until the strike was called off.

The operators in a reply issued by Senator G. P. Campbell, counsel for the Dominion Maritime Association asked assurance that the demands advanced by the union would not be supplemented by further demands in the 1946 navigation season.

The union proposals called for an eight-hour day on lake ships with payment of overtime at the rate of 50 cents-an-hour. All charges against seamen and union officials for desertion or inciting to desertion were to be withdrawn and contracts between the union and companies were to be re-established and followed.

In the reply the companies said four of the five points in the union proposal — all except that dealing with the eight-hour day and overtime — were the result of action taken by union officials in calling "an illegal strike."

Senator Campbell handed the companies' reply to newspapermen during a series of conferences behind closed doors in the Labor Department offices. Senator Campbell and George Donovan, Dominion Marine Association secretary, had talked briefly with Labor Minister Mitchell and his deputy, Arthur MacNamara.

The Labor Department representatives also met union officials who were in a room across the hall. With J. A. (Pat) Sullivan, union president, and Gerry McManus, secretary, was Percy R. Bengough, president of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada who took part in the conferences for the first time.

Later government, union and ship operators got together around the same table. It was the first time the disputing parties got together since May 20 when negotiations broke down.

Mr. Bengough today moved to enlist support of all T.L.C. affiliated organizations — total membership about 350,000 — in the seamen's strike. In a wire which went to all affiliated organizations Mr. Bengough said: "Your undivided support must be given the Canadian Seamen's Union in their fight with Canadian shipping companies."

Representatives of the ship operators had been handed late yesterday a union settlement plan which provided for immediate introduction of an eight-hour day with payment for overtime work at the rate of 50 cents an hour — the union's membership includes only unlicensed personnel.

The immediate reply of Senator G. P. Campbell, counsel to the Dominion Marine Association, was that the operators would have nothing further to do with the union "until this state of lawlessness created by the action of bands of seamen and manhandling of crews on vessels is ended."

A short time later Senator Campbell, with George Donovan, secretary of the Association, was called into conference with the government officials to be formally handed the union's proposals.

Give Answer Today

They emerged from that conference, which lasted about an hour, with the understanding that they would be in touch with the government officials today to give a definite answer. J. A. (Pat) Sullivan, union president, who left Ottawa last night to fill a speaking engagement in Kingston, was scheduled to be back in Ottawa this morning and to meet Arthur MacNamara, Deputy Minister of Labor. Mr. MacNamara was expected to relay the operators' reply to the union.

Coupled with the union's plan for overtime after eight hours was a requirement that seamen and union organizers at present charged with desertion or inciting desertion as a violation of the Canada Shipping Act be immediately withdrawn.

WELLAND CANAL BLOCKED AS CREW LEAVES FREIGHTER

Lying Behind Ship Are Two Ships Just Making Way to Keep in Centre

Port Colborne, May 30 (CP)— The Welland Canal—only navigation link between Lakes Erie and Ontario—is blocked today by the Canada Steamship Lines freighter Goderich. The vessel is in lock No. 8 of the canal which bypasses the turbulent Niagara River, her non-union crew removed by some 150 Canadian Seamen's Union strike pickets.

Lying behind the freighter are two more C.S.L. vessels, the Lethbridge and the Noronic. They are just making enough way to keep them in the centre of the canal. The Noronic left Thorold this morning after 53 Ontario Provincial Policemen escorted 24 non-union seamen through strike picket lines.

Pickets greeted the Noronic with a shower of stones from a bridge at Dain City, midway between Port Colborne and Welland, as she moved through the canal. Several windows were broken by stones thrown as she left Thorold.

At the noon hour the main force of pickets in this area clustered at a spot where five strikebound vessels are moored—the Osler, Prescott, Selkirk and Teakbay of the C.S.L. and the Kingdoc of the Paterson Line.

It was reported here that police were on the way to escort men aboard the Goderich which left Toronto last night with her non-union crew.

The incident occurred at lock No. 8. Then the group moved back toward the C.S.L. canaller, Lethbridge, which was being followed by the big passenger vessel, Noronic, which left Thorold this morning with a non-union crew placed aboard with the help of a squad of 53 Provincial Police.

The incident was the first here in the Great Lakes Seamen's strike which was called against C.S.L. vessels last Saturday and against other lines Monday.

The crew of the Cementkarrier, part union men and part non-union, walked off the ship today before all of its coal cargo had been unloaded. Members of the C.S.U. last night tried unsuccessfully to persuade the crew to leave the ship after she had docked.

BELLEVILLE DELEGATES ATTEND CONVENTION

Thomas McGee, Sault Ste Marie, was re-elected state deputy at the election of officers held in Windsor, Ontario, on Monday, by the 43rd annual convention of the Ontario State Council of the Knights of Columbus. Past State Deputy is Dr. C. J. Lunz of Hamilton.

Other officers elected are J. M. King, state secretary, Stratford; H. Tellier, Belle River, state treasurer; Frank Hyde, Wallaceburg, state advocate, and Vincent Cote, Lindsay, warden.

Delegates appointed to attend the Supreme Council convention for 1946 were J. M. Hussey, Windsor's grand knight; Hugo Shaw, North Bay; Thomas Creighton, Toronto; J. J. McCarthy, Chapleau; and J. A. Maloney, Renfrew.

Past State Deputy A. B. Collins, District Deputy George A. Lee and Grand Knight, Maurice Callaghan, of the Local Council of this city attended the convention.

CITY HALL CLOCK STOPPED FOR REPAIRS

The old clock stopped short—but it is expected to strike again as soon as the needed repairs can be effected.

Possibly not too many of the city residents had observed the fact but the clock atop the city hall tower has been mute since early in the week due to the failure of intricate striking mechanism.

The trouble will soon be remedied, however, it is stated by city hall janitor George Crocker, who is also the town clock custodian. A certain chain connected with the striking mechanism failed and will be replaced as soon as a new one arrives.

INSPECTION OF B.C.I. CADETS SET FOR FRIDAY

The annual inspection of the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School takes place on the school campus on Friday morning at 10 o'clock. The corps will be inspected by Major T. C. Holmes Cadet Inspection Officer of M.D. No. 3 Kingston.

PUPILS PRACTISE FOR SCHOOL FIELD DAY

Pupils of Queen Alexandra School are practising for the school Field Day which is being held on the school grounds on Friday, June 7. The events start at 1:30 and will include track and field, novelty races and other phases of athletics. A feature will be a novelty bicycle race in which a large number of boys and girls are entered. Softball games and possibly a baseball game will round out this afternoon's program.

34 Overseas Brides, Families Arrive in City

The Canadian National Railways station at Belleville was a busy spot just at the crack of dawn this morning as 34 overseas brides and 22 dependents stepped off the special train to be greeted by anxious husbands, or to be otherwise directed through the local Red Cross organization.

There were many happy reunions and touching scenes as husbands greeted brides they had not seen for many months, or endeavored to renew, or strike up acquaintances with children who in many cases had forgotten their fathers. The majority of the war brides and dependents detraining at Belleville later boarded the Peterboro-Lindsay train for destinations in that district, while others were taken to new homes in the north part of the county.

Greeted by Officials

Red Cross officials, members of the local St. John Ambulance Brigade and of the I.O.D.E., together with representatives from local service clubs were on hand early to prepare for the largest group of war brides to detrain at Belleville thus far. Long before the scheduled arrival of the special train waiting husbands had been served with hot coffee and sandwiches, while the new arrivals were later accorded like refreshments.

Sent to Destination

Adding to the general confusion of the Red Cross attending to travel-worn arrivals was the addition of five war brides who were not originally scheduled to detrain at Belleville. These were destined for Beaverton district with military officials deciding at the last minute to have them transfer to the Peterborough train at Belleville instead of going through to Toronto.

Only a comparatively few of the war brides detraining this morning will call Belleville their home. Others will live in the immediate county district, while still others boarded the Lindsay train for destinations in that district.

Jitney Tourney At Bowling Club Enjoyed

The first Wednesday afternoon and evening jitney tournament at the local bowling greens was held yesterday afternoon under delightful weather conditions and on perfect greens with a large number out. The competition was exceptionally keen during the two twelve-end games although some of the bowlers have not struck their mid-season form. It was noted that one member of the club has won two prizes, yet the rink on which he played has yet to win a game. In the afternoon tourney Herb Middleton with Mrs. A. Watkin and George Casement won two games with the highest score and were followed by George Watkin and Elgin Ford. Harvey Stewart's rink had the distinction of having the low score for two games lost. Austin Watkin and Ray Zufelt had the best score for one win.

In the evening Norman Edwards came out on top with two wins high in two ten-end games with Wilfrid Price and Austin Watkin next in line. Ernie Vanner was high with one win with Ab Wonnacott second. Col. Bonisteel had the honor of being low for two games.

Work is progressing on the renovations to the clubhouse and when completed the bowlers will have one of the finest homes in the district. There are a large number of new bowlers out this season and personal instruction is being given them by the older members of the club. On Friday night the first night jitney will be held and members are requested to be on hand early so the draw can be arranged.

Dumping of Animal Carcases Causes Many Complaints

Residents of the eastern part of the second concession of Sidney Township are loud in their complaints of malodorous smells that they allege are emanating from a property in their district.

Investigation of the stench, which, to quote one resident: "is enough to knock one down at times" revealed that persons unknown have been depositing carcasses and carrion of dead animals and chickens in a woods.

The odor, at times, residents claim, is such that it becomes almost unbearable, if the wind is in the proper direction.

"The thing is a disgrace to Sidney township" one indignant lady stated, "and if the condition is allowed to remain, there is a distinct danger of disease spreading over the district. I am a registered nurse and I know these things can happen."

Provincial authorities have been notified of the conditions, the lady stated, and have replied that the matter is one for local authorities to clear up.

A municipal representative of the township when approached on the matter stated that the township has a by-law on its statutes that provides for the prosecution of a person or persons who dump such refuse on township property. "The problem is to catch them in the act", he stated.

It has been suggested that an indignation meeting be held to protest against the continuance of such a practice, because, residents state, "that with the advent of hot weather, germs of diseases may emanate from the filth and cause an epidemic that may well affect the entire district."

disposal of the Germans. They signed a document offering a reward for the slayers of Reinhard (The Hangman) Heydrich. They opposed the London wireless demands for an uprising.

Their replies: They gave the salute because they had to deal diplomatically with the Nazis to gain their ends. They gave the train in hopes it would pacify the Germans in their measures against the Czechs. If they had refused to sign the reward document, "tens of thousands" of Czechs might have been slain in reprisal. They opposed an uprising because they thought it foredoomed to failure.

They add that they placed 4,000 former Czech army officers in civil positions to "hide" them from the Germans; that they were able to gain a measure of independence for Czech jurisprudence where in Czech judges passed out lenient sentences.

They're patriots, says the defence. Just lies and evasions; They're ecollaborators, says the prosecution.

It is for the national court to decide.

I.O.U. CERTIFICATES AT GRADUATION

Fort Dodge, Ia., May 30 —(AP) —Something new in diplomas were handed to 258 graduates of Fort Dodge high school last night. School officials said that due to various strikes and work stoppages, they were unable to obtain diplomas. They issued an "I.O.U." to each graduate.

County Police Court

False Pretences Charges Against Carefoot Enlarged

Three charges of false pretences against Ernest M. Carefoot, MacDonald Ave., were enlarged for one week with expectation of a further enlargement for one month, when they came up in county police court before Magistrate T. Y. Wills today.

Request for the enlargement was made by the Crown when special counsel C. P. Hope, K.C., of the Attorney General's Department was unable to be present in court.

Counsel for the accused, Malcolm Robb of this city, objected to the enlargement claiming that the informations had been laid last March and suggesting there must be some limit for which the Crown could ask for enlargement. He stated defence was ready to proceed with the case.

Crown Attorney Donnan asked that the charges against Mr. Carefoot be read in court but this was denied by Magistrate Wills. The accused will be fully arraigned on the charges next week when it will be decided in what court the case will be heard.

Mitchell Case Enlarged.

Charges of careless driving against Allan Mitchell, Moira St., were enlarged until the 13th when the Crown stated it was not ready to proceed. The three charges of careless driving, drunk driving and reckless driving against Mr. Mitchell were laid following a fatal highway accident near the O.S.D. last April.

Other Cases.

Clarence Woodruff, no given address, was assessed $10 and costs or ten days in default when he pleaded guilty to possession of two wine and beer books. On a vagrancy count he was given nine days to date from the time of his arrest.

Other charges heard in court included a charge of careless driving against Wm. G. Weese, the charge resulting from a motor accident on the Trent Road early in May, and previously enlarged charges of theft of fish against two local youths. A charge of carnal knowledge against Thomas Hill, Mohawk Indian Reservation, was enlarged to June 6th.

Judge Lane to Preside At Jury Sitting of Court

Judge Wilfred S. Lane, Picton, will preside over the jury sitting of county court which will open in the local county court buildings on Monday, it has been announced.

Included on the docket is the case Rex vs. Hodgens, the preliminary hearing of which was heard several months ago. Hodgens is accused of misappropriating certain sums of money belonging to the Belleville Foundries on Station Street. Mr. Hodgens was acting as general manager of the firm at the time the misappropriation of funds is alleged to have taken place.

Another case on the docket is the Hostler vs. Wilson and Prentice cases upon which the jury disagreed last fall during the fall assizes. The case involves a motor accident which took place in Mayo township during October in 1944.

Two non-jury cases will also be on the docket.

Memorial Day Marked in U.S.

(By The Associated Press)

The United States today marked Memorial Day with services at home and abroad in honor of its 135,926 dead and 18,418 missing in the Second Great War.

Although Memorial Day is typically and primarily an American custom, Allied representatives participated in many of the ceremonies in Europe and in the Pacific.

A small American flag fluttered over each grave during services at 36 cemeteries in seven European countries. At each burying ground a small banner enumerated the dead.

In the Pacific navy planes from Hawaii flew poppy wreaths to Guam, Saipan, Tinian, Okinawa, Wake, Midway, Kwapalein and Tarawa. Three huge floral bouquets were flown 3,000 miles from Pearl Harbor and placed in marine cemeteries on Roi-Namur and Eniwetok in the Marshall Islands.

At home President Truman was to place a wreath on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National Cemetery, Washington.

The tens of thousands of soldiers on occupation duty in Germany observed Memorial Day simply. Soldiers went to church, 21-gun salutes were fired in memory of the dead and individual units placed flags on the isolated graves of several thousand men whose bodies have not been removed from Germany. The bodies of most Americans who died in the Second Great War have been disinterred from eight German cemeteries, now all closed.

The holiday brought the usual increase in traffic on United States highways, causing the National Safety Council to urge special caution in driving.

Catholics Warned Against Joining Neutral Societies

Service Clubs, Fraternal Societies Especially Masonry Mentioned in Pastoral Letter

Maniwaki, Que., May 30 (CP)— A warning to Roman Catholics who "with the best intentions in the world," join service clubs and other "neutral societies," has been issued to members of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Mont Laurier by Msgr. Eugene Limoges, Bishop of Mont Laurier.

Text of the bishop's letter, dated March 19, was read last Sunday in churches of the northern diocese, which includes part of Labelle, Wright, Terrebonne, Argenteuil and Montcalm counties. It was made available to the press yesterday.

"In our country," said Msgr. Limoges, "there are three types of associations one must be on guard against:

"1. Freemasonry and its subsidiaries. No one can enter these without risking recommunication, refusal of the sacraments, deprivation of an ecclesiastical burial.

"2. Secret societies disapproved of under pain of grievous sin—such as the Oddfellows, explicitly condemned by the Holy See in 1894, the Knights of Pythias, the Sons of Temperance, the Independent Order of Good Templars.

"3. Suspected societies, or so-called neutral societies, which may be divided into two classes:-

(A) Those which lead more directly to religious indifference, such as the Y.M.C.A. and the Y.W.C.A., also denounced by the Holy See Nov. 5, 1920.

Service Clubs Mentioned

(B) Those which, because of motives of opportunity, have not been condemned by name, but which are disapproved of in principle because of the common character of their neutrality. Here are a few: Rotary, Kiwanis, Lions, Elks, Moose, etc."

The letter said "a Catholic cannot be neutral, he cannot admit that all religions are equal," and added:-

"Let non-Catholics enter into these neutral clubs, they have nothing to lose, because by virtue of free examination they are not bound by any doctrine. That is not the case with Catholics..."

The letter then cited the history of the stand taken by the Roman Catholic Church on such organizations. To those who would be tempted to object that the church did not prohibit membership in such societies under pain of excommunication, it was pointed out that "it would be painful to force the church to go that far."

"True Catholics do not await formal orders. Before giving their names to such societies they seek counsel and if inadvertently or because of lack of notice they have joined them, they say before it is too late:—"We have erred and we are acting in consequence."

GOODMANS WIN OVER SIXARDEE BY 7-3 SCORE

The Goodman Juniors made an auspicious start in the Belleville Softball Association loop last night at Sixardee, turning back the air force mushballers by a 7-3 score behind some nifty hurling by Al Adams and some sparkling work afield by his mates.

Adams, went the nine-innings route for Vern Goyer's kids, and let the opposition down with five hits. The air force team scored one run in the first innings and another pair in the sixth. The rest of the time Adams had them eating out of his hand or forcing them to hit for infield or outfield outs.

The Goodmans went to work early on the Sixardee second-string hurler who started the fray, pounding him hard in the first innings for five hits and four runs. Rattrell, ace hurler for Sixardee was rushed into the breach and pitched a sterling game holding the Goodman bats to four hits and three runs over the remaining eight innings.

The juniors fielding was one of the highlights of the game with Spafford in centre turning in an outstanding performance. On one occasion he pegged a perfect throw from deep centre to nip a runner at the plate and again from deep right cut off a potential tally when his long throw cut off a Sixardee runner who had doubled and was trying to stretch his hit to a three-bagger.

The kids also turned in two neat double-play killings, and played an outstanding defensive game all round.

The whole squad turned in a fine performance with the seven hits scattered among the team. Jack Green got two hits for four and Jerry Moher donated a smashing two-bagger to the winning cause.

The management of the team took 19 players along and the squad is ready and rarin' to go in the next tilt against Point Anne scheduled for the Fair Grounds on Friday night at 6.30.

Front St. Island Being Removed

The flow of traffic on city streets 24 years ago presented a vastly different picture from the congested conditions of today and accordingly street islands must go.

At least that apparently is the attitude taken by local city council which on the recommendation of Police Chief Walter Probert has ordered the removal of the centre island on Station Street at the Upper Bridge.

During the past few days employees of the local department of public works have been busily engaged in breaking up the concrete walls surrounding the island. Earth has already been removed and where the island formerly was the street will be paved.

According to city officials the island was placed in 1922 when Station Street was paved. The idea of the island was stated to be to allow the engineer to keep a level roadway as there is a considerable lateral slant to the street at this point.

PICTON

Mrs. Mary Barklett Given Year Term On Bigamy Charge

Picton, May 30 — Mrs. Mary Barklett, who las week pleaded guilty to a charge of bigamy, was sentenced by Magistrate Wills in court here yesterday, to one year in the Ontario Reformatory. It was charged she had gone thru a form of marriage with Donald Wannamaker of Trenton, while she was still legally married to Ernest Barklett.

Found guilty of driving a motor car while intoxicated, Basil Clark, Green Point, was sentenced to seven days in jail.

For leaving the scene of an accident, Gordon Wadsworth, Milford, was fined $25 and costs.

Orchard Tree Losses Not Large in District

Orchard tree losses as result of the serious defoliation suffered in the Bay of Quinte District last year will not be as heavy as formerly anticipated, according to the weekly crop report issued by the Ontario Department of Agriculture. Leaves on orchards which were affected last year look well, while the cherry bloom is promising.

In Hastings county pastures and meadows have improved greatly as result of recent rains and warmer weather, while a considerable acreage has already been planted to corn. Most cattle are now on pasture with dairy cows and weanling pigs being in good demand.

Prince Edward County farmers are busy setting tomato plants with a good start having been made. Cheese production in the County is gaining somewhat but is still below that of last year.

FIRST PLAN

three divisions with two more divisions afloat on D-Day. Two-thirds of one airborne division were to be dropped on Caen, an important Normandy road and rail hub. A follow-up corps would pass through the bridgehead to be established by the assault corps.

(While it is not indicated in the book it is understood the assault divisions for the original COSSAC plan were the 3rd Canadian, the 3rd British and the 29th United States—all infantry formations which were to be supported by some tank regiments.)

Lord Montgomery writes that, recognizing the vital importance of capturing Cherbourg quickly, he felt Allied forces should get a foothold on the Cherbourg peninsula in the initial operation thus he recommended increasing the assault frontage to the westward to embrace beaches on the eastern side of the Cherbourg peninsula.

One major problem was getting enough landing craft and shipping for additional production and training of new crews for D-Day was postponed one month.

Obituary

WILLIAM RUSSELL STAPLEY

(Madoc Junction) (Contributed).

A large number of county and district friends paid their last tribute to the late William Russell Stapley, who died here on May 15th after a brief illness, when the funeral took place on Saturday, May 18th., from his late residence to Eggleton United Church.

The service was conducted by Mr. Kenneth Stewart, assisted by the Rev. A. M. Laverty, minister of St. Paul's United Church, Stirling and Mr. George Butcher of the Grace Chapel, Stirling. Mr. Stewart based his address on a favorite text of the deceased found in II Timothy, chapter 4, verses 6-7-8: "For I am now ready to be offered, and the time of my departure is at hand. I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith; Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, shall give me at that day: and not to me only, but unto all them also that love His appearing." During the service Mrs. William Fitchett sang a solo "No Night There."

The pallbearers were: Messrs. Embury Hough, Ben Bleecker, Leonard Prest, Charles Prest, Clarence Fitchett, and James Campbell.

Many floral tributes exemplified the high esteem in which the late Russell Stapley was held. Interment was in Clarke's Cemetery.

The late Mr. Stapley was born and resided his entire life at Madoc Junction. He was the son of the late Samuel Stapley and his wife the late Sarah Tufts, and was in his 58th. year. He was well known throughout the community and Hastings County and his passing has brought genuine feelings of regret. In religion he was a member of the Grace Chapel, Stirling.

Surviving are his wife, the former Nora Bernice Bronson; six daughters, Mrs. Harold West (Lenora), of Stirling; Keitha, of Toronto; Mrs. Jan Svoboda (Marcella), of Stirling; Vera, of Hamilton; Helen and Joan, at home; 2 sons, Kenneth of Guelph, and Forde, at home; a daughter, Luella, predeceased him in 1928, and a son, Ralph, lost his life in June, 1944, while serving with the overseas forces. Four sisters, Mrs. Philip Carr, Stirling; Mrs. Ethel Danford, Belleville; Mrs. J. L. Dodds, British Columbia; Mrs. M. Terwillegar, of Picton; three brothers, Frank and Oliver, of Stirling, and Nelson of Madoc Junction, also survive.

MRS. NELLIE M. SNIDER
(Foxboro)

Mrs. Nellie Maude Snider, wife of Mr. Leonard D. Snider, died suddenly at her home in the 6th concession of Thurlow township, near Foxboro, on Thursday morning.

The late Mrs. Snider, who was in her 68th. year, was born at the Oak Hills and was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Spencer. For a time she lived in Belleville and for the past forty-three years she made her home near Foxboro. In religion she was a member of the United Church at Foxboro.

BIRTHS

SCOTT — Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Scott (nee Dutchie Little) 222 Charles Street, are happy to announce the birth of a son—a brother for Raymond—at the Belleville General Hospital on Wednesday, May 29, 1946.

DEATHS

SNIDER — Suddenly at her home in the 6th. Concession of Thurlow Township, near Foxboro, on Thursday morning, May 30th, Mrs. Nellie Maude (Spencer) Snider, wife of Mr. Leonard D. Snider, in her 68th. year.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Co. Funeral Home, Campbell Street, until early Thursday evening, then at her late residence at the above address whence the funeral will take place on Saturday afternoon, June 1st, at two o'clock to the United Church at Foxboro, for service at 2.30 o'clock (D.S.T.) Interment Foxboro Cemetery. M30-31

CARD OF THANKS

Mrs. C. M. Sine wishes to thank her friends and neighbors for their many acts of kindness, also for flowers, boxes of fruit, candies, cards and letters sent during her recent illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Lancaster and Mrs. Ida Hudson wish to thank their friends and neighbors for their many acts of kindness and expressions of sympathy extended to them in their recent sad bereavement.

Mrs. Snider was the last of a family of ten and is survived by her husband; three daughters, Mrs. Everett Prindle, Carrying Place; Miss Kathleen Snider at home and Mrs. Everett Thrasher, Belleville.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street until early Thursday evening, then at her late residence; the funeral announcement is made in this edition.

Housing Problem At Eire Airport

Rosslare Harbour, Wexford, Ireland (CP)—The shortage of housing and hotel accommodation in southwest Ireland, caused by the proximity of the great Shannon Airport at Rineanna, County Clare, has now grown so acute that the American Export Airlines Company has asked the Limerick Harbour Board to allow it to anchor a houseboat in the River Shannon, adjacent to Rineanna, to accommodate their staffs.

The vessel to be so used would be either a U.S. naval barracks ship or an L.S.T.

Nine U.S. and British air companies have already fully staffed headquarters at Rineanna, and Norwegian, Swedish, Danish, Dutch and French airlines are seeking permission from the Irish government to open offices there this year.

Younger Artists Hold Exhibition

By KAY REX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto (CP)—A new chapter in the history of Canadian art may be written with the opening here of the first semi-annual exhibition of paintings and sculpture by the Canadian Younger Artists Group.

Most of those exhibiting are under 30. They represent practically every province in Canada, and several even give home addresses as far away as China, Japan, Czechoslovakia and Trinidad.

Many of the artists are war veterans, but few of the pictures deal with their war experiences. Instead for the most part they are quiet studies of Canadian scenes, such as "Tail-End of Winter," by Vernon Mould, Toronto, and Gordon Couling's "Houseboats, Vancouver."

Born in Guelph, Ont., Mr. Couling exhibited a year ago in the British Columbia Artists Annual. He will return to Vancouver shortly for an exhibition of his own July 12-Aug. 4.

Aim of the Society is to provide lesser known artists with a means of bringing their work before the public, said Mr. Couling. "Another of its purposes is to work toward making lithographs and prints of good pictures more available to people in the lower income brackets.. I've found that even people at the $5,000-a-year level have few good pictures in their homes."

Mr. Couling deplored the lack of art critics in Toronto. "It is amazing that in a city this size there apparently aren't more than one or two good critics," he said.

David Payne, Indian Head, Sask., a Canadian Army veteran who exhibited in the Canadian Army Art Show, had three paintings on display.

Several of the members of the group are earning their living either by painting on a commercial basis or as commercial artists. Some are studying at the Ontario College of Art. They meet once a week to discuss individual problems, sketch, and argue theories of art.

Boy Scout Saves Two Children From Death on Tracks

Windsor, Ont., May 30 (CP)—A 13-year-old boy scout, John Bellmore of suburban Sandwich East, was credited yesterday with saving the lives to two little girls by snatching them from a railway track as a Canadian National Railways freight train thundered down upon them, its engineer unaware of the children's plight.

The girls, Sharon Meek, aged three, and her 18-month-old sister, Carole, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Meek, wandered onto the track and nearly were trampled by a runaway horse which raced down the track ahead of the train.

"I was standing by my house when I heard a horse racing along the track," said young Bellmore. "I looked over and saw the horse jump and heard someone scream, so I got on my bike and rushed over there to see what it was all about. When I got there, I saw these two little girls in the middle of the track and a train was coming. I guess you know I was nervous, but I ran on the tracks, picked one girl up under each arm and carried them to my bicycle."

Constable Bryce Monaghan said he blamed the runaway horse for the affair.

"It was racing along the track and the engineer of the freight train was so busy whistling at the horse that he didn't see the youngsters on the track until he was almost on them."

Present Returns Will Remain In Effect to Apr. '48

Ottawa, May 30 (CP)—Agriculture Minister Gardiner yesterday told a delegation representing Ontario milk producers that present returns to concentrated milk producers will remain in effect until March 31, 1948—the date of termination of contracts with the British government.

The 15-man delegation, seeking increased returns, expressed dissatisfaction with the minister's stand. They said, however, that a meeting is being arranged for June 5 of the full board of directors of the Ontario Concentrated Milk Producers Associations, at which representatives of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, Ontario Federation of Agriculture and the Dairy Farmers of Canada will attend.

They said Mr. Gardiner promised to attend the meeting, to be held either in Toronto or Ottawa, to present the government's views on the increases sought by Ontario farmers.

A spokesman for the delegation said Mr. Gardiner's statement would mean that as subsidies on cheese and concentrated milk products were removed, retail prices would increase correspondingly to maintain returns to producers at their present level until contracts with Britain have been met.

Subsidies on milk used in cheese production were increased from 20 to 30 cents a 100 pounds and on milk used for concentrated milk products from 15 to 23 cents a 100 pounds.

Wanted 20 Cent Increase

The delegation in its interview with the minister today asked that subsidies of milk used for cheese and concentrated milk be increased 20 cents a 100 pounds. This, they argued, would bring the increase into line with that of fluid milk, which recently had its subsidy increased from 35 to 55 cents a 100 pounds.

Previously, at meetings in various parts of Ontario, milk producers threatened to "strike" if their demands were not met by June 10.

The delegation which met Mr. Gardiner today was formed here last week at a meeting called to draft plans for the meeting with the government. It was headed by H. H. Scott, of Norwich, President of the Ontario Concentrated Milk Producers of Ontario. Other members were: Charles McInnis, Iroquois; Carl Dance, Aylmer, Allison Graham, Chesterville; Frank Way, Ingersoll and Charles Milton, Princeton, representing the Concentrated Milk Producers; John R. Ballantyne, Atwood; Hector Arnold, Campbellford; C. E. Harkness, Iroquois, J. St. Denis, Vankleek Hill and S. L. Joss, Belleville, representing the Cheese Producers; Fenton McIntyre, Brantford; Arthur Wilson, Chatham and Gordon Greer, Ottawa, representing the Whole Milk Producers, and Arthur Stewart of Almonte, representing the Canadian Federation of Agriculture.

Bread Shortage Expected Soon Thru Flour Cut

Toronto, May 30 — (CP)—Robert Ackert, secretary of the Ontario Bakers' Association, said Wednesday that "there is sure to be a shortage of bread in Ontario soon, and it will probably be felt most in Toronto, because there is so much bread production in Toronto."

"Bread production now is much greater than a year ago and the 10 per cent cut in flour use imposed about April 1 means possibly between 20 and 30 per cent of the present output," Ackert said. "People will have to do a bit of conserving.

"If the government would let us cut the size of the loaf we think it would be a much better way of conserving the supply. In the United States they have limited the loaf size. We could do with a 20-ounce loaf, instead of the 24-ounce loaf which is sold only in Ontario and Quebec."

King Sends Congratulations

Toronto, May 30 (CP) —The King has congratulated Col. R. S. McLaughlin for the feat of his horse, Kingarvie, in winning the King's Plate and the King's 50 guineas—at Woodbine race track here last Saturday.

A cable received by Col. K. R. Marshall, president of the Ontario Jockey Club, from the keeper of the privy purse, asked that the King's "warmest congratulations" be extended to Col. McLaughlin "on Kingarvie's success in winning His Majesty's Plate."

TEACHER FINED

Whitby, May 30 —(CP)—George Wood, Pickering township teacher, found guilty Tuesday of assaulting Fred Evans, 12-year-old pupil, was fined $10 and costs or one month in jail. Evans told court he had refused to participate in a baseball practice during the morning recess period. He said Wood, his teacher, slapped him and followed him to his home, where he slapped him again.

War Against Cancer

The campaign in Belleville district in support of the Ontario Cancer Foundation drive for $2,000,000 is working up in interest and it is expected that the results achieved in raising funds will be such as are commensurate with the importance of the city and of the cause that is represented.

Cancer is the scourge of the modern age, claiming one out of every six or eight persons. This disease will kill in Canada this year probably seven thousand men and the same number of women unless something is done about it.

The public is to be advised on proper examination and on the steps available in the way of treatment. Clinics are to be organized, fully equipped and operated at suitable centres throughout the province so that diagnosis and treatment facilities may be available to every person. A large share of the money raised will go into research to try to get at the basic cause of this great enemy of mankind.

The public education will be carried on along with the research into the disease. In both these lie great hopes. The Foundation hopes to make it possible that every person in the province will be able to recognize or find the means of recognizing the signs of this malady and to do something about it if cancer should be suspected. Human life is too important to the nation and to the community as to the individual to have people unaware of the incidence of cancer and of the means to be taken to combat it if it develops. It is a serious mistake to wait until it is too late. A great majority of causes are curable if diagnosed and treated early enough.

Modern science is tireless in its quest of the unknown. It is doing amazing work and will continue to do so because there is the possible opportunity to solve the mystery of this foe of life and, having learned that, to arrive at the means of destroying this enemy. The Foundation's drive is a worthy effort.

Research

This is an age of inquiry and it is not surprising to note the decision of the Federal Government to provide generously for scientific research. Only a few days ago, His Excellency the Governor-General Viscount Alexander paid no small tribute to the work of scientists in the victory of the United Nations. He made especial mention of Canada's part in this regard.

The Hon. C. D. Howe has announced the Government plan to set aside $6,378,000 for the work of the National Research Council during the present year as distinct from, research in atomic energy. This amount will allow for expansion of its work. A great field in research in physical science, in chemistry and every phase of inquiry lies before the present era. This field is very wide. It can be applied to everything, such as agriculture, to the applied sciences and to industry. In the field of plastics alone a whole new world opens up.

Human interest is wide and human need is ever looking for developments in the conquest of matter and everything that touches human life and experience. In the field of health alone is a vast world that may be revealed. In this some see that the atom's possibilities can be used for the improvement of health.

Canadian colleges and universities did a great service in the war in providing leaders and scientists, in the maintenance of public spirit, in the developments of inventions.

Canada's scientists have had no small part to play in the preservation of democratic ideals through the inventions and discoveries they turned to the use of the armed forces. Canadian scientists rose to the responsibility and will rise to the responsibilities of the future.

Cities

Cities in the Old Land, facing restoration and rebuilding because the war caused so much havoc, will witness a unique attempt at planning by the construction of full-fledged satellite towns circling at some distance great centres of population. The world will watch with much interest this program of "new towns" to see how successful it may become and how far it is possible for man to study the future so that any plans laid out may be the most natural developments.

In Cleveland, U.S., there is talk of "the possible use of the air taxi to speed up transportation of passengers between Cleveland airport and the downtown areas," says the Plain Dealer, which considers the proposal as worthy of serious thought, "following the disclosure that 26 cities and villages in the Chicago area will soon have airmail service by helicopter. The war favored rapid development of the helicopter and the first of this type of plane for civilian use is now being delivered."

Do these bits of news suggest something of the course of development of cities especially the larger ones?

Man will endeavor to apply to use the application of the developments achieved during the war, by the plane, and it may be, by the use of atomic energy for the use and enjoyment and benefit of humanity. Forecasts have been made of the future of atomic energy development and how it may affect living conditions if it is harnessed to industry for the welfare of the people of the globe. Radar, for instance, is being applied to safeguard shipping on lakes as well as on the ocean.

For Wounded Veterans

Of all the things Lord Alexander has done in the few short weeks since he became Governor-General, none has endeared him more to Canadians than his weekend broadcast to the people of Canada on behalf of incapacitated war veterans.

In the years that lie ahead those veterans may face bitter times. On the other hand, they may be enabled to overcome the effects of the wounds they suffer, at least to some extent, and gain what they all want: A chance to make their own way in life.

That chance can only be provided through whole-hearted support from every part of Canada. We can think of no better method of providing that rehabilitation than through a Governor-General's Fund for Wounded Veterans.

Lord Alexander was ever interested in the welfare of his men as a professional soldier. Now he is no longer a soldier, but that interest in soldiers, and those who have been soldiers, particularly those who suffered, remains. That same interest must never fail in the rest of us.

Gardening

Amateur gardeners have been busy and more may yet try their hand at growing their own vegetables and thereby come to know more about the processes of nature as well as provide their own tables with food that may help to take the place of some bread they will deny themselves for others abroad. The secretary of the Ontario Bakers' Association the other day expressed the view that there would be felt soon a shortage of bread owing to the limitations placed upon flour in order to carry out Canada's pledge to assist in the bringing of necessary food to the starving people of war-stricken lands. Those who can add vegetables to their supply will not only be helping themselves but also the cause of the hungry.

Everywhere the need is expressed that as many gardens as possible occupy attention of amateur gardeners. Every little bit of such food is that much extra.

Vegetables can yet be put in. The season is not too far advanced.

Present indications are said to be for good crops. That is good news and it ought to tempt more amateur gardeners to know that their chances of reaping a good crop are assured.

An additional feature is the exercise and the pleasure of gardening and achieving something new to many.

JUST FOLKS

DOUBTS

Unless a man were plagued with doubt
Much like the ox he'd walk about
And eat what food he found and drink,
But never of his purpose think.

Unless man questioned bird and bee,
And bush and vine and plant and tree,
And of them wondered, how and why,
His soul would with his body die.

But man was fretted born to be,
To probe beyond his power to see,
To wonder and new ways devise

His daily round of little cares,
The sting of heartache that he bears,
And all his doubts are hints that he
More than the beast was meant to be.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

What are the names of the wedding anniversaries?

The practice of giving peculiar gifts on various wedding anniversaries originated in Central Europe. Among the medieval Germans it was customary for friends to present a wife with a wreath of silver when she had lived with her husband 25 years. The silver symbolized the harmony that was assumed to be necessary to make so many years of matrimony possible.

On the 50th anniversary of a wedding the wife was presented with a wreath of gold.

Hence arose the names "silver wedding" and "golden wedding."

This practice, borrowed from the Germans, has been elaborated upon in modern times and we now have a long list of wedding anniversaries, which many people, encouraged by commercial as well as sentimental considerations, think should be observed with peculiar gifts.

Thus we have the paper wedding, the wooden wedding, the tin wedding, and many others.

There is some difference of opinion and practice as to the proper names and the appropriate materials of the gifts for the various wedding anniversaries, but the following are the most widely accepted:

First—Paper.
Second—Cotton.
Third—Leather.
Fourth—Fruit and Flower.
Fifth—Wooden.
Sixth—Iron (or Candy).
Seventh—Woolen (or Copper).
Eighth—Rubber (or Electrical).
Ninth—Willow (or Pottery).
Tenth—Tin.
Eleventh—Steel.
Twelfth—Silk (or Linen).
Thirteenth—Lace.
Fourteenth—Ivory.
Fifteenth—Crystal.
Twentieth—China.
Twenty-fifth—Silver.
Thirtieth—Pearl.
Thirty-fifth—Coral.
Fortieth—Ruby.
Forty-fifth—Sapphire.
Fiftieth—Golden.
Fifty-fifth—Emerald.
Sixtieth (or 75th)—Diamond.

ESTATE GOES TO DAUGHTER

Toronto, May 30 (CP) — The $185,479 estate of the late Countess Grace DeLesseps, daughter of the Canadian railroad magnate, Sir William Mackenzie will go to the Countess' daughter, Catherine Hicks, Toronto, it was learned in probate court yesterday. The Countess died April 11 in Cuba.

The Roman Catholic Diocese in Peterborough, will receive $250 for work in the diocese.

U. S. Prepares To Strengthen Defence on Flanks

By J. M. ROBERTS, JR.

In 1940 France and England were caught flatfooted by the German occupation of positions in Belgium and Holland from which the Nazis launched a death blow at the French army and drove the British to Dunkerque.

Had there been co-operation between the lowlands and their natural Allies in construction of defences before the war; even if the British and French had moved into Dutch and Belgian defences at the last moment, the story might have been different.

But the Dutch, even knowing five days in advance of the German invasion plan, preferred to go down with a clean slate regarding neutrality rather than call for help.

The United States is moving now to insure that, should peace efforts fail, she shall not find a similar situation on her flanks.

The smaller American countries would be prepared, under proposals now being put forward, not only to put up good defences in their own right, but to contribute to a great pool of hemispherical strength.

Simultaneously with plans for an inter-American mutual defence treaty, Congress is being asked to approve the transfer of U. S. army and navy equipment to the other American countries.

Gen. Eisenhower and Admiral Nimitz have outlined a careful program, designed neither to create unbalance between the countries nor an overall increase in hemisphere militarization. It is an idea to "spread the work" of hemisphere defence, and also a sharing of responsibility commensurate with the dignity to which nations are entitled regardless of size.

In undertaking at this stage to promise "no greater relative strength" for any nation involved than it has had previously, Nimitz must be assuming an early settlement of differences between the United States and Argentina in spite of Washington statements some time ago that no mutual defence treaty could be signed with the group which presently controls that country. For Argentina must be helped along with the others to keep that promise.

This is encouraging, as is the thought that the United States is on such terms with its neighbors that it can hand them guns without fear that they may one day be turned against it.

JUDGE CAMERON PRESIDES

Toronto, May 30 (CP) — With Judge J. C. A. Cameron of Belleville, Ont., government-appointed commissioner, presiding, talks started yesterday with a view to reaching a solution to problems which threaten a strike in 10 Ontario rubber plants.

Main isue in the dispute, which affects 10,000 rubber workers, is a demand by the United Rubber Workers of America (C.I.O.) for a 40-hour week and a general wage increase of 20 cents and hour.

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Signed letters, not more than one page or 100 words long, pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease, diagnosis or treatment, will be answered by Dr. Brady if a stamped self addressed envelope is enclosed. Letters should be brief and written in ink. Owing to the large number of letters received only a few can be answered here. No reply can be made to queries not conforming to instructions. Readers addressing letters to Dr. Brady will please include the word "Canada" on their return envelopes, as these letters have to be forwarded to Dr. Brady. And it is requested that readers use standard size envelopes that will hold a small booklet

TEN DOLLAR WORD FOR PYORRHEA

A young woman says her dentist advised extraction of all her teeth as the best thing he can do for her trouble, which he calls periodontoclasia—we'll let it lie right there for a while folks, but we'll come back to it with due caution later on.

The condition, the dentist assures the young woman, is incurable. He warns the patient that if she waits too long the bone structure itself will waste away and then she will not be able even to wear dentures. The dentist diagnosed her trouble with the aid of X-ray films of all the teeth.

The young woman can't understand how extraction of the teeth which are sound to the roots would stop the bone from wasting away. Naturally, she supposes, the pus would stop flowing from her gums as it does now, but she wonders whether it wouldn't "settle in some other weak spot and create a condition that may even be worse than just the bad breath" she has now.

That last fear, that the pus may "settle in some other weak spot" is the only senseless thing in the young woman's letter—but then, in her place I imagine I could trump up plenty of equally vague reasons for refusing to sacrifice any useful teeth I had left. The young woman says "the thought of losing all my teeth makes me about half sick." It is too bad she didn't feel more than half sick about the loss of the first tooth or teeth or about the beginning of the trouble—that was the time when she might have spent the price of a new hat or a new coat on some good dental treatment, which might have saved all her teeth.

Periodontoclasia is this season's fashion in imposing terms. Peri means around; odonto means tooth, clasia means breaking, down, wasting, degeneration. So this ten dollar word for pyorrhea means degeneration of the tissues around the teeth —gums, sockets, jaw bone, muscles of chewing, everything.

If I were in this young woman's place I'd keep every useful tooth I could keep in my mouth. I'd follow a high calcium diet. I'd supplement my diet every day in the year and year after year without interruption with an optimal daily ration of vitamins A, C. and D—this being essential food, not medicine. I'd have the best dentures my dentist could devise to replace teeth already lost. I'd take plenty of exercise every day—chewing fruits, greens, vegetables and grains, particularly wheat. I'd apply to teeth and gums twice weekly diluted Talbot's solution—official name for this is Glycerite of Iodine and Zinc Iodide, N.F.—the patient should ask the dentist to teach him or her just how to apply this strong medicine, and thereafter he or she can apply it at home.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Some People Carry a Horse Chestnut

Have been carrying a copy of your column clipping from the Feb. 23rd issue ever since I was discharged from the Navy at San Pedro, and it hasn't helped my dandruff and falling hair very much, so I am inclosing a dime in clean condition and a stamped self addressed envelope.

(E. E. T.)

Answer— Thank you. If a lot of these people who send coin all messed up receive the pamphlet or booklet in that condition, how they would yelp about it! I hope you find the course of home treatment suggested in the booklet "The Hair and Scalp" satisfactory.

Nitroglycerin

The chapter on Anoxia and Angina Pectoris in your booklet "How to Breathe" has proved a godsend to me. I was so much impressed that I showed it to my doctor, who read it and said "OK". A dozen times since.

(F. A.)

Answer —I suppose you refer to the use of nitroglycerin tablets. The fact that I suggest this fine emergency remedy at all indicates that Ibelieve it is safe but at the same time it is always best to submit any such suggestion to your own physician for consideration before you try it out. For the booklet send twenty-five cents and stamped self address envelope, but no clipping, please.

What! No Wheat?

I went to a health food store to get some wheat for a man with asthma. They had none and the storekeeper said the man should not eat any wheat as it is nearly all acid. (N. H. S.)

Answer—True, wheat supplies several amino-acids which are essential for good nutrition. But there is no reason why a man with asthma should not make wheat a staple of his everyday diet. Send stamped self addressed envelope and ask in writing (do not use clipping) for the pamphlet "Wheat to Eat". Buy wheat directly from farmer who grows it, from farmers' market, from feed store, seed store, mill.

A REAL FISH STORY

Halifax, May 30 (CP) — Max Newman, a Halifax merchant, not only has one of the earliest fish stories of the season but one that rates with the best.

Trolling in a little lake near here Sunday he lost a battle with a trout which snapped at his bait and took 30 feet of his line along with it. Two hours later, back near the same spot, he spied the fish struggling on the surface, with his broken line strung out in front of it. When he netted it Newman also found a smaller trout on a fly hook on the broken line.

MRS. BROWN COULDN'T KEEP A SECRET

"Secrets make Mrs. Brown uneasy. So when we praised the flavour of her tea, she simply had to tell us she used brisk tasting Lipton's Tea."

Yes, everybody who tries Lipton's Tea is eager to broadcast the good news about that brisk Lipton flavour . . . so fresh, so lively, so full-bodied . . . never flat or insipid. There's a good teatime coming to you the moment you try Lipton's. Ask your grocer today for brisk tasting Lipton's Tea.

Poultry Co-op Outgrows Present Business Premises

Picton, May 30—An expansion program was announced Tuesday by Prince Edward Poultry Co-operative here. From a small beginning this business has grown to one of the largest in town and has outgrown its present premises in part of the Cold Storage plant.

An elevator, 30 by 40 feet, to hold 2,000 bushels of grain is to be erected.

A two-storey warehouse, with basement, 94 by 64 feet, will be built for egg grading and feed supplies, while a third building, 90 by 60 feet, is to be built and used as a poultry killing plant.

Three New Boats Built in Picton

Picton, May 29—Three new additions have been made to the fleet of Picton sailors. These are owned by H. B. Tully, J. C. Cooper and Emerson Mason. The boats are 22 1-2 foot long runabouts with 6 1-2 ft. beam, made of Honduras mahogany with black walnut and chrome trim. The spacious forward cockpits are fitted with leather upholstering and chrome chairs. They are powered with Kermath 100 h.p. Marine motors with approximate speed of 32 miles per hour.

The boats were built by the owners and were started two years ago, the work being held up due to lack of supplies. More than a hundred interested boating fans were present to see the craft launched. They will be seen in action at Prince Edward Yacht Club regatta in August.

Want 4-lane Road To Traverse County

Picton, May 29 — A resolution requesting that the Ontario government consider the establishment of the projected 4-lane King's Highway traversing the Bay of Quinte area on a route to pass through Prince Edward County, was passed by the Chamber of Commerce here at a special meeting. Under this plan the highway would enter the county at the west end, pass through the northern half and thence by bridge over the Bay of Quinte towards Napanee. It is pointed out that such a route would avoid the building of reveral bridges on any alternative routing, that such routing would give this insular county direct access to the east and west, that such routing would promote tourist travel by a scenic route.

Plans were made to entertain 24 United States editors who will visit here June 21st., and for a meeting at which T. H. Hamill of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce will discuss a plan of work.

5,000 Servicemen Seek Holy Orders

Canterbury, England (CP) — The Anglican church may perish for want of a ministry if all suitable candidates are not trained said Dr. G. F. Fisher, Archbishop of Canterbury, appealing for £600,000 for training purposes.

A pre-war shortage of clergy for the Church of England had been aggravated by the war and the strain on existing clergy had become very great. Unless all candidates considered fit for training were trained the church would be seriously handicapped.

Some 5,000 servicemen, anxious to enter the ministry, have been promised that if they are accepted for training no lack of financial means will prevent them from being ordained, Dr. Fisher said.

Boys' Picket Line Brings Capitulation

Toronto, May 30 (CP) — The boys were playing baseball on the vacant lot and the ball was knocked over into the neighbor's garden. It's happened many a time and it's happened many a time to this particular neighbor, John Youngberg. Mr. Youngberg, thoroughly exasperated, confiscated the ball.

From there the familiar incident takes a new twist. The youngsters have been reading the newspapers which are filled with stories of strike tactics. They quickly prepared placards and paraded up and down with them. The picket line carried such signs as "we protest you are unfair and cheap." "Down with Youngberg."

Mr. Youngberg capitulated after an hour of this and returned the ball. "But it does seem too bad," he ruefully commented, "that there is no proper playground here for them."

Whimsical Clerk Upset 1845 House

Toronto (CP)—A clerk's sense of humor became a subject of investigation for a special committee in 1848 when the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Canada ordered an inquiry into the listing of "Gypsies, tinkers, barkers, shavers, Shakers and Southcottites" among the religious denominations of Canada.

The incident was discovered in the records of the assembly by Hon. W. J. Stewart, present speaker of the Ontario Legislature, who was studying them in preparation for a revision of rules and procedure.

Investigation revealed that the whimsical clerk had inserted the offending words "in a moment of thoughtless levity" in an amendment entitled "An Act to enable religious societies of all denominations of Christians in that part of the province called Upper Canada to hold lands for certain purposes therein mentioned" in order to startle his brother clerks, who would correct the proof.

But the somnolent clerks let the item go through untouched and it became necessary for the legislature to expunge the words by further amendment to the act. The luckless clerk was censured by the speaker for his thoughtless action.

The term "Shakers" probably referred to the "United Society of Believers in Christ's Second Appearing" a sect which had been established on a communistic basis in the United States in 1784. The Southcottites were followers of Joanna Southcott, an English religious visionary who declared herself to be the woman of Revelations and gave forth prophecies in rhyme. She died in 1814.

4,000,000 Tons Steel Ingots Lost Thru Coal Strike

New York, May 30 (AP)—The steel industry will return to its full rate of production about three weeks after the coal miners return to work, the Iron Age, national metal-working paper, says.

It will take from one week to 10 days before an ample flow of coal will reach steel plants, now practically without fuel. The paper said the first week's step-up in production would be small.

Loss of 4,000,000 tons of steel ingots because of the coal strike was estimated so far. Steel output this week was put at 44 per cent of rated capacity, compared with 49 per cent a week ago and 89.5 per cent the week before the coal strike, now reported approaching settlement.

During the evening cards and games were played. Delicious refreshments were served and Miss Kingston thanked her many friends for their gifts and kind wishes.

WEDDINGS

CAMPBELL—RATH

St. Clement's Anglican Church, Toronto, was the scene of a beautiful Spring wedding on May 15, at four p.m., when Audrey Barker Rath, Rochester, N.Y., became the bride of Jack Wiltse Campbell, Toronto. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Folson Rath, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert James Campbell. In a setting of white snapdragons, lilacs and gladioli, the ceremony was performed by the Rev. Canon W. G. Nicholson, assisted by the Rev. Frank F. Fished, Rochester, N.Y. Wedding music was played by Mr. Stanley F. Bulley.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a gown of white faille taffeta with a yoke of marquisette edged with lace. Her bouffant skirt ended in a long train and her veil, of imported illusion, was caught with orange blossoms. She carried roses and lilies of the valley. She was attended by the groom's sister, Miss Vera Campbell, as maid of honor, Miss Eleanor Wiltse, Wellington, as bridesmaid, and Miss Patricia Keane, Wellington, as junior bridesmaid. Miss Campbell wore a gown of French blue taffeta with a bouquet of pink roses, Miss Wiltse wore blue faille taffeta with matching headdress and a bouquet of Spring flowers. Miss Keane was gowned in pink taffeta with a Juliet cap and a nosegay of Spring flowers.

Mr. Gordon Conquergood, Toronto, was groomsman, while the ushers were Messrs. Gordon Reburn, William Prentice, and George Day, Toronto, and Charles DeLong, Rochester.

The wedding reception was held at Dalfrew Manor, where the bride's mother received wearing a gown of powder blue crepe with rose and blue flowered hat and a corsage of gardenias. She was assisted by the groom's mother, who wore a grey and blue print dress with yellow and blue flowered hat and a corsage of gardenias. Out-of-town guests were present from Picton, Wellington, and Rochester, N.Y.

Following the wedding trip to Campbell Lodge on Magnetowan Lake, Northern Ontario, Mr. and Mrs. Campbell will take up residence in Toronto.

Shower Held For New Arrival

On Tuesday evening, a shower was held at the home of Mrs. James Hill and Mrs. Arthur Hill, McDonald Avenue, in honor of Mrs. J. S. Price, who recently arrived from England. The rooms were beautifully decorated with Spring flowers. The lovely gifts were arranged on a teawagon decorated in pink and white. Mrs. Price expressed her sincere thanks for the beautiful gifts. Dainty refreshments were served by the hostesses and Master James Hill. Mrs. S. J. Price poured tea.

On Saturday, Mrs. S. J. Price held a reception at her home in honor of her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Jim Price. Dainty refreshments were served by Mrs. Turvey, Mrs. A. Johnston, Mrs. Ted Bedford and Miss Jean Price.

Now! FLY-DED MADE WITH DDT Kills Flies for Weeks!

PROLONGED KILLING ACTION Now a feature of this Leading Insecticide

As always, FLY-DED kills flies and mosquitoes quickly, on contact with the spray. As a "knockdown" spray it is unsurpassed. But now, in addition:

Popular FLY-DED has an extra, added feature... DDT. This sensational new ingredient keeps on killing flies and mosquitoes for weeks after a properly applied spraying. The DDT ingredient can remain on walls, ceilings, floors, door jambs and kill flies and mosquitoes that rest on these places. Yet this DDT residue is stainless and invisible.

"DOUBLE DOOM" for Household Insect Pests

Use FLY-DED to rid the house of flies and mosquitoes. Use ROACH-DED to kill roaches. Use MOTH-DED to kill clothes-moths. All three have a pleasant odor... as fresh as a breath of spring. You'll be amazed at the added comfort and freedom from household insect pests you'll enjoy, by using these modern DDT insecticides. For best results, follow directions on the container carefully.

Liquor Problem Discussed By Women's Guild

The Young Women's Guild of Tabernacle Church, met Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Grant Coulter, 7 Evans Street.

The topic of discussion was the liquor problem, which was directed by Mrs. J. Buchanan, assisted by Miss Hazel Thompson, Mrs. H. Mills, and Mrs. Emery.

Mrs. Mills traced the history of liquor legislation from 1875, when the Scott Act made possible the prohibition of licensed houses, and in 1898 efforts were made to have National Prohibition, but the majority was not considered sufficiently large to effect it. In 1901 a constitutional dispute was settled by the Privy Council, granting the Provinces control of the retail trade, and the Dominion control of manufacture and importation.

During the period of the First Great War all the provinces except Quebec adopted some form of prohibition through the various Provincial Acts. However, since 1921 all the provinces except Prince Edward Island have discarded prohibition for some form of government control and regulation. In Prince Edward Island there is no unemployment, and very little poverty, only one divorce has been granted in the last 60 years, no cases of desertion, neglect of children, or child delinquency. There is no penitentiary there are only 13 policemen for its 90,000 population. Motor accidents are at a minimum, and in some years have been as low as two for the whole province. Could there be any connection between this state of affairs and the fact that the province has maintained prohibition?

Decreases Efficiency

Miss Thompson dealt with the physical effects, under the heading of "Guard Your Grey Cells" alcohol never increases human efficiency. When it gets to the brain, courtesy, refinement, decorum, self control, judgment, conscience and morals begin to slip. The world today is badly in need of people with brains controlled, trained and disciplined. Civilization is still very young, big achievements are ahead, the grey cells of the brain should be guarded.

Statistics prove that the ratio of crime increases correspondingly with the increased sale and consumption of beverage alcohol. In 1916 in the Province of Ontario only 2 million dollars were spent, while in 1944 this amount had been increased to $127 million, with a corresponding increase in the number of arrests and convictions in the courts.

For the past three years a school of alcoholic studies has been held at Yale University. It is not a temperance organization, but a study group in which even the liquor interests are represented. Some of their findings are as follows:

(1) That the problem is increasing rather than decreasing in importance.

(2) That the solution can only be secured by the action of the many, rather than the few.

(3) That it is the largest single factor responsible for crime, 28 per cent being directly traceable to this source.

(4) That it is the greatest cause of accidents in factories and on highways.

(5) That it contributes to the problem of juvenile delinquency,

(6) That it is responsible for the spread of venereal diseases,

(7) That it constitutes a sinister threat to morals and religion.

No claim of respectability or government approval can change the physiological and psychological effects of alcohol.

In every 1,000 people in United States and Canada two suffer from T.B., five are tainted with V.D., seven are under the shadow of cancer, 13 are alcoholics or problem drinkers.

In the first three groups, attempts are being made to find a cure. Each year there are national campaigns, and the best minds of the country are trying to effect ways of prevention and cures. The fourth group we are cultivating and using as a source of national revenue. It does seem a bit incongruous.

Alcoholic Anonymous

The work of the Association of Alcoholics Anonymous was described by Mrs. Mills. It is a group of approximately 14,000 people, formerly chronic alcoholics, who have been cured so effectively, that they are willing to help others fight the craving. It is non-sectarian, membership is open to any alcoholic who will make a definite and whole-hearted decision to try to stop drinking. They work anonymously, and their treatment draws on the resources of medicine, psychiatry and religion. There are 12 steps in their program, which can be summarized as follows:

(a) Admission of alcoholism and a desire to change

(b) Personality analysis and adjustment of personal relations

(c) Dependence on some Higher Power.

(d) Working with other alcoholics.

The conquest of inebriaty rests in its prevention, and only concentrated efforts with enlightenment, education, religious support and a complete change of thought and attitude towards excessive drinking will reach this goal.

A resume of the history of the liquor problem in Russia from the Czarist regime to the present, as taken from "Sin and Science" by Dyson Carter, was presented by Mrs. Buchanan. A very rigid temperance program is being conducted there at the present time, and is resulting in considerably decreased consumption, and a complete disappearance of alcoholism.

France which capitulated early in the war, due partially to the degraded condition of her people through excessive drinking is also trying to find a way to combat its problem.

In the state of the world's unparalleled need, the use of every particle of human energy, every cent of economic sufficiency, and the wisest effort of every individual is needed to repair the ravages of war, and supply even a bare subsistence for humanity, before much can be accomplished toward maintaining World Peace.

Mrs. E. Liddle Holds Trousseau Tea For Miss Lois Liddle

On Wednesday afternoon the home of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Liddle, Cedar Street, was the scene of a delightful trousseau tea hold by Mrs, Liddle in honor of her daughter, Lois, who is to be married on Saturday. Miss Dianne Hales opened the door as Mrs. Liddle and her daughter received the guests. Mrs. Phyllis Chambers and Miss Ruth Ireland were in charge of the bride's book. Showing the trousseau was Mrs. O. Hales, while gifts were shown by Miss Gwen Bennett, Mrs. Ruth, Lowther, ~~Mrs.~~ Margaret Shappee, Miss [illegible]een Rose, Miss Lina Kizer and Mrs. Marion Doxsee.

Inviting the guests to the tearoom were Mrs. Law and Mrs. Wiggins. The tea table, covered with a lace cloth, held a centrepiece of pink and white Spring flowers flanked by pink tapers. Pouring tea were Mrs. Chaplin and Mrs. F. Fairman. Replenishing the table were Mrs. W. H. Oliphant, Mrs. Rayfield and Mrs. Madden; while the Misses Eva Adams, Ruth Doig, Marion Robson and Helen McLean served. The wedding cake centred the buffet and Spring flowers decorated the rooms.

Trousseau Tea Held For Miss S. McIntosh

Mrs. J. A. McIntosh, 275 John Street, entertained at a beautifully arranged trousseau tea in honor of her daughter, Shirley, bride-elect of June. The spacious rooms of the home were decorated with snapdragons, stocks, sweetpeas and other Spring flowers. Opening the door was little Miss Judy Anderson, while Mrs. R. Flynn, Mrs. R. H. Wray, and Mrs. George Thorne invited the guests to view the trousseau. Mrs. Ernest McCormick and Mrs. G. A. Morton invited the guests to the tea room. Hostesses for the afternoon were Mrs. Reginald Anderson and Mrs. William McCormick, Napanee.

The tea table, covered with an Italian cutwork cloth, was centred with a beautiful bouquet of Spring flowers in pink, blue and white. Flanking it were tall eggshell tapers. Presiding at the tea table during the afternoon were Mesdames Ashley, Madoc, W. LaPorte, S. Morton, John McIntosh, Sr., Ken Couch, Trenton, and J. Imlah. Serving were the Misses Jean Timmerman, Joan Morgan, Miriam Drew and Mary Trualsch. Replenishing the tea table were Mrs. Howard VanderVoort, Trenton and Mrs. Ross Stiver.

Twin Blond English War Brides Greeted by Husbands in City

Peterborough Buddies in War Asleep at Station When Train Pulls In

A brief twinge of disappointment flashed momentarily across the faces of Mrs. Thomas Harvey and Mrs. Charles Gray, twin blond English war brides as, each with their one-and-one-half year old daughters in arms, stepped off the special war brides' train at the Belleville station early this morning.

The young mothers cast their eyes anxiously around for the familiar faces of their Peterboro husbands they expected to see but they saw only strangers. The two brides were among a party of 34 who detrained at Belleville and who crossed the Atlantic aboard the Queen Mary with 2,000 other soldiers' dependents.

But the disappointment experienced by the two attractive young mothers was fortunately only brief. As with other members of their party they were being escorted to the Red Cross reception centre, they were swept into the arms of eager husbands.

Noise of Train Awoke Husbands

The answer to the husbands' delay in meeting the train was due to their own over-eagerness, and partly to a local railroad official who had told them the special train would be over one hour late in arriving. The young husbands had motored to Belleville Wednesday evening and when told the train would not be in until six, decided to sleep in their car. Only the noise of the arriving train woke them.

Lifetime buddies in Peterboro, Harvey and Gray enlisted in the same military unit, went overseas and saw action together. While overseas they met and married identical twin sisters from Croydon, England. Now, they are again back at their civilian jobs with General Electric in Peterboro where they have prepared homes for their overseas brides.

Dressed Alike

In keeping with their likeness in appearance, the twin sisters, Marjorie, now Mrs. Harvey, and Constance, were dressed in identical fashion as they stepped off the train at Belleville. Both wore green kerchiefs over their blond tresses and were wearing like fawn coats and dark slacks. Mrs. Harvey's daughter Valerie, is aged 20 months, while the Gray's small daughter is two months younger.

But the two young daughters played shy with their fathers, following the family reunion, and clung respectively to their mothers. Mr. Harvey returned to Canada last July, while Gray returned two months later.

Miriam Drew First President Of Sorority

Beta Sigma Phi, international social and cultural sorority, held formal installation for a new chapter in Belleville, Wednesday evening at the Hotel Quinte. Mrs. Esther Lewis, international representative of Kansas City, Mo., conducted the ritual service at a table centred with a large bowl of yellow roses flanked on either side by tall black tapers. Assisting with the ritual were Misses Milda and Mary Margaret Dandeno, members from the Port Arthur Chapter.

Mrs. G. H. Stobie was installed as social sponsor and Mrs. W. J. Doyle, Sr., as educational director.

Officers installed were:

Miss Miriam Drew, president; Mrs. R. D. Boyce, vice president; Miss Jean Timmerman, recording secretary; Miss Helen Treverton, corresponding secretary; Miss Peggy McLean, treasurer.

Pledges are—Mrs. J. A. Farrell, Mrs. W. E. Jones, Mrs. R. D. Boyce.

Wooler

Rev. F. A. Lawson preached in the churches on the Frankford charges on Sunday in the interest of the Lord's Day Alliance work.

Prodding for Presents Promised "After the War"

Remember, during the war, that many, many relatives and friends postponed giving wedding presents "until the war is over and the couple start housekeeping?" I often wondered what would happen to all those promises, and if the passing of the months into years might not perhaps, in some cases at least, bedim the enthusiasm of the promise made with such high purpose.

Now letters are beginning to arrive indicating that more than a little "needling" is going to be required to pry these gifts from the promise-ers. For example:

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When my sister was married several years ago, she followed her soldier-husband out West and as they were not going to housekeeping our relatives did not give them any wedding gifts, but said they would wait until my sister and her husband started housekeeping.

Her husband is now home from overseas and they have bought their own home. Now I am wondering if it would be correct for me, her sister, to give a party at my house and explain to my relatives just what the party is for. Would this be correct?

W. J.

Your frank words about the motive of the party you are planning . . . "to explain to my relatives just what the party is for" . . . suggest, at least in my judgment, a too-obvious prodding of your relatives for the gifts they promised your sister. Also, since this party is being planned on the idea of a shower. . . really a Shower-Plus. . . it isn't good taste for a sister of the guest of honor to give it. I'm positive you'll be more popular with your relatives (even if you're not so co-operative with your sister's housekeeping plans) if you don't try to force wedding presents from them for your sister!

Tip For Breakfast Served in Hotel Room

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. When one is staying at a hotel and breakfast is served in the room every morning by a waiter, should a tip be given each morning or at the end of the stay? And about how much should it be?

2. Would your reply to the first question apply also when Continental Style breakfast is served; that is, when the tray is left in a compartment in the door?

A.M

1. You should tip the waiter each time he brings the breakfast tray. The amount of the tip depends on the amount of the breakfast check. . . but the tip for breakfast-service-for-one is generally about twenty-five cents.

2. When Continental Style breakfast is served as you describe, the hotel guest does not see the waiter and so has no opportunity to tip him.

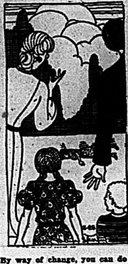
BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Reducing the Hips

Life sometimes seems bitter to the woman who has a figure like the spreading chestnut tree. She looks with envy upon the slender lovelies, remembers her youthful days when she looked as if she could slide through a crack in a door. We won't be so unkind as to remind her that the willowy and graceful silhouette could still be hers had she been mindful of diet, made it a habit to get proper exercise each day. Or are we reminding her? Looks very much like it. But let her be of good cheer. She can get rid of those hippy panniers if she will apply herself to the task. It has been done, time and again.



By way of change, you can do a rolling exercise

Take the soldier's position, Missus Hippy. Chest high, head balanced, abdomen pulled in. Have the feet fairly far apart, hands extended at the sides to provide balance. Lower the torso slowly until the buttocks rest upon the heels. Yes, you may do a tumble if you are not accustomed to calesthenics, but what does that matter in the noble cause of figure remodeling? Lift up on the toes slowly. That isn't easy. But keep at it.

These movements pull hard on the muscles of the hips and thighs; they strengthen them and give definite orders for fat cells to go off and die—which they will do, in the course of time.

Stand tall. Take a long step forward with the right leg, extending it as far as you possibly can, bending the knee. At the same time, extend the left hand forward as if pointing into the distance. While in that position, dip the hips downward as low as you can. Six times or more. Back to first position. Step forward with the left foot, extend the right hand, lower the hips six times. Repeat.

At the first feeling of fatigue, pause and rest, hands on hips. Take half a dozen long, deep breaths, inhaling through the nostrils, exhaling through the lips.

By way of change you can do a rolling exercise on the floor. This will help the good cause and afford endless amusement to the members of the family.

Lie on the back. Send the right leg toward the left, extending it as far as you can, touching the floor with the toes and rolling over on the side. Back to first position and repeat. Then do the same movement with the left leg.

Walking is the ideal exercise, but it is seldom brisk enough to deplete adipose tissue. Swimming is splendid, so is tennis.

RUN OVER—SUIT RUINED

Sydney, Australia (CP) —Two carriages of an electric train ran over James Porter, 20, when he slipped from a platform at Central Station in front of an approaching train. He escaped with a bruised hand—and a suit that cost 40 coupons, ruined by grease.

GARDEN OF REMEMBRANCE

London (CP) — St. James' bombed churchyard is to be a garden of remembrance, dedicated to the fortitude of Londoners.

Button Beauty

By ALICE ALDEN

BUTTON, BUTTON, who's got the button? Chances are that it's the girl who has been quick to realize what a grand job the button family can do when it comes to dressing up simple clothes not to mention making earrings. This simple little black frock is fresh and pretty with its plastic cut-out daisy buttons, white and cool on a field of black cotton. To make the matching earrings, snip off the shank, and, with household cement or finger nail polish, glue earring frames in place. There are frames at your local button counter.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

He Says He Loved Her, But Doesn't Bother to Write

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a girl of 17, and have been going steady with a soldier from my home town for one and a half years. He has been overseas quite a long time, and all the time he has been gone I have written every day and have sent him packages. He tells me he loves me a great deal and that some day he hopes we will be married.

It has been some time since I have heard from him. This has happened a great many times, and when I do receive a letter from him, he tells me he is sorry he didn't write sooner but he was lazy or just couldn't find the time. He has never sent me anything, nor does he ever remember my birthday.

I love him very much but I'm afraid to marry him lest I may not be happy with him because he is so lazy.

A Very Unhappy Girl.

I don't think I'd be in a hurry to talk about marrying this boy. And I don't think I'd keep on writing to him every day or sending him packages all the time, either, since he's so unappreciative.

Seems to me I'd just let him alone for awhile, and give him something to wonder about. You don't want to keep up a one-sided affair, do you? If he really does love you, and is just horribly lazy about writing, it ought to jolt him out of his torpor when he doesn't hear from you. And if he still doesn't write to find out why the letters and packages have stopped coming, then I think you would be a smart girl to make up your mind to forget him and look around for a more reliable boy friend.

Her Marriage Was Heaven For Four Years—Now it's the Other Place

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a married woman of 23. I have been married for five years and have a boy 3 1-2 My married life for four years was heavenly. My husband worked very hard and was faithful to me. I love him and he tells me he loves me, too.

But lately he has started drinking and coming in at all hours of the night. I have also been told that he has been running about with other women. Just last week he threatened to throw me out of our home.

Should I leave him for awhile and take my son and live with my parents? I have done everything a housewife could do. I get his meals, keep the house clean, and do the laundry, but I just can't seem to satisfy him any more. Do you think I should divorce, him or give it another try?

Disappointed Wife

I wouldn't think about a divorce just yet. Not before trying the plan you mention, of going to your parents for awhile. For, your husband to come home late some night to an empty house might bring him to his senses.

But try not to quarrel with him before you go. Just tell him as calmly as possible some day that if things keep on as they are going, he may come home some time and not find you there. Then, no matter what he says, let it go, and say nothing more about it. And if he doesn't mend his ways, make good on your threat without another word and go to your parents. Don't make any attempt to get in touch with him. Let him come after you, when he's ready. And if he doesn't, then it will be time enough to consider some other plan.

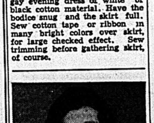
IT'S ABOUT TIME to have a gay evening dress of white or black cotton material. Have the bodice snug and the skirt full. Sew cotton tape or ribbon in many bright colors over skirt, for large checked effect. Sew trimming before gathering skirt, of course.



Mrs. A. McDonald, 163 Walton Street, Port Hope, says: "It certainly was a big day for me when I took to using all those husky EXTRA SUDS from Super Suds. I never dreamed I'd get dirt out with so little rubbing. EXTRA-SUDSY Super Suds sure proved to me that the more suds you have the less work you have to do to get things clean."

Thank you, Mrs. McDonald, for your swell letter. You see, Ladies, Super Suds is Concentrated. Super Suds actually gives you far more washing-power . . . livelier, richer suds, without hard rubbing. And Super Suds costs no more than ordinary washday soap.

Young Parisian Says French Youth Admire Canadian Honor and Valor

Some time ago Mr. Clayton Chambers, 97 West Bridge Street, sent a parcel overseas in which he enclosed a note bearing his name and address. Some months ago he received a letter of thanks from a young man in Paris, France. Then sprang up an interesting correspondence, the young Frenchman expressing a keen interest in the Dominion of Canada. A letter has just been received from the young man, whose address is 22 Rue de Doual, Paris, telling something of the spirit of the young men of France and how deeply they hold Canada in their affections. This letter in French was dated May 7th, and is here given in part in English translation:

French Youth Admire Canada

"Your letter brought me real pleasurre. Because I have delayed several weeks is not due to slackness on my part, but to the idea which came to me to write to you in your own language. Indeed, I have been learning English for a few months and I expected to possess a sufficient knowledge to compose a letter in fairly comprehensible language. However an event, inspired indirectly by you, has got the better of my patience and I feel that I must not leave you any longer in ignorance of my joy.

"I now know that you have been so kind as to take the initiative in publishing my letter in The Ontario Intelligencer. I trust that this echo of a sincere French heart has been understood by the Canadians of Ontario who read this paper as being the friendly appeal of all of real France.

"Please tell your compatriots again that our youth, when they talk of emigrating, prefer Canada to all other hospitable countries.

"It was through the intermediary of the Ontario Intelligencer that Mrs. Margaret Beer got my address. In the letter which she writes me, there is apparent all the generosity of the Canadian soul, of which you have already given me proof. Mrs. Beer lives in your city. She tells me that she knows you by reputation and asks me to let her have at once a list of the things which are most needed here, in order to make up a parcel for me.

French-Canadian Newspaper

"I must say that I am deeply indebted to her kind heart and I do not hesitate even to inquire whether a Canadian newspaper in the French language, would not be willing to publish in its columns the stories which I write in my spare moments, or else articles inspired by social and international problems which are now arising everywhere? I venture to ask you the same question. Please do not judge me to be an opportunist; if I had been one until this moment, I would now be in a more flourishing financial position. My sole intention would be to live more closely to a people I admire, for it remains the upholder of traditions of honor and valor, which run a great risk in a world swept by the breath of false ideologies.

"The number of young men who wish to seek work in Canada increases from day to day in Europe. Is it a matter of a select few or are these simply boys in search of adventure? From my point of view, among these there is a large number of young men who wish to become incorporated in a stable society and they show in this mass migration the result of those ill-defined struggles which have exploited the enthusiasms of youth....and demand of them sacrifices which prove to be futile."

The young writer goes on to say that "after victory the whole world had the right to hope for a friendly understanding among all nations. Hitler and fascism were defeated. It seemed that no further obstacle should arise in the path of co-operation of the nations without any distinction of races," but he says that they did no take into account the motive of self-interest. Regarding the present situation he says, "the remedy, as we know, lies in respect for the will of God. If, from top to bottom of the social ladder, every man should take God as a witness of his own acts, life would fflow on in peace and happiness." He closes by hoping "again that men of good will triumph over evil and that unremitting work will obtain its reward in achieving the well being of fthe masses."

$1,800 Fine Imposed For Illegal Trapping

Sudbury, May 30 (CP)— Two Biscotasing trappers were fined $1,800 exclusive of costs yesterday on charges of having 59 beaver skins, a mink skin and an otter skin out of season.

"It's just a case of theft from crown lands and something has got to be done about it," said Magistrate Willard Cooper in imposing the fines, representing $30 a skin for the beaver, $20 for the otter and $10 for the mink.

Tom McKee, 53, pleaded guilty to possession of 30 beaver pelts, the otter and mink skins. His brother George, 49, father of 11 children, pleaded guilty to possession of 29 beaver skins. It was the first time this season a penalty higher than the minimum of $2 a skin had been imposed here. Crown Attorney E. D. Wilkins said taking of the beaver probably depleted future beaver stocks in the area by 200, allowing for a year's breeding.

Two game wardens of the Biscotasing district, some 90 miles northwest of here, testified they watched the McKee camp May 7, saw the brothers, well-known district trappers for 30 years, paddle to an island and deposit two large parcels. Next day, the overseers retrieved the parcels, found they contained the skins. Beaver houses in the area had been interfered with, it was testified.

IMMIGRATION

Coming Very Soon

While Mr. Glen warned that transportation for such people likely would not become available until the end of the year, Mr. Gardiner indicated that the men to be brought in for sugar beet production would be coming in the near future.

Mr. Gardiner's announcement aroused speculation that the men might be taken from among the 180,000 Polish troops in Italy who do not wish to return to the Russian controlled homeland. Members of the Belgian Resistance Movement have frequently expressed a desire to come to Canada.

Other announcements at the Commons sitting included Labor Minister Mitchell's disclosure that a government appeal that striking lumber workers connected with the production of food containers in British Columbia return to work immediately had brought replies from both employers and unions. The replies did not indicate immediate compliance.

Citizenship Bill Passes

In the Senate, third and final reading was given to the bill establishing a Canadian citizenship. The measure, already passed by the Commons, now awaits royal assent.

Mr. Glen warned that no priority could be given on applications of foreigners to come to Canada. He did not know how many might come to the Dominion as a result of the change in the immigration laws.

Replying to questions, he said the new regulations did not extend to immigration from the Orient. Subject to the regulations, ex-servicemen of the Allied forces would be allowed to come to Canada to marry Canadian girls to whom they were engaged.

He said that as there would be a number of persons who could not obtain a valid passport, action had been taken to permit acceptance of a travel document establishing the identity of the holder in the case of an immigrant who had been displaced from his country of origin as a result of the war and did not possess a valid passport.

Cannot Disclose Details

Mr. Gardiner, who said he could not disclose the details yet of the government plan to bring in workers for the sugar beet industry, stated:

"I think I can say that provision is being made which will be satisfactory to the people of Canada generally to have men of the highest type brought here to replace prisoners-of-war who are being removed. These men will be brought in in as large numbers as prisoners-of-war are removed, and even possibly in greater numbers. . . .

"I hope when the announcement is made as to who these men are, where they are coming from and how they are getting here everyone will be ready to say that they are just as good as the prisoners-of-war and will make much better permanent settlers in Canada."

The minister's statement was made during the study of agricultural estimates, during which he disclosed discussions have been reopened as to whether the four-cent margin between the floor and ceiling prices of butter should be narrowed.

When the discussion turned to bacon, Mr. Gardiner said Canada could not hope to compete with Eire and Denmark for the British bacon market if all the good bacon was retained in Canada and the poor quality product sent to the United Kingdom.

Strike-Draft Plan May Face Defeat if Strike Ends Quickly

Washington, May 30 —(AP)— President Truman's strike-draft plan faces almost certain defeat in the Senate if the coal dispute is settled quickly, an Associated Press poll showed yesterday.

Of 62 senators willing to state their position, 44 said they are opposed to that section of the emergency bill which would empower the President to induct into the army those who strike in government - seized industries. Eighteen senators announced their support of the proposal, which has passed the House of Representatives.

The Senate began is second day of debate on the measure Wednesday

ter prices will triple if the price ceiling is removed. Poor corn crops have resulted in starch of low quality and at only 25 per cent of the 1943 supply.

In Stratford grocers estimate food purchased a year ago at $5 would cost $12 now but in other Ontario cities—Brockville, North Bay, Kingston, Peterborough, London, Cornwall, Woodstock, Kitchener, Windsor, Galt, St. Thomas and Ottawa—the conditions are about the same as in Toronto. In most of these cities increases in prices have been made in the last year.

Manitoba retailers look for an improvement in the beef supply with the temporary lifting of the red and blue brand price ceilings. Milk, fruit, vegetables and fresh fish are in good supply.

Saskatchewan prices are generally increased and dealers look for further boosts when subsidies to canners are removed. Queues are no longer seen but merchants report housewives more "persistent" since the end of the war.

Housewives in Alberta say the food situation is "certainly worse than last year." Storekeepers are making a practise of saving short lines for their best customers.

Foods containing sugar are scarce in British Columbia, along with fats and vegetable oils. Housewives say they can obtain 75 per cent of what they need and there are queues for certain scarce items.

All-Passenger Line Between N. Y. And N. J. Tied Up

Newark, N.J., May 30 (AP) — The Hudson and Manhattan Railroad, electric all-passenger line carrying 115,000 persons daily between New York City and Northern New Jersey, was shut down at 5 a.m. E.D.T. today by a strike of trainmen and engineers.

The strike occurred less than 12 hours after President Truman issued an order setting up a fact-finding board to report to the White House within 30 days.

The strike was called, union leaders said, because the company declined to accept provisions of the settlement which ended the general country-wide railroad strike Saturday.

Under the Railroad Labor Act a strike may not take place legally within 30 days after issuance of the presidential order although no penalties are provided if one is called.

The company, which contends it is a rapid-transit inter-urban line, and not in the category with railroads hauling freight, said it should not be bound by Washington decisions in the general railroad strike because it was not represented at the presidential conferences.

The H. and M. also asserted that "demands of the Brotherhoods for changes in rules and working conditions are not applicable" to the road.

This reference was to the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers who called the recently settled general strike.

The last strain, with only a handful of passengers aboard, pulled out of Hoboken, N.J., on the uptown shuttle run to 33rd Street, Manhattan, at 4:35 a.m E.D.T., and one minute before the strike deadline its crew picked up personal belongings and walked out of the terminal.

Dealings With British Food Mission During War Told Kiwanians by Carl B. Conger

Carl B. Conger, native of this city, and Chief of the Marketing and Merchandising branch of the Department of Agriculture for Canada at Ottawa spoke to the Kiwanis Club at their weekly luncheon on goods purchased by Great Britain during the war and how payments were arranged for same. Mr. Conger was head of the purchasing board for this work as well as carrying on his own duties in his department. For many years Mr. Conger carried on a wholesale produce business in this city before being called to a higher field of service and he is just another Belleville boy who has made good in a wider field of service.

Dorland Houston notified the members that help would be required to carry out the National Clothing Drive sponsored again this year by the Kiwanis Club. The drive is slated for June 17-29 and it is expected six million pounds of clothing will be collected. The members promised help in packing the clothing and also trucks to collect the same. John Both of the Diamond Construction Company was initiated into membership of the club by Cliff Baragar and was introduced by Ernie Finkle. The Kiwanis junior hardball team was congratulated by the president in winning the first game and asked the members to support the efforts of the kids.

Glad to Come to City

Mr. Conger was introduced to the gathering by Taylor Franklin and before opening his informal talk stated he was glad to come home to the old town and renew acquaintances and look over familiar sights of his boyhood. He described the setup of the Department of Agriculture in the Federal Government and showed how several boards were set up within the department when war broke out, the most important of these boards being the Bacon Board and the Dairy Board. A special Products Board was set up and "I had the honor of heading this department through the war and am still continuing the duties," said Mr. Conger. "I opened a food mission to work with the British government and Mr. Crewman of London was sent to Ottawa. Most of the business was done by telephone between the two countries."

Money Scarce

"Money was scarce" said the speaker, "and all payments were made out of mutual aid", and here the speaker describes how the system operated. "You must understand" said Mr. Conger, "that Great Britain fed the Canadian troops in Britain and this required a great deal of money." Thousands of cars of produce were shipped to the Old Country, the speaker declared and only a very few complaints were registered about the class of produce obtained, which speaks well for the Canadian grower and the shippers. He named many of the products sent which included fresh raspberries, green gage pulp, canned apples, evaporated apples, fresh onions, canned tomatoes, tomato cure, tomato paste, dehydrated vegetables, canned corn, dried beans, can diced carrots. "They wanted canned dried peas and beans but these could not be supplied" said the speaker.

Shipping a Problem

Shipping was a great problem during the war and the shippers had to have their goods on the dock at the time specified or space would be lost and wonderful co-operation was given in this regard the speaker stated. He claimed it was much easier to buy produce in the other provinces than in Ontario because in the other provinces the purchases were all made from the one party. The loan that Britain received will be used to pay for the products that are now being shipped. The speaker declared that no great future could be expected in the export of dehydrated products. "These products served their purpose in the war" said Mr. Conger. In closing he claimed that no influence was brought to bear on his department nor was there any interference with the carrying out of plans with the British government.

Transport Dept. Ship Strikers Ordered to Work

By JACK WILLIAMS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, May 30 — (CP)—Seamen on strike from Transport Department ships have been ordered back to work, J. A. (Pat) Sullivan, president of the Canadian Seamen's Union (T.L.C.) said Wednesday.

Mr. Sullivan made the announcement after a conference with Labor and Transport Department officials. There was no sign of a break in the strike on lake boats and there were indications that the strike action might be extended to deep sea ships.

The next step in the negotiations aimed at settlement of the lake strike was obscure.

Arthur MacNamara, deputy labor minister, said he expected to hear from the union representatives later and meantime no further conferences were scheduled.

Mr. Sullivan said the union was awaiting to hear the decision of the operators on "proposals" advanced by the union at yesterday's meeting with Labor Department officers. There was no indication of what the proposals were.

Settlement of the strike as it affects Transport Department ships will mean crews will return to work on five government ships in Montreal, Halifax and Saint John. Mr. MacNamara said the action of the crews in walking off the government ships was due to a misunderstanding. They had not been ordered to strike by the union.

Withdrawal of Last Of Occupation Force From Germany Delayed

London, May 30 — (CP Cable) — The withdrawal of the last of the Canadian army occupation force from Germany to England for repatriation to Canada was delayed more than a week by engine trouble on the liner Ile de France whose sailing had to be postponed, it was learned.

All C.A.O.F. men were scheduled originally to be out of Germany by the end of May, but it was learned that there are 1,000 troops delayed in Delmanhorst transit camp between Oldenburg and Bremen who will not be brought to England until about June 5.

A delay in their movement was necessary because the transit camps in England still were full when the Ile de France could not sail. In addition to the 1,000 at Delmanhorst, there are about another 1,000 Canadians in the area waiting to move.

The next repatriation sailing from England probably will be early in June and the tail end of the occupation force is not likely to reach Canada until the end of June.

PASSAGE MAY BE STOPPED

London, May 29 — (CP)—The Daily Mail today published a report from its New York correspondent asserting that passage of war brides and babies from England might be stopped for six months because of the death of some infants from intestinal ailments.

Ten deaths of infants reaching the United States on bride ships have been reported in the last 3 weeks. The deaths have been ascribed to "summer diarrhoea."

UNION PROPOSALS

sertion provisions of the Shipping Act.

Such action would, in effect, probably result in extension of the lake strike to salt water. Union representatives said their membership on the salt water ships amounted to 6,000 with 2,000 on the Pacific coast and 4,000 on the Atlantic coast. Not all of these men would be at sea at one time. The usual practice is that when sailors return from long voyages they go ashore for a time and another crew replaces them.

75 Ships Strike-Bound

The Canadian Seamen's Union strike against lake shipping went into its fourth day today with the Union claiming at least 75 vessels strike-bound and the operators declaring that "more and more" ships were moving.

The union announced seven more vessels were struck Wednesday—the James M. Stewart and Grainmotor at Cornwall; the Kingdoc at Port Colborne, the Lt. John Misener at Thorold, the Algonquin at Sarnia, the Fort Wildoc at the Sault and the Bayfax at Cardinal.

But four vessels of the Canada Steamship lines have cleared Kingston; three cleared Toronto, the Damia moved through the Welland Canal and the Cementkarrier docked at Port Colborne, and four vessels cleared from the lakehead.

The union charged that most ships still sailing were manned by strike-breakers or had only officer crews. J. A. (Pat) Sullivan, President of the Canadian Seamen's Union, left the conference at Ottawa yesterday to address a mass meeting at Kingston where he said the union would take action against ship-owners under the Canada Shipping Act which provides that no vessel may leave port insufficiently manned.

At the strike headquarters in Toronto Dewar Ferguson, union vice-president, scoffed at reports that success of the operators in moving a number of ships might defeat the strike. "As long as the union ranks hold firm — and they are holding solid—we're not worrying," he said. "The companies may get a few 'scabs' but they cannot get sufficient to man and operate the shipping industry."

Charge Boys Hired.

An official of the Canada Steamship lines at Montreal said that all except 11 of the company's 49 vessels are in operation. A central employment agency in Montreal was understood to have hired at least 200 non-union sailors yesterday. The union charged the owners were "hiring boys." Capt. Norman Reoch of the C.S.L.G. replied to this that "the men we are engaging are mostly ex-merchant navy men."

Capt. R. Scott Misener, owner of the Sarnia and Colonial Steamship Company, asserted at Port Colborne last night that the strike "has been broken." A director of this firm, Ralph Misener of Winnipeg, said at Port Arthur that ships there were being loaded as rapidly as possible.

The question of deep-sea crews entered again when Harry Davis of the Canadian Seamen's Union at Ottawa declared that unless charges are withdrawn against lake seamen — a total of 150 face warrants served under the Canada Shipping Act — the union would issue new instructions to deep-sea sailors on the signing of articles. These would refuse signing of the desertion clause under which most warrants have been sworn out against lake seamen.

And the fate of the Ottawa conferences called by the federal labor department appeared to hang in the balance today. The union yesterday presented a plan for settlement, calling for immediate introduction of an eight-hour day — main issue in the strike; with overtime pay, removal of all charges against seamen, return of seamen to the jobs they were working when the strike was called.

Plan Not Acceptable

The operators will answer the proposal today—but already last night there were statements that the plan was not acceptable to the ship-owners. Senator G. P. Campbell, counsel for the Dominion Marine Association, said operators had already adopted the eight-hour day and added: "Until this state of lawlessness created by the the action of bands of seamen and manhandling of crews of vessels is ended, the owners will have nothing further to do with the union."

A straight eight-hour day with overtime rates after eight hours was conceded however by the Federal Transport Department on behalf of crews of lighters at Maritime ports, five or six of which had been tied up by the strike. Arthur MacNamara, Deputy Labor Minister, said the tie-up of transport department vessels was due to "a misunderstanding," and Mr. Sullivan said the union was instructing crews of these ships to return to work at once.

At major lake ports reports to the Canadian Press showed these totals of vessels tied up: Cornwall 16; Toronto 10; Welland Canal 15; Lakehead 19.

LEWIS WINS WAGE

Some May Shut Down.

One important producer said privately he feared some "marginal" mines would have to shut down when relinquished by the government. John D. Battle, executive secretary of the National Coal Association, termed the government contract the forerunner of royalty demands on every other industry.

Another industry spokesman, declining to permit use of his name, predicted that the contract terms would add 35 to 50 cents to the cost of a ton of coal. The only bright spot any operator would acknowledge was the fact that because the government negotiated the contract, the Office of Price Administration might be more likely to entertain requests for price relief to offset the extra production costs.

The strike, which began April 1 without much flurry because of sizeable coal stockpiles, cost the miners $160,000,000 in wages, the solid fuels administration, estimated. It also estimated that the operators lost $278,000,000 in gross income from coal that was not mined — and a net profit of about $14,000,000.

Strategy Baffling.

Mr. Lewis' strategy was baffling but effective. He first presented nine general demands topped by his health and welfare claim fund, plus shorter hours and longer pay. He did not say how he wanted the fund raised or what pay and hour arrangements he had in mind.

Finally, after weeks of negotiation, stalemate and negotiation, Lewis proposed a seven-per-cent levy on the operators' gross payrolls. He said he wanted the union to have full say over spending the money. On the basis of last year's mine activity, this levy would have netted the U.M.W. $70,000,000.

'Boo' Ferris of Boston Red Sox No Morning Glory as He Wins Eighth Straight Game of Year

Cincinnati Reds Replace Chicago Cubs in Third Place of National Loop

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

Even Dave (Boo) Ferris' severest critics agreed today the Boston Red Sox' sensational righthander was no mere first-year "morning glory."

Five weeks ago, after the former air forces sergeant was driven from the mound under a barrage of base hits for the second straight time, fears were expressed that the soft-spoken Mississippian, who thrilled the baseball world last year by winning 21 games in his first big league campaign, might be in for a rough season in 1946.

Saved from defeats in his first two starts by the slugging prowess of his mates, Ferriss went on to roll up seven straight victories in less than a month to prove he was not haunted by the sophomore jinx that has tripped up many a freshman wonder.

Yesterday he made it eight in a row by blanking Philadelphia Athletics 2-0 to duplicate his 1945 performance when he won his first eight decisions.

The Sox could wrangle only 5 hits off Phil Marchildon of Penetanguishene, Ont., Ferriss' mound opponent, but capitalized on a walk and an error to score single runs in the sixth and eighth innings.

Called on Ruffing

The Yanks called on their 42-year-old standby, Charley Ruffing to stave off Washington's bid to oust them from second place and old Rufus responded with a brilliant three-hit 4-0 victory over the Senators.

Southpaw Vic Lombardi became the first National League pitcher to record seven triumphs when he throttled New York Giants on five hits in pitching the pace-setting Brooklyn Dodgers to a 5-1 victory.

Detroit's Hal Newhouser joined Ferriss as the majors' only 8-game winners when he pitched the Tigers to a 4-1 decision over Cleveland Indians.

Cincinnati Reds replaced the Cubs in third place by edging out a 7-6 victory over Pittsburgh Pirates.

Schoolboy Rowe held Boston Braves to five hits under the lights to pitch Philadelphia Phillies to a 3-1 triumph.

St. Louis Browns and Chicago White Sox were not scheduled.

TORONTO LEAFS TAKE 6-2 LICKING FROM ROCHESTER

Glen Gardner Scatters Six Hits to Win First Game of Season

(By The Associated Press)

Montreal Royals and Rochester Red Wings, two of the hottest teams in the International League, clash today in one of the loop's four Memorial Day doubleheaders.

Montreal, in first place by three games and riding along at an .846 pace since May 4, will meet the Wings, winners of seven of their last 10 engagements, in a twi-night bill at Rochster.

Another important bargain meeting will take place in Syracuse where the runner-up Chiefs tangle with the third-place Baltimore Orioles.

Newark's fourth-place Bears take on the tail-end Jersey City Giants in Jersey City and the fifth-place Toronto Maple Leafs tackle the seventh-place Buffalo Bisons in Buffalo to round out the circuit's program.

Montreal extended Buffalo's losing streak to nine in a row last night as Chet Kehn weathered a 14-hit attack to post a 4-2 triumph for the Royals.

Glen Gardner, veteran Rochester righthander, chalked up his first complete game victory of the year by scattering six Toronto hits in pitching the Wings to a 6-2 triumph.

Syracuse took advantage of Rookie Duane Pillette's wildness to defeat Newark 8-4. Pillette forced in three runs with walks and Al Rubeling accounted for two more with a two-run boundary belt in the fourth.

Sey Jeity blasted three Baltimore tossers for 11 hits and an 8-1 victory. The Giants, who ended a 13-game losing streak Sunday, piled up a 8-0 lead before the Orioles nicked Don Fisher for their lone run in the ninth.

AMERICA TO FACE TOUGH OPPONENTS IN WIGHTMAN CUP

New York Sports Writer Thinks English Women Have Good Chance to Recapture Tennis Trophy

By FRANK ECK

New York, May 29 (AP)—Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Cooke of Los Angeles can't make the women's tennis trip to Europe. Without this country's No. 1 competitor, America's chances of retaining the famous Wightman Cup look about as thin as this line.

The national champion says she is unable to get away from home during the period when the matches are to be held in Wimbledon.

The international series, an event that felt the sting of war almost as much as yachting and polo resumes in London June 14-15. The Wightman Cup matches were last held in 1939 when the U.S. made it nine in a row by winning at Forest Hills.

America will have a fairly strong squad headed by Pauline Betz of Los Angeles and Margaret Osborne of San Francisco, No. 2 and No. 3 women players, respectively, but if I know anything about tennis—I said only if—the British appear stronger on past performances.

England's contingent is headed by Mrs. Kay Stammers Menzies. Now I don't know what she did during all those blitz days but I do know that she did a lot to popularize tennis in this country about 10 years ago.

As Miss Kay Stammers she was quite the rage, the Helen Wills of England so to speak. She was pretty—still is for that matter—employed a wicked left-handed stroke and was very easy to look at in shorts. She took part in three Wightman Cup series at Forest Hills and the boys who cover tennis raved about her so much that Hollywood gave her a screen test.

It was along about 1935 that she hit the sports headlines by beating Helen Jacobs, 5-7, 6-1, 9-7. The following year at Wimbledon Kay conquered Helen, 12-10, 6-1, but in '37 Miss Jacobs won at Forest Hills, 6-1, 4-6, 6-4. Kay Stammers also lost to Alice Marble that year but in 1938 she became one of the few women tennis players in the world to beat both Jacobs and Marble.

Beaten by Newcomer

I have nothing to indicate her recent tennis form other than the word of Bill Scanlan of the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association who says that Kay Stammers recently suffered a pair of straight set losses at the hands of Mrs. Jean Nicol Bostock, a newcomer to Wightman Cup play for England. However, Mrs. Bostock most likely is younger than Mrs. Menzies for the former was all-England girls champion in 1938.

Another strong player awaiting the American gals is Joan Ingram. She has been in two of the previous Wightman tests, winning a doubles match in 1938 after losing one in '37.

However, Mrs. Hazel Hotchkiss Wightman of Chestnut Hill, Mass., America's non-playing team captain, is confident the U.S. will make it 10 in a row over the British.

Besides the Misses Betz and Osborne those who will make the 14-hour trip by air are Louise Brough of Beverly Hills, Calif., American doubles champ the last four years; Miss Patricia Canning Todd of Lafayette, Calif., currently ranked No. 5 and Doris Hart, sixth ranking star from Miami, Fla. After a few days practice at Forest Hills the team will leave LaGuardia Field on May 29.

The Wightman Cup, one of two existing international sports trophies for women, represents in women's lawn tennis the same ideals as the Davis Cup in the men's game—good sportsmanship, promotion of international friendship and supremacy in tennis. The cup was presented for annual competition by Mrs. Hazel H. Wightman when the West Side Tennis Club in Forest Hills was dedicated in 1923. In the series of 17 matches played thus far, the U.S. has won 13, last losing by 4-5 in England in 1930.

Yesterday's Stars

(By The Associated Press)

Vic Lombardi, Dodgers—Limited the Giants to five hits in registering his seventh consecutive victory over the New Yorkers, 5-1.

Terry Moore, Cards — Drove in three runs with a pair of singles as the Redbirds beat the Cubs 5-2.

Dain Clay, Reds — Walked in the eighth and scored the run that broke a 6-6 deadlock as the Reds shaded the Pirates 7-6.

Dave Ferriss, Red Sox—Pitched a six-hit 2-0 shutout over the Athletics for his eighth straight.

Red Ruffing, Yankees—Blanked the Senators with three hits in pitching his 268th major league victory, 4-0.

Hal Newhouser, Tigers — Held the Indians to five hits with a 4-1 victory, his eighth of the campaign.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

There is one thing about this Joe Louis-Billy Conn fight scheduled for June 19 that is outstanding, and makes it differ largely from any other bout for the heavyweight championship of the world. And that is, the noticeable lack of public interest, if Joe Doakes on the street can be used as an example.

• • •

True, the dyed-in-the wool addicts of the slug industry are airing their views, but that is to be expected. But the quiet unassuming type of genus homo, who took more than a passing interest, and made himself heard, when such bouts as the Dempsey-Tunney; Dempsey-Carpentier were in the publicity stages, is keeping himself within the shell.

• • •

The bout is setting what might be a record in preliminary non-excitement, with most efforts on the part of press agents and boxing writers lacking the customary zip and fire. Perhaps that is because Louis is rated such a heavy favorite in the circles of "I know." Even at that, Mr. Conn might fool 'em.

• • •

The fight, with its $100 tickets is a perfect demonstration of how these lush times surpass the highly glamorized "Golden 20's"—the era between the first world war and the descent of the big depression of the early 1930's.

• • •

The youngsters of today are often told that "them were the days" when everybody was rolling in wealth, throwing away their light money raising hell in general for pleasure purposes only and any sport venture was sure of success. Don't believe it, kids. It's just so much hooey.

• • •

Many sports ventures fell by the wayside, and others made good because of outstanding characters who proved tremendous drawing cards. The fight game reached its peak mainly because Dempsey was one of the principals and for no other reason.

• • •

Among the sports which did well in the so-called golden era were baseball; football and golf, and this because the famous Babe Ruth, Red Grange and the Four Horsemen of Notre Dame and Bobby Jones were in their heyday, and their names spelt box-office.

• • •

Curiously, and here comes fickle-minded John Fan, for a long time the larger portion of the public wanted to see Dempsey on the canvas with a referee counting ten over him. That was the psychological background for his fights with Georges Carpentier, Tommy Gibbons and Angel Luis Firpo. The women of the continent, would have torn the Manassa Mauler limb from limb after his knockout of the French idol Carpentier.

• • •

But, as soon as he was beaten, John Fan placed him on a pedestal as a national hero. Gene Tunney, the book-reading professor was too high-crust for the boxing hoi polloi and the fans wept many tears of disappointment and chagrin when he weathered the famous long count in at Chicago to retain his title.

• • •

From that time on, the heavyweight picture until the time of Joe Louis, was not painted with gobs of golden dollars, of mobs clamoring for tickets. An ordinary crowd saw Tom Heeney fight Tunney, and that took place at the peak of the big boom in 1928 the year before "Wall Street laid an Egg" and Yankee economic slogans included "two cars in every garage." Today, with a different background, one car would do very nicely.

• • •

There appears to be plenty of money around in these piping times of alleged peace, and sport is booming all over the country if not the world. Someone, however, has predicted that it may not last too long and when production starts, if it ever does, and little people are tied up to long-term payments for cars and homes, you may hear again of a word "recession" and maybe the powers-that-be will have to battle to keep the prices up instead of down.

• • •

The Louis-Conn affair, however is a private one. The attendance is to be held down to 60,000 with the tickets $10 to $100 each, and even at those fancy prices, the brawl probably will pull in a record gate.

• • •

Bobby Bunton, Kiwanis Juniors star chukker faltered in the fifth innings of last night's hectic baseball brawl between his squad and Napanee, when he allowed the visitors to nick him for two hits, and again in the seventh when Vick lined out a single. Otherwise the blonde righthander had perfect control of the visiting batters, while his mates were pounding three visiting hurlers all over the lot for 12 hits and 18 runs. The Kiwanis bats had a field day and the youngsters fielded in faultless style behind good pitching.

• • •

The win gives the Kiwanis Kids their second straight victory and if Coach St. Louis gets the reinforcements said to be in the offing the younkers will make the rest of the squads sit up and pay attention. Reeves was the batting hero with a slashing home run, a triple and a single, while Vern Green, second edition of the famous "Sonny" had a perfect day at bat with a sacrifice, two walks and two hits.

• • •

The Napanee squad did not appear to be the same team that played against the RCAF squad the other night, and maybe young Mr. Bunton had a lot to do with that. He hurled hitless ball until the fifth and sent down eleven Napanee batters via the strikeout route.

• • •

Bud Green, another member of the "Sonny" clan wielded a potent bludgeon and his roaming homer into the blue was good for at least six bases. These Green lads are typical chips off the "Sonny" block and have all the earmarks of good baseball players.

• • •

Napanee errors accounted for a lot of the winners' runs, and the lads from down east appeared to lack fielding practice. They tossed the pill around at times when errors were costly and the speedy Kiwanis baserunners were quick to take advantage of their issues.

• • •

Prexy Don Thomas' talk to the Umps apparently had good results, for the arbiters called the game last night exactly three and one-half minutes after it was scheduled to start. The fans appreciated the fact and a number who had relied on the teams and officials reverting to former year's habits, and came along about 7 p.m. were surprised to see the pastime well under way and the game in the third innings.

• • •

Apparently baseball will be more popular here this year, for an excellent crowd saw last night's game. The bleachers and "grandstand" seats are comfortable, close to the diamond where practically every play can be seen, the games are starting on time, and a fine type of baseball is being provided by the league squads.

Winnipeg, May 30 —(CP)—Winnipeg Blue Bombers wind up their spring training session this weekend and coach Jack West returns to his North Dakota home to plan a warm gridiron welcome for Montreal Alouettes who play an exhibition series here Aug. 31 and Sept. 2.

What talent West can throw against the Alouettes won't be known until he returns late in July to prepare for the fall practices and the Western Canada Conference schedule.

You can take his word for it though that the Bombers "will be in there with everything we've got. I'm going back across the line and when I return I'll have a few imports with me. I've already contacted two or three backs but of course nothing certain can be arrived at this early."

Some of the players West is angling for are Walter Dolber, Bill Ordway and Don Hiney, all former North Dakota stars. Dolber, a triple-threat half back recently discharged from the U. S. Coast Guard, also is sought by the Los Angeles Bulldogs, formerly the Cleveland Rams. Ordway is a full back and Hiney, who attended the spring session here is another half back.

Then it is possible that Martin (Butch) Gainor, an all-time great in Canadian football, may turn out again and West frequently has voiced his praise of centre Mel Wilson.

The Bombers incidentally don't anticipate any trouble in meeting the $7,500 guarantee they have made the Alouettes. Osborne Stadium holds between 6,000 and 7,000 and sellouts are expected.

A lot of Winnipeg women are fastball fans this year for the first time. An added attraction at Monday night games in the Winnipeg senior men's fastball league is the giving away of 12 prizes including two pairs of nylon stockings.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, May 30 — (AP) — Every time a report comes in on the University of Oklahoma's high school baseball tournament, it leads to some wondering why other colleges don't imitate it ... this year Oklahoma had 19 class "A" teams and 63 in class "B" playing for three days on nine diamonds . . . publicity director Harold Keith explains: "The team whose pitcher has the most rubbery arm and the team which can live on hamburgers and red soda pop for three days and still play inspired baseball usually wins. It's a tough tourney on pitchers (who sometimes work four or 5 games in three days) but nobody complains. They're having too much fun."

Shorts and Shells

Bill Kennedy, who pitches for Rocky Mount, N.C., in the Coastal Plain League, is drawing even bigger raves there than the Giants' "find," Montia Kennedy ... Bill, who was dropped from St. Louis Cardinals' system, had whiffed 86 batsmen in 49 innings (as of last week) with as many as 19 strikeouts in one game. He couldn't get a strikeout record because Andy Tomasic of Kinston fanned 22 Tarboro batters one night . . .

Correction, please

While Ernie Lanigan's statement that the longest completed baseball game was a 30-inning affair played in Cleveland in 1907 still stands, H. L. Stallard of Coeburn, Va., has dug up an old tome "Balldom," that lists a 36-inning tussle between the Victors and Elicitis at Columbus, O., the same year. The book doesn't give the score or other details.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

LESSON NO. 399
By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Elva Tyme and Jinny Jabberpuss and Tillie Titegirdle and Nettie Knittingham are an ideal foursome. They agree on at least one thing in bridge. It is: Always lead highest of partner's suit.

When you tell them it is not always so, it takes the props out from under them. They receive the statement with mingled feelings of surprise, doubt, indignation, disappointment, and some horror.

They thought they could swear by the fact that you should lead the top of partner's bid suit. Nor are they alone in that belief. Millions have always believed it.

Forgive me, dears, if I have upset your axiom cart. It is time for bridge players to know better. Not always should you lead highest of partner's suit. Times are when you should lead the lowest.

In a blind lead (no suit bid by partner), decide by rule which suit to lead. If it is a long suit (four cards or more) without a sequence top, lead its fourth best.

Well, in a directed lead (suit bid by partner), use the same rule. Start with the same card as you do in a blind lead. With four or more cards in the suit, lead fourth best if it has no sequence.

Somewhere along the line your partner bid clubs before south became declarer at a four spade contract. Your directed lead is a club from the group you see here:

♣Q 9 4 2

You have no sequence top to lead from your suit. It contains at least four cards. Lead its fourth best; the deuce. You learn to do that in a blind lead. Do it in a directed lead.

All this is in the books of our best experts, like Culbertson. It is said there in grander language. Dig it out from all brilliant phrases and exceptions and there it is.

Learn good rules of which you know all than too many stunts not at all.

Hollywood Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, May 30 —(AP)— Jimmy Durante is celebrating his 30th year in show business and everybody is getting into the act.

"I yam touched," said the Schnoz. "People are sayin' such nice t'ings about me. They're even takin' out ads in da trade papers."

I found Jimmy in the madhouse which he calls a home. He said that next Wednesday will mark the 30th anniversary of his debut at a small nightspot in New York's Harlem. Of course, he had been playing at Coney Island and elsewhere before that time, but M.G.M. "re-arranged" the anniversary to coincide with the release of Jimmy's latest, "Two Sisters From Boston."

If you want to understand your husband better, take up his business. That's Mrs. Dick Haymes' thought for today.

Mrs. Haymes (Joanne Dru) is enacting the title role in her first film, "Abie's Irish Rose." Said she: "We have much more in common now. And it doesn't disrupt our family life." They have two children.

After an absence of more than a year and a half, Frank Sinatra is back at M.G.M. today, recording songs for "It Happened in Brooklyn." That's an example of career mismanagement. He shouldn't have allowed the effects of his only good picture, "Anchors Aweigh," to wear off. . . . June Haver's sister Evelyn starts her career soon as a band vocalist in San Francisco. . . . Gary Cooper has his eye on a ranch in the northwest corner of Montana. . . .

SACOS DEFEAT MT. VIEW 9-2 FOR FIRST WIN

Maxie Peoples' SACO Marines surged into their first win in the Belleville Softball Association schedule at Mountain View last night, turning back the airmen by a 9-2 score.

Baldwin, on the mound for the winners pitched almost flawless ball restricting the Mountain Viewers to two runs and holding them scoreless for seven innings. He struck out three batters and his mates turned in an outstanding fielding performance behind him.

McCartney, assigned to the hurling chore for the homesters was nicked for 13 runs by the SACO batters but stayed the nine inning route for his team.

SACOS went to work early in the game scoring two runs in the first innings when Chapman's double drove in Barriage and Woods who had singled ahead of him. They got another in the third and three in the fifth, one in the sixth and their final run in the ninth.

Mountain View scored one run in their half of the first innings when McCartney's hit drove in Lombly who had singled ahead of him. Their second run came in the 7th, Potter, lead-off man tallying on Lombly's second hit of the game and a SACO error.

"Red" Carson hit a home-run in the third innings for SACOS, and the same player led off with a single in the next inning, to start the three-run rally.

The teams:

SACOS—Woods, cf; Barriage, rf; Carson 2b; M. Storms c; R. Reid lf; Chapman 3b; Blaker 1b; Sword ss; Baldwin p.

Bike Racing, Bull Fighting To be Promoted

By GAYLE TALBOT

New York, May 30 (AP)—Convinced the North American postwar sports program is short in two important phases—six-day bike racing and bull fighting—a French promoter named Jimmy Arley has come all the way from Paris to fill these glaring gaps in the athletic agenda.

He says, further, that he comes with sufficient financial backing and hard-earned experience to guarantee that bike racing and bull fighting will eventually draw huge crowds in at least 20 principal cities.

The fact that bull fighting is frowned upon in Canada and the United States has not depressed the dapper Parisian in the least. He knew that before he came, and he has cooked up a synthetic version of the ancient Spanish sport which he says is a corker, valid in every particular except that nobody gets hurt, not even the bull.

At the moment Arley says he is lining up agents to nail down leases on indoor arenas for his bike pedallers and outdoor premises for his toreadors. He says he signed up all of Europe's best six-day racers before he came over, and his bull fighters, all natives of the basque country of Spain, are only awaiting his summons. They will bring along 18 specially trained bulls who will abide by his new-coined rules, Arley says.

"You see," promised the bubbling visitor. "Your people will go crazy for the bull fighting. Maybe there will be only 50,000 at the first one, but maybe 200,000 will be standing up in Soldiers Field in Chicago after they hear how wonderful it is."

In renewing bike racing, which began dying on the vine some time before the war, the French promoter has in mind to bring back the old-time rough-and-ready variety where a real fan doesn't have to leave his seat for six whole days and nights except to buy another hot dog or perhaps call his wife.

KIWANIS JUNIORS EASILY DEFEAT NAPANEE BY 18-3

Kids Unleash Powerful Hitting Attack Against Trio of Napanee Hurlers

Unleashing a powerful hitting attack behind the three-hit pitching of Bobby Bunton, the Kiwanis Juniors won their second straight victory at the Alemite Grounds, Wednesday night, pounding a trio of Napanee hurlers for 12 hits to romp home easily on the long end of an 18-3 score.

Speedy St. Louis' youngsters laid down a consistent barrage of base-clouts including homers, triples and singles, scoring in every innings but the fourth and driving two visiting hurlers to the showers before the opposition had collected anything that looked like a hit off Bunton.

They scored five in the first innings; two in the second, six in the third, drew a blank in the fourth, added a pair in the fifth and topped off a neat evening's batting performance with three in the sixth. The game was a seven innings affair.

Bunton Invincible

Bunton was practically invincible, holding the Napanee batters hitless for four innings. He whiffed eleven, walked four and helped himself to a husky single in his first time at bat. Napanee scored their first run in the second when Currie, who had walked, stole second and gone to third on a passed ball, raced home on an infield out.

The visitors got their remaining runs in the fifth when Turner and Leary who had reached second and third on a walk and the former's hit came in on Switzer's timely single to centre. Bunton forced the next batter to fly to centre and that ended the scoring for Napanee.

Bush, Soules and Bunton lashed out singles in the first innings and these coupled with a trio of walks off Cronin, Napanee starting hurler, sent five runs across the plate. Soules sacrificed V. Green to second in the next innings, and brother Bud, poled out a towering home run to deep left centre for a brace of markers.

Three Errors Help

Three errors put Junior runners aboard in the third, and V. Green's single scored two. That was the end of Cronin and another righthander Morton stepped into the breach.

Morton was inclined to be wild and successive hits by St. Louis and Reeves with the bases loaded sent four more runners across the plate. Vick, a left hander, replaced Morton in the 4th, but he was pounded for four hits and five runs before the game ended.

Napanee was weak in the fielding department and committed errors at times when bobbles meant runs.

Reeves smashed out a terrific homer in right centre in the fifth innings and lashed out a triple the next time up. These coupled with a single marked him as the star of the hit parade, Bush and V. Green got a pair apiece.

Mrs. J. F. O'Hara Owns Thorncliffe Racing Track

Toronto, May 30. (CP)—Mrs. James F. O'Hara is probably the only woman race-track owner in the world. Widow of James O'Hara, she said during the race meeting at Woodbine track here yesterday that it is just possible the Thorncliffe race track will re-open for racing this Autumn.

Mrs. O'Hara, a sprightly lady standing all of five feet three inches, has controlling interest in the Thorncliffe track, and in the Bowie and Marlboro tracks in Maryland. There has been no racing at Thorncliffe, a spacious mile track in suburban Leaside, since the war started but the track now is being put back into racing shape and if improvements can be finished in time a fall meeting is possible.

After her husband died in a motorcar crash in December, 1944, Mrs. O'Hara took over his interests. She suffered another blow when James O'Hara's general manager, Fred Livingstone, died.

"But in the last year and a half I've moved right into the front office," she said. "Women, when they have to, make good business men." She's a native of Baltimore, Md.

33 MEN READY FOR 500-MILE SPEEDWAY GRIND

Expected Indianapolis Race Record Will be Broken in Today's Race

By DALE BURGESS

Indianapolis, May 30 (AP)—Thirty-three men old enough to know what they were doing wheeled hopped-up, streamlined race cars over the Indianapolis speedway bricks today for a 500-mile race that promised to be the fastest since the international sweepstakes started in 1911.

For the 30th running of the event, halted by war since 1941, 50-year-old Ralph Hepburn of Van Nuys, Cal., oldest of the tribe, had the fastest car with the possible exception of a new idea on wheels driven by Paul Russo, 32, Kenosha, Wis. Either might break the record of 117.2 miles an hour, set in 1938 by Floyd Roberts, killed in the 1939 race.

Hepburn threatened to run over his competitors with the low-slung 500-horsepower Novi-Governor special. The veteran had considerable pre-race motor trouble but smashed a seven-year-old record to qualify at 133.944 miles an hour. Russo qualified the Fageol Twin Coach Co. special at 126.183 but has installed new gears since then and nobody knows how fast the fish-shaped, two-engine job will go.

The field, averaging 36 years, was studded with names long familiar to speedway fans, including Cliff Bergere of Indianapolis, one-time Hollywood stunt man; Chet Miller of Glendale, Calif., and Russell Snowberger of Detroit.

Of the nine first-comers, Jimmy Wilburn of Indianapolis was possibly most likely to win some of the $102,500 in prizes. He has been a succesful dirt track racer for 15 years and has the Alfa-Romeo, owned by Bill White of Los Angeles, in which Harry McQuinn of Indianapolis finished seventh in 1941.

Speedway president Wilbur Shaw, three-time winner, told drivers at a last-minute meeting that nobody would be penalized for passing on the inside, although American Automobile Association rules specify that inside passing is permissible only in an emergency.

"If winning the race isn't an emergency," said McQuinn, "I don't know what is?"

MOTH DAMAGE GREAT

Byron Nelson Six Strokes Up Over Dick Burton

New York, May 30. (AP) — Highlighted by the second half of the 36-hole international match between Byron Nelson and Dick Burton, the Goodall Round Robin Golf tournament opens over the winged foot course at suburban Mamaroneck today after a wartime absence of five years.

Burton, Britain's duration open 'champion, faced the final round of his challenge match with Nelson with a deficit of six holes, carved out by the US. P.G.A. titleholder in their first 18-hole duel over the Charles River Country Club layout yesterday at Newton, Mass.

They will be joined by Jimmy Demaret to form the leading threesome in the opening round of the four-day Goodall meet, in which each of the 15 selected professionals meets all his rivals during the seven rounds.

At the end of the 126 holes Sunday, the winner will be decided by the number of gross points, based on the holes won.

Following the Nelson-Burton-Demaret threesome today will be Ben Hogan, top money winner of the year to date; Herman Keiser, hero of the Augusta Masters tournament, and Sam Snead.

A total of $10,000 will be awarded, with $1,000 going to the winner, $1,400 to the runner-up and $1,000 for third. Two rounds are carded each day after today.

In blazing to a six-up lead over Burton in their initial test yesterday, Nelson turned in a one-under-par 71 over the 6.415-yard Charles River course, on which he holds the competitive record of 68 set for years ago.

Burton, playing only two days after his arrival from England, uncovered a troublesome slice and a shaky putting touch which caused him to soar to a 79.

Joe McCarthy's Baseball Future In Lap of Gods

New York, May 30. (AP)—Joe McCarthy's baseball future is as vague as the former New York Yankee manager's own cryptic observation, "one never knows".

The 59-year-old veteran who resigned as Yankee skipper last Friday was asked by a reporter if he had been in touch with any other club.

"Nobody has contacted me," he said. "And I wouldn't listen to them if they did."

On the other hand he did admit that "after two or three weeks, I might get awfully tired of looking at those mules on my farm." When asked if that meant he would consider a return to baseball, Joe came up with his "one never knows" reply.

JOHNNY RAY SURE CONN WILL TAKE JOE LOUIS

Pulled Fighter Out of Pittsburgh's Rough North Side, Made Him Champ

By JOHN D. HAMILTON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Greenwood Lakes, N.J., May 30 —(CP)—Around the Conn fight camp Johnny Ray sits playing gin-rummy all day at a table overlooking the out-door ring set up last week.

Johnny doesn't make any pretence of being a "sharpie," but he knows boxing and when his boy goes in the training ring he's right there telling him what to do.

His boy is Billy Conn, who meets Joe Louis for the world's heavyweight championship in New York's Yankee Stadium June 19. He thinks Billy can take the dusky giant who has been champion since 1937.

Ray pulled Conn out of Pittsburgh's rough north side and turned him into the light heavyweight champion and later the main contender for the heavyweight crown.

"He's a good kid," Ray says. "He's fast and he can hit harder now than when Louis beat him in '41. He could do all right."

One of the reporters asked him about Conn, and Ray beamed again. "He's a fine boy. I worry about him. I tell him to keep in training. I tell him not to drink. Before the last Louis fight I did not drink for five years — just to give him a good example. I took him to the light-heavy title.

"But I tell you something. Maybe he'll be afraid of Louis."

"You think I'm kidding?" Ray said angrily. "Look, I don't mean Billy would be afraid of Louis exactly. I mean Conn might be worried about how Louis knocks him out in their last fight. I mean maybe he'll remember how Joe chilled him. That might worry him. That might give him trouble."

CHAPTER 12

"Not a bit better, but if you have fifty thousand dollars to hand me, I'd be able to give you a more sugary answer. We need more men, better drills, more pumps, more tunnelling. You can't find a lost vein with peanuts!"

Oliver licked his upper lip. "That's how I figured it out too. That's the reason I came West. Your little ex-wife Audrey is finished with her husband. They're washed up."

"I've always blamed you for letting her go to Sun Valley and marry him!" Morley stared at Oliver and Oliver stared back. For a few seconds neither of the men spoke. Morley turned over Oliver's information in his mind. There was nothing emotional about Morley. He had a cold, intellectual mind that could cover what he was thinking about.

"So Audrey has chilled? Didn't take her long, did it?" He laughed a strident disagreeable laugh. "She doesn't love him?"

"Of course not, governor!" Oliver leaned forward excitedly. "She never did. There's only one man for her, and only one, that's you!"

Morley looked across the room into the mirror on the bureau opposite his bed, approved of himself, smiled. "But I heard that this fellow Blake was a straight shooter; serious and intelligent," he remarked with assurance.

"To intelligent. As much chance with Audrey as a snowball in hell. He found his marriage as cold as potato salad. And in the goodness of my heart I showed him what made it so cold. One night your portrait, Clifford, that's still hanging over the mantelpiece in the living-room, fell down and smashed, and woke them up."

"How did that happen?" Morley's voice had a harsh, frayed quality. "I had cut more than halfway through the cord that held it. Ravelled it, to make it look like an accident. Audrey felt very bad about it. The picture looked like it should be thrown away. The canvas caught the back of a chair. And a glass bowl put a hole right through your face."

"She always liked that portrait of me, didn't she?"

"Yes, she was stuck on it. When you and she first broke up, she used to sit looking at it for hours. And governor, it was just as I thought. The morning after the accident, she started out first thing to have it fixed up. And when it was all mended, she hung it right back where it was!"

"Blake didn't like that I guess?"

"Not much he didn't! What husband wants a handsome man like you on the wall looking at him while he's making love to his wife?"

Morley chuckled unpleasantly and nodded approval.

Morley had looked dog tired; his skin had an unhealthy pallor, his eyes swollen and puffed. He gave the impression of being utterly fatigued, but he brightened now. He liked power over animals and people, and Oliver knew it.

Oliver continued. "I paid a smart little girl I know who has more brains than good manners to call up Audrey on the telephone and pretend she was Blake's girl. I made the kid ring Audrey's private wire. I was standing right next to the kid when she did it and kept telling her what to say. The kid gave Audrey a fine mouthful."

"You've learned to copy more than my signature, Alvin; you're even using my head."

"When Blake came home that night Audrey told him what she thought of him for handing out her private telephone number to his girl friend. Blake denied he'd done it, but she didn't believe him, and there was a row."

It was quite evident that Morley was pleased.

Oliver gurgled with the enchantment of Morley's approval. "I've left the best for the last. I wrote Blake an anonymous letter and told him that he could easily find out for himself just why he was sleeping alone so much. All he had to do was read some love letters that Audrey had hidden away in a drawer. I told him where the drawer was and how to open it."

"Whose love letters?" Morley turned on him abruptly, irritated.

"Yours, governor, of course, yours!"

Morley relaxed, closed his eyes. "Did Blake read them?" he asked calmly.

"Yes. The lot. I must say, Boss, you sure can write hot stuff."

"I am delighted that you approve of my literary efforts as much as I approved of yours."

"The rest was easy. After that I knifed Blake every chance I got by mentioning your name. He and Audrey began to rub against each other lik sand paper. He soon got wise he had come to the wrong house."

"Nothing better than an ex-husband leaving his wife a few remembrances of himself." Morley lapsed into bored silence.

Oliver lighted a cigarette, walked to the window and looked out. After several minutes he returned to Morley's side and, looking into his eyes, said, "We've got to get some more money out of her, Clifford, and this is the time to do it. She'll divorce Blake quicker'n Churchill will damn Hitler, if you ask her to."

"That's what you think... You aren't always right. Anyway I'm not asking her to."

"Yes, you are. You've got to, all I have to do is mention your name, and she goes off in a trance with glazed eyes as if she had been given a shot of hop."

"What about Cora Leroy?" Morley mumbled to himself. "You forget—"

"What about her? Kick that girl out of your life. You've no room for her!"

"I'll kick you out quicker. I still give the orders, not you. So keep your mouth shut about that. Cora Leroy is never going to be kicked out. Remember that!"

"We need money and I came here to tell you where to get it!"

Morley lay back on the pillow, eyes wide, lips pulled down, cigarette hanging from the lower one. He removed it only to sip his brandy.

"Audrey; stupid little money-bags rich girl. It's a perverse world. If there were only more fun in the things that are good for us!"

"But you and I need money to enjoy the things that aren't," urged Oliver, "don't we?"

"Yes, that's right," answered Morley, "Where's this Gordon Blake? How do I handle him?"

"He flew to London on a transatlantic bomber. He's a war correspondent. Audrey called his agent in New York after he left her, a man named Boden. Do you want his address?"

"What for? If Blake is out of our picture, why waste time on him?"

"Then you're going to come east, Clifford, soon? There's no sense putting it off. Say you will."

"How's the bathing at Moonhollow?"

"Well, it's cool yet, you know. There's only sun-bathing now. But it's going to be like swimming at Times Square later. Audrey turned the whole place into a home for English refugee children. Wait till you see it."

"Hell's bells," said Morley, flopping back nerveless. Then he laughed sarcastically. "With my money."

"Ours," said Oliver. "Remember you and I are still fifty-fifty. Those kids come over to the old U.S.A. mighty hungry and they eat plenty of butter and sugar. Governor, they'll eat you out of house and home if you don't stop them. And the lawn—you won't recognize it— it's a playground now. Swings and see-saws and the kids falling over you playing ducks and drakes. It's like Coney Island."

"That doesn't suit me a bit!"

"No one can stop her from throwing away her money on those kids but you, and I hate every damn one of those scurvy kids."

"All right, calm yourself."

"Then it's wedding bells, Clifford?"

"Yes, I suppose so, ring out the old and ring in the new, for Audrey and me. Now you go right back to Moonhollow and stay there."

"Governor, please," begged Oliver, "I'm going screwy there. I don't like being a butler, anymore."

"What about what I like? You'll go screwy somewhere else. Keep her in solitary, figuratively. Don't let her make any new friends and keep those two fishy eyes of yours on her. No more vacations to Sun Valley!"

Morley outlined his final orders like a master craftsman. He would meet Oliver at Moonhollow in two weeks, as soon as he could arrange a good alibi to give Cora Leroy that would keep her quiet.

"Cheerio, Alvin," Morley extended his unhurt hand. "Now beat it. I want to think."

"You're sure you want me to go back to that mess of brats?"

"Yes, I'm sure. Pick out the ones you hate. In two weeks have them lined up on the shore. When I get back, I'll kick them back where they came from."

"There's a young Limey kid there called Leslie Curtis. He gets in my hair like dandruff!"

"Put him at the head of the line," said Morley, as Oliver grinned good-bye.

The early sun lay a warm hand on Moonhollow. The day was windless and warm, the sky sported stray, fluffy clouds. Only the blue of the Sound was veiled with a haze of light gold, as it is sometimes in early Summer.

The gardener had been up since dawn, sweeping the walk. A sprinkling of buds had come out in a single night; the pale green bushes looked as though they had been night—visited by fairies and touched with green.

Audrey saw the budding beauty, the breathless evanescent touch of Spring, visible through the windows.

"It's blowing Spring, Mrs. Blake," Leslie Curtis said. He turned his tense, serious-pale face to her. His blue eyes were liquid, like two teaspoonfuls of English lakes, she thought.

"It is, and that's a lovely way of saying it," she said.

"Browning put it that way, pretty much. I was thinking of him."

The words rippled across Audrey's memory:

Oh, to be in England
Now that April's there,
And whoever wakes in England
Sees, some morning, unaware
That the lowest boughs and the brushwood sheaf
Round the elm-tree boles are in tiny leaf,
White the chaffinch sings on the orchard bough
  In England, — now!

"Even now?" she asked softly.

"Oh, yes," he answered quickly. "It's always the same. It won't change. Nobody will change it, ever."

"But you like it here?"

"Yes, Mrs. Blake." He sat straight, looking across the breakfast table at her, "and I'm most grateful for the privileges."

"I like company for breakfast. And you're the oldest—so that's it."

"Thank you. Do you mind if I open the window a bit?"

"I'll call Oliver to do it."

"No, thank you. Don't bother him for me." He opened the nearest window wide.

"The last time we had breakfast in London, we sat down same as ever at table, near the window. But there wasn't any window." He smiled.

"How do you mean, Leslie?"

"It had been bombed away."

"Isn't it beautiful out today? So grand for the younger children to play."

"Yes," he said, looking out on the Sound, and the blue sky, "and the sky's so clear—so clean. Nothing in it."

Nerves on Edge; Couldn't Sleep—Always Felt Tired

"Had No Energy and Felt Worn Out from Morning to Night, But All That Has Changed Since Using Syntona," Says This Well-Known Man.

MR. RICHARD GRAHAM

If you feel tired, wornout and nervous; if bowels are constipated and you suffer from indigestion, gas, headaches and rheumatic pain; if you have dizzy spells, backache and nerves are on edge and you cannot get sound, restful sleep—take a short treatment of Syntona and the chances are that you, too, may find this pure Herbal Compound to be just what you need to put you on the road to better health again.

"Syntona has surely been a great help to me and I advise any one who is feeling rundown as I was to get some of this medicine without delay," said Mr. Richard Graham, 87 Regent St., Toronto, in a recent statement. Mr. Graham will be remembered by a host of friends and acquaintances in London, where he lived for many years and was employed by City Gas Company. Here is his experience in detail:

"Some time ago I suffered from a nervous breakdown," said Mr. Graham. "I was in extremely poor health and didn't know what it was to get a good night's sleep. My former energy seemed to have left me entirely. I felt tired and wornout from morning till night. My appetite was so poor I didn't care for food at all and it just seemed that my entire system was run down.

"That condition hung on so long that I thought I would never get over it, but one day I read about Syntona and decided to try it.

"At first I thought it wasn't any better than the many other things I had tried without benefit, but soon my appetite began to pick up and I was feeling better.

"From then on I continued to improve from day to day. My nerves became relaxed and my strength came back to me. Well, that's some weeks ago and now I enjoy all my meals once more. I sleep well through the night and I get up mornings feeling rested. As a result I am stronger and have more energy than I've had for many a day."

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST. Find out how it can help you, too.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was on the living room floor on my stummick reeding my new book of Kolossal Komicks, and ma started to call me from her room, saying, Benny, come up here, I want you.

Me thinking, Aw heck, now I probably have to go some darn errand, gosh shang the luck.

Which just then ma called again, saying, Benny, did you hear me call you? and I called back, Mam? Yes mam, and ma said, Then will you kindly please tell me why you didn't answer?

I was just going to, ma, I said.

And I thought, Heck, I wonder if she's noticed those 2 broke off hooks in her closit.

Meening the ones I tried to find out if I could hang on with all my weight, just for the experiment, and I thought, Oh well, maybe it's only a errand after all, maybe won't even have to go right away.

Which just then ma called again, saying, Benny Potts, are you coming right up here or aren't you?

Sure, ma, I'm on my way now, I said.

Whch I was, but not very fast, thinking, I bet she did notice the hooks, she's such a darn good noticer, darn it all, aw heck I'd rather go a errand.

And I went in her room and ma said, So you've managed to drag yourself here at last, have you suddenly become afflicted with stiffness of the joints?

No mam, I didn't know you meant right away, I said, I was just about to throw away this package of old letters that Maud Hews wrote me from South America years ago, but if you want the stamps for your alban you can tear them off ferst.

G, hurraw, I yelled all my might, and ma said, Well you dont need to get so excited for land sakes, they're not so valuable as all that.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, May 30 (CP)—The Base Metal stocks had an insignificant gain and other groups were lower in the early session of the Stock Exchange. Volume was the smallest of the spring months at 453,000 shares for the first three hours.

The gold shares sold down .53 in the index, showing moderate declines for Malartic gold fields, Sullivan, Beaulieu, Macassa, MacDonald, Discovery, Goldvue and others. Madsen, Kirkland Lake and Teck Hughes were stronger.

Mining Corporation, Noranda and Normetal were stronger base metals.

The weaker industrial groups included the Utilities, Foods and Steels. The Papers and Liquors posted only minor changes. Western oils moved quietly at minor losses for mid-continent and British-Dominion.

ROYAL CHINCHILLA QUIZ

WHAT ARE ROYAL CHINCHILLA? The world's rarest and most beautiful fur bearer. Chinchilla coats cost upwards of $35,000.

WHERE DID THE CHINCHILLA ORIGINATE?

SOUTH America, where they were hunted almost to extinction for their priceless fur. However, the breed is being re-established by raising Chinchilla in captivity.

COULD I RAISE CHINCHILLA? YES! They are easy and very profitable to raise, and our guarantee covers practically every risk.

WOULD YOU SEND A MAN TO HELP ME GET STARTED?

YES! The world's outstanding Chinchilla breeder will give you the benefit of his experience. We will also send you literature free. Just drop us a line.

Mayor R. Warren Accepts Position With Supertest

Picton, May 30 — Mayor Ralph Warren has accepted a position as district supervisor for Supertest Petroleum Corporation. He will receive training at Belleville before being moved to an Ontario district.

Mayor Warren will not resign his position though he will leave town shortly. It is understood that he will be given leave of absence, and that at each council meeting an acting mayor will be chosen.

Mayor Warren was elected to that office last December. He operates a service station here.

Departure of Mayor Warren from town will mean the loss of a citizen who has been prominent in municipal affairs, church and community work.

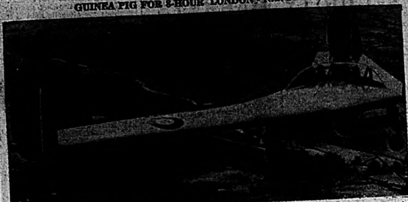
GUINEA PIG FOR 8-HOUR LONDON - N.Y. FLIGHTS



This flying wing glider, shown in flight with pilot and observer in the cockpit, has been used to acquire technical data for a large, jet-propelled flying wing aircraft, without fuselage or tail, now in advanced stage of construction in Britain. The builders hope that its efficient aerodynamic form will lead to simplified aircraft structure, greater strength and flights from London to New York in about seven or eight hours. The tiny windmills beneath the wings of the glider drive tiny motors with reduced turbulence.

Campbell Loans are Life Insured ... $20 to $1000

INSURED LOANS

Here's the better, safer way to get ready cash. For your protection, Campbell Loans include Life Insurance to cover the unpaid loan balance. In case of death your family is thus relieved of all obligation for your loan. The complete balance is automatically paid off by the insurance company. Campbell Finance Corporation is the only loan company to provide this valuable protection. And there is NO EXTRA COST for this outstanding feature.

REDUCED RATES

Campbell loan costs are now at the lowest level in our history. Only a few examples are given here, of how practical it is to borrow at Campbell Finance. For details on any amount from $20 to $1000 phone or visit our nearest office. Remember, Life Insurance protection is included in all quotations. It costs you nothing extra. Private interview rooms are always available to allow the greatest freedom for discussion.

LONGER TERMS

For your greater convenience, Campbell Finance allow repayment terms up to 20 and 24 months::: On loans $300 and up 20 months are allowed, and 24 months for loans $501 and up. This means that you can repay your loan in nominal monthly amounts on a soundly planned basis. With the high level of taxes and increased cost of living, longer Campbell terms are most helpful in systematic debt reduction. From our many repayment plans a qualified Campbell expert can help you to choose just the right one to fit your special needs.

4 LOAN PLANS

Campbell Finance provides a wider choice for borrowers with four different types of loans. Married couples can borrow money quickly without endorsers. Loans on your signature only (up to $100) are fast and simple to get. Also loans on various common types of security require no endorsers. From our four kinds of loans you can easily select a plan that will fill every requirement. Of all the people in Canada who borrow from licensed lenders, 1 out of every 4 uses Campbell Finance—specialists in personal loans for over 18 years.

Seamen's Union Asks Govt. Take Over Ship Firms

States Step Necessary To Produce Settlement

Toronto, May 31 (CP) — The Canadian Seamen's Union today announced it had sent a telegram to Federal Labor Minister Mitchell urging that the government "in the interests of the nation" take over Great Lakes shipping companies against which the union is on strike. The union said the step was necessary "to bring about a settlement and avoid bloodshed."

The union charged that the ship owners in statements had "defied" the proposal of Mr. Mitchell calling a truce and a meeting between representatives of the Union and of the Dominion Marine Association.

"By their statements the ship owners have themselves conclusively proved that from the outset they had no intention of honoring their signed statement with the union of our seamen," said a statement issued by J. A. (Pat) Sullivan, Union President. "Their statements show particularly they had no intention of bargaining collectively with the nationally-recognized union of their own employees.

"This irresponsible action on the part of these companies will be condemned by every Canadian citizen.

"Our union has wired Hon. Humphrey Mitchell strongly urging that the government in the interests of the nation take over these companies, which have now placed themselves in the category of outlaws. We have requested the government through the minister to do this in order to bring about a settlement and avoid bloodshed.

Sullivan added that certain companies of the Marine Association were "declaring open warfare on the seamen and their union."

Open Welland Canal

Port Colborne (CP)—A Department of Transport tug took the strikebound freighter Goderich in tow shortly after noon today and it appeared that the great Welland Canal—only navigable waterway between Lakes Erie and Ontario—might be open for shipping later today after having been blocked by the Goderich since yesterday morning.

After fussing about the 7,500-ton Canadian Steamship Lines vessel, the tug Laviolette made lines fast and began inching through lock 8, at nearby Humberstone, heading for harbor here.

Some 50 pickets of the striking Canadian Seamen's Union exchanged good-natured bantering with Transport Department sailors aboard the Goderich as the tug and freighter began moving. The pickets, some carrying sticks, were behind a wire fence near the lock banks and within easy hailing distance of the ship.

The Goderich became stranded in the locks when Union pickets boarded her, threw gear of the non-union crew overboard and insisted the crew leave the vessel. The crew left with the strikers.

Several Ships in Harbor

Several ships, including six or seven in harbor here and the C. S. L. canaller Lethbridge and passenger vessel Noronic, await clearing of the canal. It was anticipated that when the Goderich was clear of the locks, pickets might make an attempt to halt the Lethbridge and Noronic, now riding at anchor about a mile away, when they enter the locks.

A band of about 150 pickets boarded the Goderich yesterday and threw overboard the belongings of the non-union crew. The non-union crew followed their belongings. The strikers then tied the ship to the lock walls and there she floated all night.

The Department of Transport informed the Canada Steamship Lines, owners of the Goderich, that the ship must be moved by this morning or the department would move it. The Department's tug Laviolette was in the vicinity.

Want Police Protection

The owners declared late last night that they would not take the risk of putting another non-union crew aboard unless adequate police protection was assured. This met with an indecisive reply. The R.C.M.P. said they were under orders only to protect "government property."

All Cheese After June 1st to Be Sent to Britain

Ottawa, May 31 (CP)—Agriculture Minister Gardiner said Thursday night in the Commons Canada expected to fall short in her commitment to supply Britain with 125,000,000 pounds of cheese this year.

There were some estimates that the Dominion might be able to ship 115,000,000 pounds, Mr. Gardiner added, but there also was some doubt about that.

The Minister attributed the declining cheese production to the lower output of fluid milk and said there might be some improvement if there was good grass on Canadian pasture lands this summer.

Beginning June 1, as had been announced, all cheese manufactured in Ontario and Quebec would be requisitioned for shipment to Britain.

Speaking on consideration of agriculture estimates, said it was expected five times as much equipment would be available this year as compared with last year.

The Minister was explaining an increase of $200,000 from $50,000 to $250,000, in subsidies for construction and reconstruction of cheese factories, improving cheese making facilities in cheese factories and standardization of cheese pressing equipment.

The increased vote was associated with the need for maintaining cheese shipments to Britain and resulted from the increased amount of equipment available.

George Tustin (PC-Prince Edward-Lennox) suggested that if the money was not used for the improvement of cheese factories that it be used as an extra premium to stimulate cheese production.

Mr. Gardiner said he had little doubt all the subsidy would be used. He would hesitate to increase the cheese subsidy and then have to remove it next year.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, May 31 (CP) Synopsis: A large mass of cold air has drifted southward from Hudson Bay and Mackenzie River Basin and now envelopes all of Quebec, all of Ontario except the southwestern tip and all of central Canada. As this cold air displaces the warm air mass that has covered our region the last few days, showers and thunderstorms are occurring along its leading edge, while overcast skies extend far back into Northern Ontario. A few snow flurries have occurred in Northern Ontario and were reported as far south as North Bay in the Georgian Bay region. Minimums last night fell to below freezing over most of the area covered by this cold air and while minimums in Southern Ontario are not expected to dip below freezing a cool night is anticipated. The southward advance of this cold air is expected to be retarded by the action of a storm centre forming in Minnesota along its foremost edge, so that it will become stationary just south of Ontario with resultant rainy weather tomorrow.

BREAD RATIONING SOON IN BRITAIN SAYS MORRISON

Threat of Famine No Passing Crisis But Continuing Peril Until 1947 Crops Harvested

London, May 31 (CP)—Herbert Morrison, Lord President of the Council, told the House of Commons today that Britain is preparing a system of bread rationing for emergency use. He compared the world food situation to the black days of Dunkerque "when all the news was bad."

"The very blackness of the situation," he said during debate on Britain's food administration, "is calling forth forces which might make this the turning point in human history."

Mr. Morrison spoke after Winston Churchill, opening debate, criticized the food administration as short-sighted and pressed for an explanation of last week's resignation of Sir Ben Smith as Food Minister.

Mr. Churchill said he would not attack Herbert Morrison, Lord President of the Council, for the recent Anglo-American misunderstanding over United States food commitments arising from Mr. Morrison's recent food mission to Washington.

Churchill asked what advantage Britain was to derive from her agreement during Mr. Morrison's Washington visit to scale down her claims to wheat imports by 200,000 tons.

Mr. Churchill blamed the food shortage in British zone of Germany in part on establishment of the Russian zone demarcation line on the western Neisse River. "The great feeding grounds which nourished Germany as a whole lay to the east of the iron curtain," he declared.

Mr. Churchill's assertion that Britain had given up 200,000 tons of wheat drew a denial from Mr. Morrison, majority leader and the first to reply for the government.

"You cannot give away what you have not got," Mr. Morrison replied, "and we had not got this 200,000 tons."

References Brief

Mr. Morrison's references to bread rationing were brief. He said such rationing would be used only in case of necessity.

"The threat of famine is no passing crisis," Mr. Morrison said. "It is a continuing peril which will hang over us at the very least until the harvest of 1947 reaches the consumer."

He said since last autumn, Britain has diverted 490,500 tons of food grains to Germany and 104,000 tons to India.

"It is utterly impossible for the United Kingdom alone to shoulder the responsibility for feeding 20,000,000 in the British zone in Germany and 400,000,000 hungry Indians," he said.

Mr. Morrison said he had Prime Minister Attlee's authority for saying that Sir Ben Smith had not resigned because of differences with his cabinet opinions, but because of the reasons given in his statement to the press at the time of his resignation. In this statement Sir Ben said he was "very tired."

SKELETON UNCOVERED

Hamilton, May 31 (CP) — An almost complete human skeleton, buried in about two feet of earth, was uncovered yesterday by a bulldozer working on a road diversion project along the Grand River east of Caledonia, 14 miles south of here. Dr. R. E. Rozzell, Caledonia coroner, brought the bones to Hamilton for an examination by Dr. W. J. Deadman, city pathologist, who said he was not prepared to estimate the age or sex of the skeleton.

Many Canadian Newspapers Announce Increase in Price

Toronto, May 31—(CP)—Newspaper prices take a general upswing in Ontario Monday. Ten papers have announced increases effective at the first of the week, bringing to 19 the number of Ontario papers and to 22 the number in Canada to increase prices in little more than a month.

The increases will leave the province with 12 papers selling at three cents a copy. Thirteen sell at four cents and seven at five cents. The two-cent paper which was familiar for years has almost completely vanished. The only paper left in Canada selling at two cents a single copy is the Charlottetown Guardian.

Newspapers taking the step attribute it to rising costs. They point to the recent increase of $9.72 a ton for newsprint and increases in other production costs and at the same time emphasize that it is essential to increase earnings of carrier boys and news dealers to cope with rising living costs.

The increase is the most general since the late 1930s when a large number of papers boosted prices from two to three cents a copy.

A Canadian Daily Newspapers Association survey of 73 Canadian daily newspapers shows that 30 are in the five-cents-a-single copy class as a result of the changes. There are 17 selling at four cents, 25 at three cents and one at two cents. The five-cent rate is general from the lakehead west to British Columbia.

Generally the Canadian price picture is moving into line with that in the United States. There the majority of large newspapers sell at five cents. Sixty per cent of the papers in centres with a population of less than 50,000 sell at four cents a copy or 24 cents a week delivered, with an average size of 12 pages.

Not all the price increases in Canada centre on the single copy. In some instances papers are leaving the single copy price unchanged but are making changes in the delivery rate.

Papers going to five cents a copy and 25 cents a week delivered next Monday are the Peterboro Examiner and the Kingston Whig-Standard.

Those increasing to four cents a copy and weekly delivery prices ranging from 20 to 25 cents are the Welland Tribune, the Kitchener Record, the Galt Reporter, the London Free Press, the St. Thomas Times-Journal, the Woodstock Sentinel-Review and the St. Catharines Standard. The Timmins Press which has been five cents a copy, is upping its delivery rate to 25 cents a week.

Other Ontario papers which have increased since April 29 are: the Windsor Star, Sarnia Canadian Observer, Brockville Recorder and Times, North Bay Nugget, Chatham News, Guelph Mercury all to four cents from three cents a copy. The Toronto Globe and Mail increased its single copy price to five cents from three. The Fort William Times-Journal increased its weekly delivery rate to 18 cents from 15 and the Sudbury Star to 25 from 20.

The Sherbrooke Record in Quebec, the Regina Leader-Post in Saskatchewan and the Vancouver News-Herald in British Columbia have increased carrier delivery rates.

SOFT COAL PRICE LIKELY TO JUMP 30-35 CTS. TON

Truman Advisers Counselling Against Seizure of Hard Coal Mines

Washington, May 31 (AP) — The costly soft coal strike settled, President Truman today tackled the problem presented by the tie-up of the anthracite fields with his advisers counselling against seizure of these mines.

A high official who could not be quoted directly said the advice was based on the hope that the anthracite industry will shortly agree to terms similar to those in the government contract which ended the soft coal shutdown.

It was expected that some 75,-00 hard coal miners in the Pennsylvania fields would be made idle by the hard coal tie-up which started at midnight, Friday. Meanwhile the vanguard of 400,000 bituminous miners were on their way back to the pits. And John L. Lewis, United Mine Workers (A.F.L.) chief, predicted that volume production of soft coal can be expected by Monday.

Bituminous operators were keeping quiet about their reaction to the contract which gave their employees $1.85 increase a day and $59.25 pay for a five-day week, plus a welfare and retirement fund financed by a five-cent royalty on each ton of coal. Until the operators agree to a contract with Mr. Lewis, the mines will continue to be operated by the government.

The welfare fund, most spectacular of Mr. Lewis' demands, would yield $25,000,000 to $30,000,000 annually. It is to be administered by a board of trustees consisting of one member picked by Mr. Lewis, one picked by Interior Secretary Krug who is boss of the mines for the period of government operation, and a third chosen by the other two.

Mr. Krug has said he wants to select as his nominee a person of outstanding ability, whose name will mean something to the public. He estimated a week or 10 days would be required to select the trustees.

The soft coal operators said $200,000,000 was a conservative estimate of the cost of the Krug-Lewis contract but they made no official comment on the agreement or its terms.

Government officials estimated that the soft coal cost to consumers would rise 30 to 35 cents a ton as a result of the contract.

QUITE EMBARRASSING

Andover, Mass., May 31 (AP) —This town was 300 years old today but a bit embarrassed by the facts of English life. For the special guests of the tercentenary observance, the Mayor and Mayoress of Andover, England, town officials reserved a single room at the Andover Inn. The English Mayor, Councillor G. D. Young, arrived—bachelor. He explained the Mayoress, Mrs. Maud Sainsbury, was appointed to the office because he was unmarried.

Rugged Norway Pulling Herself Back On Diet of Bread, Fish and Potatoes

By HAL BOYLE

Oslo, May 31 (AP)— Rugged Norway, war orphan of Scandinavia, is pulling herself out of the backwash of battle on a diet of bread, potatoes and fish.

Because of careful planning of her post-war economy, even while the introducing Nazis were still lords of her fjords and rocky acres, she is moving toward full recovery about as fast as any country in Europe that suffered under the German blight.

But she is doing it by "doing without." Her people have plenty of basic life sustaining foods — they even were able to help other countries as a result of a record fish catch—but they lack meat, coffee and the little table luxuries that make for gracious living.

They are extremely short of shoes. Many children had to remain away from school last winter because of lack of footwear.

Like almost every other civilized land, they are faced with a severe housing problem, one made somewhat easier by the fact they at least have plenty of lumber.

Norwegians are a tough and proud people and despite their hardships make few complaints, although they are presently an island in the midst of Scandinavian plenty. To their south lies Denmark flowing in milk and cream and flavored with bacon. To their east lies Sweden, richest of Scandinavian countries.

UNITED, ANGLICAN CHURCHES DISCUSS CHURCH UNION

Bishop John Lyons of Kingston and Very Rev. J. R. P. Sclater, Joint Chairmen of Committee

Toronto, May 31 (CP)— Most Rev. Derwyn T. Owen, Archbishop of Toronto and Primate of the Church of England in Canada, said today that nothing will be done about union with the United Church of Canada until there has been "ample opportunity, in general synod and elsewhere, and over a term of years, to discuss and examine" union proposals.

The Archbishop, who is also President of the Canadian Council of Churches, said "I deeply regret the unauthorized statement" published today on conversations between a committee of the two churches and added: "A careful and accurate statement is being prepared for the press by a committee appointed for that purpose. It is most regrettable that this was anticipated—and inaccurately—by a newspaper story."

It was reported last night that the representatives of the two denominations met in Toronto last week and will report to the Anglican General Synod and the United Church General Council in September.

Joint chairmen of the committee were Rt. Rev. John Lyons of Kingston, Bishop of the Anglican Ontario Diocese, and Very Rev. J. R. P. Sclater, Toronto, a former Moderator of the United Church of Canada.

The discussions in Canada were said to be in line with a general movement throughout the world towards a closer attachment, and in some cases union, between Protestant bodies. Last week's meeting was the first concrete move in that direction, with respect to Protestant churches in Canada.

A significant indication of the trend toward closing of ranks of Protestant bodies in Canada was the April 28 rally at Maple Leaf Gardens, attended by 16,000 Protestants, of various denominations. Speakers, including Prof. R. J. McCracken, successor to Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick as minister of New York's Riverside Church stressed 'real and substantial unity.'

No Division of Belief.

"Where the cardinal issues are concerned there is no division of belief among us," Prof. McCracken asserted, "we are one in our faith. . . . The call to the church is to close up its ranks."

The United Church has 2,204,875 adherents in Canada, according to the 1941 census. Membership in the Church of England in Canada was given at 1,751,188. The last great union of protestant denominations in Canada was in 1925, when the Methodist Congregationalist and Presbyterian churches joined, with the excep-

MEMBERS DISCUSS RECLAMATION AND IRRIGATION PLANS

Want Marshland Of Maritimes Reclaimed And Water Controlled In Western Canada

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, May 31—(CP)—Water—the lack of it in places and an overabundance of it in others — figured prominently in Commons discussions yesterday as members appealed for reclamation of marshlands in the Maritimes and the control of water in Western Canada.

Before conclusion of study of the $19,000,000 Agriculture Department estimates, farmer members from the east and west outlined the problems in their areas and called on the government to undertake land rehabilitation and irrigation programs. Western farmers also urged that amendments be made to the system of paying assistance under the Prairie Farm Assistance Act.

Study of health and welfare estimates was started shortly before the adjournment hour and will be continued today.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner said the government was well aware of the problems of irrigation and brought all across the country. However, as long as new financial arrangements with the provinces were not worked out the Federal Treasury did not have the funds to do all that should be done. He disclosed that amendments to the P.F.A.A. will be introduced later and will provide for a change in the basis on which payments are made.

The Senate, before adjourning to June 18, adopted a report of its committee on income tax, recommending the setting up of a board of appeals to hear appeals against income or excess profits tax assessments.

Among those urging reclamation of the marshlands off the shores of the Bay of Fundy were Percy Black (PC-Cumberland); Frank Stafield (PC-Colchester-Hants); King Hazen (PC-Saint John-Albert); and John R. MacNicol (PC-Toronto Davenport).

Good Progress Reported On U.C. Pension Fund

Toronto, May 31—Incomplete returns on the Pension Fund appeal for added capital with many canvasses in churches only in the initial stages show $2,250,000 reported at Toronto as definitely pledged. Estimated returns are much higher. Toronto area has over $1,000,000. and will exceed its objective, as will the Bay of Quinte Conference. Montreal reports over $900,000.; B. C. $175,000.; S. Saskatchewan $11,200.; N. S. $26,000.; N. B. $6,500.; P. E. I. $19,000.; Winnipeg with 23 out of 28 churches reporting and returns very incomplete has $111,000.

Goering Losing Weight Slowly

Nuernberg, May 31 — (AP) — Hermann Goering has fallen into a fit of despondency, refusing to discuss his war crimes case any longer with defence attorneys and slowly declining in weight.

The No. 1 defendant before the international military tribunal also has seized every opportunity lately to remain away from court. The reason given publicly has been recurrence of attacks of an old case of sciatica.

Goering lost 10 pounds in the last week and now is down to 190. He weighed 225 pounds when apprehended.

Britain's First High-Altitude Airliner Nearly Ready for Service

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, May 31 (CP) — The Avro Tudo I, Britain's first high-altitude airliner with pressure cabin, has completed flight tests up to 30,000 feet and probably will be in service by the year-end on the North Atlantic run.

No matter how high the plane must fly to reach smooth air, pressure inside the roomy cabin will be the same as at 8,000 feet. Need for oxygen masks, bugbear of North Atlantic flights so far, is eliminated.

Twenty of these 77,000-pound planes, built to carry 24 passengers in seats and 12 on sleeper service, have been ordered for Britain's government-owned airlines.

The Tudor I has been criticized on grounds of uneconomic operation, since 12-passenger trans-Atlantic capacity is only half that of similar four-engined American aircraft. But the benefits of successful pressurization have received nothing but praise.

The biggest problem was building a cabin able to stand a difference in internal and external pressure of 5 1-2 pounds per square inch. A panel measuring 20 inches square must support a force of one ton.

To make the structure air-tight, each riveted joint is sealed with a special compound during assembly. Control cables are pressure-sealed where they leave the fuselage. Doors and windows are sealed by rubber tubes which are inflated to make a leak-proof joint.

$8,000 Haul Made In Bank Holdup At Selkirk, Ont.

Three Men Escape in Car Bearing Quebec Markers

Selkirk, Ont., May 31 —(CP)— Three men, two of them armed, held up the Bank of Commerce here at 11 a.m. today. They made a getaway in a four door sedan.

Selkirk is 30 miles southeast of Brantford.

Toronto — Three men who today held up the Bank of Commerce branch at Selkirk, Ont., escaped with $8,000, Provincial Police headquarters said here. They escaped in an automobile bearing Quebec licence plates.

The men are described as about 20 years of age, about five feet six or seven inches tall, and dark. They are reported to be wearing peaked caps pulled well down over their eyes. They escaped in a maroon and grey sedan, heading east.

Police said they had three versions of the Quebec licence — 63-13L, 63-1346 and 63-134.

Let Conscience Guide in Voting Says Umberto

Rome, May 31 — (AP)—Italy's 28,000,000 voters today had the advice of King Umberto II to let their conscience guide them in voting Sunday whether to continue the monarchy or adopt a republican form of government.

In a final campaign broadcast last night Falcone Lucifero, minister of the Royal House and campaign manager for King Umberto said the monarch wanted the people to "go to the polls serenely, voting the institutional solution . . . they believe best for the reconstruction of the country."

Only scattered incidents were reported to have marred the final day of campaigning.

Reparations Chief Protests Restrictions

Seoul, May 31 — (AP) — The United States reparations commission, seeking to determine if the Russians removed machinery from North Korea, is operating under such tight restrictions in the Soviet occupation zone that Edwin W. Pauley, reparations chief, has protested.

Mr. Pauley's assistant, Dr. Ernst L. Klein, today disclosed that Col.-Gen. I. M. Chistiakov, Russian military commander, has barred the 10-member commission from two of five industrial areas the commission had selected for inspection. It can move about only by pre-arrangement and consent of the Russians.

The reason given for forbidding the mission entry to one important industrial area was that a large demobilization of Soviet troops is under way there.

Truman Will Refuse To Accept Resignation Of Edward R. Stettinius, Jr.

Washington, May 31 —(AP)— Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., has submitted his resignation as the United States government's representative on the United States Security Council, but President Truman said today he will refuse to accept it.

Mr. Truman told a press conference both he and State Secretary Byrnes want Mr. Stettinius to remain as the United States delegate, and he believed that Mr. Stettinius would agree to do so.

75,000 HARD COAL MINERS FAIL TO AGREE ON TERMS

Truman Counseled by Advisers Against Seizing the Mines

New York, May 31 (AP) — Pennsylvania's 75,000 hard coal miners struck today at 12:01 a.m. (E.D.T.) after union and operator negotiators failed to agree on a new contract, shutting down the state's anthracite fields.

An A.F.L. United Mine Workers representative at the Lehigh Valley Coal Company in Hazleton, Pa., declared that reports from the hard coal districts showed that "the whole region is idle."

"There are no collieries in the anthracite fields working," said Jack Reno, chairman of the grievance committee, Hazleton shaft of the Lehigh Company.

Meanwhile a high government official in Washington who could not be quoted directly said President Truman had been counseled by his advisers against seizing the mines.

The official said the advice was based on the hope that the anthracite industry would shortly agree to terms similar to those in the government contract which ended the soft coal shutdown.

Since the miners did not work on the Memorial Day holiday the walkout—the second major United States coal strike this year—technically started 24 hours before the the expiration of the old pact at midnight last night. The union had refused an operators' request for a 30-day contract extension on a retroactive pay basis.

The miners watched the deadline pass with no indication of returning to the collieries until a contract was signed between the operators and their A.F.L. United Mine Workers.

In the centres of the anthracite regions at Hazleton, Scranton, Wilkes-Barre and Pottsville, Pa., the union's district officials, who declined use of their names, predicted, with but one exception, that the walkout would be "100 per cent" effective.

One Scranton official predicted the miners would be back in the pits by Monday but would give no basis for his statement.

No Announcement Made

Yesterday's 11th-hour negotiating session broke up in failure. John Boylan, secretary of the Anthracite Board of Conciliation, who sat in on the final talks before the expiration of the contract, said he was authorized to make no announcement.

Meanwhile negotiating committees of the operators and the union were called into session again today amid reports that U.M.W. president John L. Lewis would join the conferences. It was not known definitely, however, whether Mr. Lewis would take part in the talks.

As in the recently settled soft coal dispute, the principal issues involved are wage increases and a health and welfare fund but the miners never have presented concrete demands on the issues during the three weeks of talks.

The miners, through Thomas Kennedy, U.M.W. secretary-treasurer, have declared that they expected the bituminous settlement to provide a pattern for a hard coal agreement. Both sides had marked time awaiting the soft coal terms.

STALIN DECLINES INVITATION

Washington, May 31 (AP) — President Truman announced today he invited Generalissmo Stalin to visit Washington about 30 days ago, but he declined because his doctors advised him against a long journey.

DR. JAMES SEMPLE NAMED TO BOARD

Dr. James Semple and Inspector A. A. Martin, Brighton, were on Thursday named to the Board of Evangelism and Social Service at the Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church which is being held in Napanee.

Dr. Semple served on the board 10 years until two years ago when he was chairman on evangelism at that time. He was also elected to succeed Rev. R. A. Whaltam as chairman of the conference standing committee. J. E. Griffiths, Bowmanville replaces Rev. J. R. Brick of Janetville as secretary of the conference standing committee.

CHEESE BOX FACTORY STARTED AT MADOC

Madoc village will see the start of a cheese box manufacturing industry here some time this autumn following the completion of a building now under construction. C. Richardson and Company have purchased property on Durham and Seymour streets and have commenced work on the foundation of a 60 x 100 feet two-storey structure.

When the building is completed and the necessary machinery installed, it is expected that approximately 25 men will be given steady employment. Besides the manufacture of cheese boxes, the new business will include the handling of dairy supplies and dairy machinery of all kinds.

A new well has already been drilled to supply the necessary water and it is expected the building will be completed some time in August.

THURLOW JUNIOR FARMERS HEAR McINTYRE HOOD

McIntyre Hood, director of publicity for the Ontario Department of Agriculture and Wesley Down, vice president of the Ontario Junior Farmers' Association, were guest speakers at the May meeting of the Thurlow Township junior farmers held in Cannifton Hall. Each speaker gave an interesting and instructive address on the advantages of a strong junior farmer organization.

Fostering the art of speaking in public two members of the organization were called upon to give brief addresses. Dwane Martin gave an interesting talk on corn, dealing particularly with hybrid varieties, while Douglas Sills spoke on the advantages of early cutting of hay.

H. Lynn Fair, agricultural representative, introduced the guest speakers while club appreciation was expressed by Russell Ritz. President of the club, John Huffman was in charge of the meeting.

WELL-BRED DEER HOUND PICKED UP

Some district deer hunter will be minus a well-bred black and tan deer hound this coming autumn if the owner or some other interested party does not claim such a hound picked up Thursday by city dog catcher Thomas Thorn. The hound, a female, when picked up on Front Street had a collar but no tag.

LEGION CONCLUDES PROPERTY PURCHASE

The Belleville Branch of the Canadian Legion today concluded negotiations for the purchase of property in the city which will be used as the site for a new club house, Legion officials stated this morning.

The property is located on Coleman Street near West Moira Street. No other details were immediately available.

$3,500 of $12,000 Objective Raised In Cancer Drive

Only about $3,500 of their $12,000 objective has yet been raised by the local organization sponsoring the campaign for the Cancer Research Fund, it was reported by campaign chairman Oscar Wagar at the regular Y's-Men's dinner meeting Thursday evening.

The campaign in Belleville is being sponsored by the Y's-Men's Club and has less than two weeks still to run.

Guest speaker at Thursday evening's dinner meeting was Mr. Gilbert Scott, manager of the local Consolidated Optical Company plant. Mr. Scott gave instructive and informative address on life and conditions in the Spanish Main, where he was stationed for several years. The meeting was in charge of president "Bud" Trill.

Tools, Equipment Stolen From Two County Garages

Approximately $650 in garage tools and equipment were stolen some time early Thursday morning from garages in Thomasburg and Plainfield, it was stated today by Provincial Police in Belleville. Both garages were entered through windows.

Five hundred dollars worth of new tools and garage equipment, not yet out of their packages, were stolen from the Thomasburg garage owned by Morton and Stephens. The garage had been just recently constructed and was not yet open for business when the break-in took place.

Milk Price Up Two Cents June 1

Toronto, May 31 —(CP)— The Ontario Milk Control Board yesterday notified the province's milk distributors that the retail price of milk goes back to its legal level June 1 — in other words the price goes up two cents a quart with the withdrawal of the Dominion government's consumer subsidy. The milk board's notice, over the signature of Chairman C. M. Meek, mentioned that although the consumer subsidy is withdrawn, producer subsidies continue — in areas where it has been 55 cents a hundred pounds it will remain at that figure until Sept. 30; in areas where it has been 25 cents, it will be 35 cents a hundred from June 1-Sept. 30.

Martin Funeral Home Acquired By Toronto Man

Sale of the Martin Funeral Home, 210 Church Street, to an incorporated company of which W. F. Sandercock of Toronto is the president, has been announced by Mr. Floyd Martin.

The new owners will assume operation of the business during the latter part of June with the former owner, Mr. Martin, remaining in association with the firm for several months.

Started in 1931 by the late Mr. Frank Martin, father of Floyd Martin, the Martin Funeral Home since that time has become one of Belleville's leading funeral firms. Extensive alterations have been effected during recent years, adding much to the attractiveness and convenience of the property. An electric organ was also installed.

Since the death of the founder of the business the Martin Funeral Home business has been conducted by Mr. Floyd Martin.

POLICE COURT

Roy Thompson Given Term In Penitentiary

Pleading guilty to breaking and entering Irwin's Garage in Deseronto during the early morning hours of May 15th and of theft of an automobile in Belleville the night previous, Roy Thompson, age 23, of Oshawa, was sentenced to two years in Kingston penitentiary when he appeared in city police court today.

Like charges against John Thompson of Rossmore were enlarged for one week on the request of counsel for the accused.

Magistrate Wills sentenced Roy Thompson to two years on the break-and-enter charge, while the accused was given a one-year concurrent sentence for the auto theft.

The two men were apprehended by Police Chief Noel Langdon as he surprised them while in the Irwin garage at Deseronto. Langdon testified in court that the two had a quantity of cigarettes packed in a carton ready for carrying away when he arrested them. The men were brought to Belleville where the auto theft charge was laid.

Roy Thompson's lengthy criminal record was read in court prior to passing sentence, the record showing four reformatory terms. "Reformatory terms are doing this man no good," stated Crown Attorney Donnan as he asked for the penitentiary term. "This man is at loose ends and should go to the penitentiary where he will be given the opportunity of learning a worth while trade."

Since the apprehension of the two men, Roy Thompson has been held in custody, while bail was provided for John Thompson.

Five inebriates were fined the conventional $12 and costs or ten days in default of payment, while John L. Claus of Deseronto was remanded for one week following his plea of attempting to break and enter a butcher store in that centre owned by Mr. Ed. Roach. The remand was ordered to permit checking into Claus' record.

Seven Maritime Unions Confront Ship Operators

Washington, May 31 (AP) — Seven Maritime Unions today confronted ship operators with a unified demand for wage increases of 22 to 35 cents an hour as the price for calling off a scheduled June 15 walkout by 200,000 longshoremen and seamen.

The United States Labor Department, under whose auspices the parties are negotiating, recessed the sessions until Saturday so that the operators may study the proposals.

Harry Bridges, President of the Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union (C.I.O.) on the west coast, and Joseph Curran, President of the National Maritime Union (C.I.O.) made the demands yesterday as co-chairmen of a union "committee for Maritime unity." They asked:

For longshoremen—35 cents an hour more pay; overtime pay for all Saturday work.

For seagoing workers—22 cents an hour more for those now making $140 a month, 27 for those earning $140 to $175 and 35 for those making more than $175; a 40-hour week and eight-hour day, compared with the present work week of 56 to 63 hours; overtime pay ranging from $1.25 to $1.75 an hour.

The joint union committee said that failing agreement by June 15 "all ships will be struck with the exception of troop ships and relief ships, with agreement to be reached either with the government or private employers to operate such ships under fair and equitable conditions."

171 Junior Farmers of County Making Three-day Trip Thru Western Ont., to Visit O.A.C.

A total of 171 members from the various junior farmer organizations in the county left Trenton by bus Friday morning for a three-day sight-seeing trip through Western Ontario, one of the features of which was a visit to the Ontario Agricultural Farm at Guelph.

The group left by chartered buses from Trenton shortly after nine on Friday with the schedule calling for arrival at Guelph at five-thirty. On Saturday a livestock judging competition was scheduled with ball games providing a recreation break. Sunday morning the party will leave Guelph with stops scheduled for the B. H. Bull and Son farm at Brampton, Peel county, and at Don Head farms, Richmond Hill.

En route to Guelph the party stopped at Hays and Company farm at Brampton where they saw a parade of outstanding Holsteins including Glenafton Rag Apple Historian, $14,800 bull.

The county junior farmers' livestock judging competition scheduled for Guelph was under the auspices of the Ontario Department of Agriculture and consisted of senior and junior classes. Contestants were called upon to judge one class each of beef cattle and sheep, and two each of dairy cattle, horses and swine. Oral reasons were to be given on each class with contestants vieing for $200 in trophies and cash prizes.

The party was made up of 25 members from the Sidney junior farmers, 20 from Madoc, 28 from Rawdon, 10 from Hungerford and 12 from Marmora townships. The trip was in charge of Agricultural Representative H. L. Fair of Stirling.

Rain Forces Latter Part of BCI Cadet Inspection to Take Place Indoors

Rain that held off sufficiently to allow the trimly-uniformed Belleville Collegiate Army Cadet Corps, and the blue-and-white garbed cadettes undergo inspection and go through smartly-executed outdoor manoeuvres this morning, finally descended in a drenching downpour and sent a large crowd of spectators scurrying for home, and officials and students to the halls of the school.

Demonstrations of various phases of training were carried out in the gymnasia of the school as were the presentations of the trophy to the smartest cadet company on parade and prizes to the four outstanding cadets on parade.

Under the threatening skies, however, upwards of 170 khaki-clad cadets, showing a marked efficiency in drill and formations paraded before the critical gaze of Major T. C. Holmes, Chief Cadet Officer, M.D. No. 3 and his assistant, Major T. Condy.

Grant McCaw Commands

Under the command of Cadet Commanding Officer, Lieut. Colonel Grant McCaw, the cadet companies swung along the campus in excellent precision marching in company, column of route, and review order previous to the personal inspection by Major Holmes and his staff.

Following the inspection the entire corps paraded past the reviewing stand, which was flanked by two trim Sea Cadet Corps members, where the salute was taken by Lieut. Col. James Howard, former cadet instructional officer of the collegiate corps.

With Lieut. Col. Howard were the inspection officers, Lieut. Col. B. C. Sisler, C.O., of the Argyll Light Iinfantry; Principal G. E. Currie and members of the Board of Education, G. Wishart, Ed Shortt, Lt. Col. E. A. Geen, W. H. Finkle and Captain Les Shiels of the BCI staff.

Followed the battalion parade in review order and the General Salute. The band of the Collegiate Institute under Cadet Captain Bill Holway paced the cadets and cadettes with martial airs and also accompanying music to the few demonstrations that were held outside before the rain came.

Girl Cadettes Well Trained

Immaculate in blue "wedges" white blouses and blue skirts, the Girls' Cadette Corps under the command of Cadette Lieut. Joan Hunter also showed marked efficiency in their parade ground manoeuvres. The girl cadettes showed evidence of good training, and their marching and corps and platoon drills were executed in a fine military style.

Following the inspection and march-past, classes of male students gave a physical training demonstration, but rain descending suddenly at this point forced the officials to withdraw to the Gymnasia where girl students gave an exhibition of "PT." and girl cadettes demonstrated their military training in signals. Cadets were seen in demonstrations of small arms training, first aid and map reading.

Major Holmes, paid fine tribute to the cadet corps and the band at the conclusion of the inspection. He complimented the corps on their smartness of appearance, general deportment and steadiness on parade, urging them to maintain their interest in the corps which had proven to be a decided asset to the school.

Previous to the rain, a large crowd of spectators ringed the campus as both corps went through the various drills and swung by in battalion formations in the march-past.

Officers of Corps

Officers of the Cadet Corps are besides Lieut. Col. McCaw, commanding officer; second-in-command, Major Pat Shiels; adjutant, Capt. Men's, Boy's Clothing Price Ceiling Raised 5 to 9 1-2 P. C.

Ottawa, May 31 —(CP)— The Prices Board Thursday announced price ceiling increases on men's and boys' "suits, overcoats, fine pants, work pants and woolen sportswear" ranging from 5½ to nine per cent, effective on goods manufactured after June 1.

In a statement the board said the increases were authorized to offset "partially" the effect of increased costs to manufacturers because of recent elimination or reduction of subsidies on cotton and wool and wage increases recently authorized by war labor boards in the textile industry.

No price change is authorized on garments in present stocks, the board added.

The increases authorized apply both to manufacturers and retail stores.

Some S. W. Ontario Fields Become Unprofitable Thru Lack of Humus, Poor Rotation, Mining of Soil

Guelph, May 31 — (CP) — W. R. Reek, Ontario Deputy Minister of Agriculture, told a Kiwanis meeting here, that lack of humus, poor crop rotation, and some mining of the soil have reduced some Southwestern Ontario fields to an unprofitable condition.

He said erosion damage was not comparable to that in the United States and the rebuilding was not a big research job but a big extension job. Lack of humus, one of the biggest troubles, could be remedied by plowing down more vegetable matter and farm manure, and by the use of improved crop rotations.

The new pasture improvement program in Ontario will help by increasing the soil's water-holding capacity, he said. Much provincial land needed to be underdrained.

Mr. Reek said Ontario forests had been badly cut up and proper reforestation was needed to use up marginal land and prevent floods.

PICTON

County Appoints E. Arnold As Road Engineer

Picton, May 31 — Refusal of the Ontario Department of Highways to confirm the appointment of Jack Ward, Picton, as Prince Edward County road engineer, forced county council to make a second choice. E. Arnold of Barrie was selected. At present he is engineer on the new four-lane highway being built from Barrie to Toronto. Salary is $3,000 annually.

Mr. Ward's earlier appointment was not confirmed on the grounds that he is not yet a registered engineer, though an honor graduate in engineering this year. A year's practical experience is required for registration.

War Brides Welcomed

War brides coming from overseas are being warmly welcomed to Prince Edward County. In each community, they are showered with gifts. The village of Bloomfield has seven overseas brides residing there and two were honored some time ago. Wednesday night, five were guests at a party in the hall, arranged by the Women's Institute. They were Mrs. Sid Strawbridge and Mrs. Maurice Spencer from Scotland, Mrs. Milton Vance and Mrs. P. Cockburn from England and Mrs. T. Slatter from Ireland.

Rev. M. Buttars acted as chairman for a musical program, which included songs emblematic of the three countries. Mrs. Percy Anderson, president of the W.I. read an address. Each bride was accompanied to the platform by a member of the W.I.

Mrs. Slatter was presented with a walnut table and end table; Mrs. Cockburn with a tri-light lamp and a table lamp; Mrs. Strawbridge, a collection of kitchen utensils and an electric toaster; Mrs. Spencer, a set of dishes; Mrs. Vance, two Kenwood blankets and bed linen. Each also received a pair of towels.

In their words of appreciation, each of the girls expressed the thought that Canadians are grand people and they were enjoying life in this country.

GEORGE ROBSON, DARK HORSE OF RACE, WINNER

Drives 500-Mile Race Without Relief and Makes One 30-Second Stop

Driving without relief, Robson made only one 30-second stop in his thundering triumph before a holiday crowd estimated at 150,000 upward.

Robson covered the 500 miles in 4:21:16.70, to average 114.820 miles an hour. Only three Indianapolis races have ever been won at a higher speed. His time had been bettered by the late Floyd Roberts, winner of the 1938 race; Wilbur Shaw, 1939 winner, and Maurie Rose, co-winner of the 1941 event, last of the Indianapolis classics before war forced a halt for five years.

Robson's triumph was worth $33,800 in cash, plus an airplane trip around the world and other incidentals. He hauled down $20,000 for first prize and $13,800 in lap-prize money, $100 for each lap he led.

Loses Lead Briefly.

The Pacific coast driver engaged in a nip-and-tuck battle with Jimmy Jackson, Palm Springs, Calif., for the last 300 miles. Robson led his rival except for a few fleeting seconds at 220 miles, when Jackson momentarily snatched the lead.

Jackson finished second, one minute and four seconds behind Robson. Ted Horn of Paterson, N.J., was third; Emil Andres of Chicago, fourth, and Sam Hanks, of Alhambra, Calif., fifth, as relief driver for Joie Chitwood, Cherokee Indian of Reading, Pa.

TRIAL AGAIN POSTPONED

Ottawa, May 31 —(CP)— Gordon Lunan, 30, former Canadian information service official, appeared before county court Judge A. G. McDougall here today and his speedy trial on espionage charges was immediately postponed with the new date tentatively set for June 17.

RUGGED NORWAY

No animosity exists between the Norwegians and the carefree Danes, but there is a strained feeling between the common folk of Norway and Sweden, one of the hangovers of war.

"You know we don't care much for the Swedes," one Norwegian said. "They gave us food during the war, all right, and we remember that German ammunition trains painted with the international Red Cross symbol came into Norway through Sweden.

An obstreperous terrain compels Norwegians to cluster in valley patches and let the forests take the steepled hills and mountains of their country. Their scarcity of good land sends them out to "plow the sea" for food.

This rigorous life has to some extent held down their cultural advancement and caused them to emigrate by thousands to easier lands. It may also help explain why Norway's capital, Oslo, is ugly compared to Copenhagen and Stockholm, where more money and leisure have produced finer buildings, better civic art.

Yet her stern past is bearing one fair fruit now—fortitude. The working people are putting Norway back into peacetime shape by their own efforts and without whining. Shipping is reviving and that is bringing in sorely-needed credits for purchases abroad.

The only wail about hard times you hear in Norway is from her women as they cast rueful glances eastward toward their more fortunate sisters in Sweden and lament:

"If we could get one pair of silk stockings—just one — life wouldn't be so bad."

UNITED, ANGLICAN

tion of a considerable number of continuing Presbyterians.

One United Church clergyman said that difficulties in the way of the proposed union were less than those faced by the group which conceived and started the movement toward the 1925 church union.

Differences Not Insurmountable.

Theological differences are not insurmountable as both churches have the same creed and the same general beliefs, he explained.

There were, he thought, only two major barriers to completion of union. The first was confirmation, for the Anglican Church insists that its members be confirmed by a bishop, whereas in the United Church the local pastor holds membership classes, usually at the Easter season, and admits applicants into the church.

The second difference arises out of the Anglican claim, common also to the Roman Catholic Church, of apostolic succession. It maintains its ordained priests and bishops are direct successors to the Apostles, whereas the United Church, in ordaining ministers, makes no claim to such succession. In the past, it was pointed out, Anglican clerics have not been willing to accept United Church ordination.

3 BROTHERS CONVICTED

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., May 31 —(CP)— A petit jury last night convicted three Sault Ste. Marie brothers, Garfield, Elmer and Gordon Brush, of causing bodily harm to John Pavlokovich in a hotel brawl here April 24. Leniency was recommended for Gordon Brush, 19, because of his age and for his brothers because of their war service records. Garfield Brush won the D.F.C.

Judge J. H. McDonald will pass sentence at the end of the general sessions of the peace for Algoma district.

W. A. of Hastings, P. E. Counties Holds Annual Meeting at Albury

Albury Church overlooking Bay of Quinte from the south, was the scene of the 14th Annual Convention of the Woman's Associations of Hastings and Prince Edward Counties on May 23. The day was ideal and some 250 ladies were in attendance. The church was nicely decorated with tulips, daffodils and other Spring flowers.

The registration of delegates and visitors was superintended by Miss Hattie Peck and Mrs. Roy Williamson.

Rose Hall W.A., led in the morning's devotions and a thoughtful meditation was brought by Mrs. H. Nash. She challenged all to readiness for service. Pray, think and work for the burden upon us. They reckon ill who leave God out.

Mrs. L. McCartney and Mrs. Fox were heard in a duet, "More Like the Master", after which Mrs. (Rev.) Lane led in prayer.

Welcome Extended

Mrs. Ray Williamson extended greetings and a welcome and Mrs. G. L. Good, of Stirling, graciously responded by saying she knew the day would be pleasant and profitable.

Mrs. R. Sills, of Zion, brought greetings from the Belleville Presbytery W.M.S. Jesus said that all the world must have the Gospel so everyone must pray, give and work for the furtherance of that cause.

Miss Audra Brickman, the retiring president, gave the convention a special welcome to Prince Edward County. She spoke of her enjoyment in this work and what a rich reward one receives from it.

The Recording Secretary, Mrs. G. E. Dobbs, reported the convention of 1945 in Bridge Street Church.

The Treasurer, Mrs. H. Murphy, reported the receipts and expenses of 1945 convention which left a balance of $62.85.

The executive roll was called and the Nominating and Courtesy committees were appointed.

W.A. Responsibilities

The guest speaker, Mrs. J. L. Halpenny, vice president of the Dominion W.A. Council of the United Church of Canada, was then introduced by Mrs. G. E. Dobbs. Mrs. Halpenny in a most inspiring address outlined W.A. responsibilities and how best they can be met. Times change, old land marks go, but in the midst stand women. Their influence is increasing and the members are presented with a challenge to an urgent task.

The members of the W.A. of the local church are looked up to, to lead the way and their first responsibilities are (1) To assist the pastor by living a sincere spiritual life and to consider the comfort of his home and his family. (2) To visit the shut-ins, returned service men and war brides. (3) To promote good will and fellowship. (4) To save the children and retain the young people in the church fold.

Offers Leadership

As the Presbytery W.A., strives to give leadership to local groups in Christian fellowship and inspiration, so the Dominion W.A. strives to give direction and help to the Presbytery W.A. It makes available literature for worship services and programs and such other literature according as need and opportunity arise.

The aims of this Dominion W. A. Council are four-fold:

1. Spiritually—By seeking to know God and practising His presence following always the best guide book the Bible and obeying the well defined rules for guidance, placing God first, our neighbors next and ourselves last.

2. Educationally—By making a study of the relationship of the Woman's Association with the church, other organizations within the church, the home, the school and the community.

3. Socially—By being a friend to all, helping the weak, feeding the hungry, clothing the needy visiting the sick, inspiring the careless and discouraged in every possible way by word or deed and giving encouragement to those less fortunate than ourselves.

4. Financially—By voluntary systematic givings or raising money through individual and group effort. Let everyone always when planning a program of financial activity be sure it is in keeping with the ideals of church leadership. The Board of Evangelism and Social Service has taken a strong stand against gambling and any kind of lottery.

Christ is calling upon us for service wherever unrighteousness dwells, to unite all men in brotherhood and to make our church a potent help in the world.

Mrs. M. Davidson, of Massassaga, gave a solo "I Walked Today Where Jesus Walked".

Talks on Temperance

Mrs. M. Denton then addressed the convention on Temperance, and at the beginning wondered what optimism she could give when in Ontario there are at least 1,000,000 users of alcohol and 125,000 heavy drinkers. If this were smallpox or diphtheria something would be done and why are the facilities for making alcohol increased? When conditions are so serious more time for prayer and meditation should be given and the children and 'teen-agers be warned against the so-called social glass. The youth should be protected and here is the challenge to the adult especially mothers.

Temperance films can be secured from the Ontario Temperance Federation, 50 Bloor Street West. Education in Sunday Schools and schools should be enforced. Literature should be placed in a prominent place in all homes where children will see it. Let everyone begin in their own homes to talk, teach and pray, act wisely and whenever and wherever they can point out the true meaning of total abstinence.

Post-War Aims

Several ladies from the Carmel W.A., conducted the Quiet Half-Hour. Mrs. H. Brown read from Cor. 3 and Mrs. A. Pyear gave an address of the 'Post-War Woman's Aim'. Women always have been leaders, Eve, Miriam, Ruth, Hannah, Esther, Mary, Martha in olden times and in British history, the most glorious pages were written during the reigns of women. But family life has changed and there are all kinds of opportunities if women wish to be leaders today. Illegitimate birth, divorce, petty crime and child delinquency, all these are so prevalent today. Never was the need so great for regenerated homes and churches. There is darkness in the world today because there isn't enough of the Light that Jesus brings. Jesus said we should lose life to find it, and that is done by serving others and forgetting one's self. The experience of Christ's presence will overcome the things that divide and help us in looking the needs of a battered and broken world.

Miss Nina Carlisle gave a message in song and the hymn "O God of Bethel by Whose Hand", closed the morning session.

Afternoon Session

The afternoon session began at 1.30 with community singing led by Mrs. H. Elliott and Mrs. W. Heath as pianist.

The opening devotional period was conducted by Madoc W.A., their theme was "The Dew", Hosea 14: 5: "I will be as the dew unto Israel".

The speaker compared the dew to God's grace stating, "As the dew falls gently and quietly so is it necessary when it comes to be aware of God's grace and presence in our lives. Due to the forces in nature sometimes the dew is barely perceptible and again it is present in abundance yet as in the case of God's grace there is plenty for all at the fountain head waiting to fall on everyone only as we are in a receptive mood." "The Grace of God is closer than breathing and nearer than hands or feet'."

A continuation of the morning's reports of the various societies was followed by a hymn and the offering.

Two pleasing solos "Bless This House" and "Dear Lord I Pray", were rendered by Mrs. Farrell, of Trenton.

Mrs. J. L. Halpenny conducted the round table discussion very capably. She concluded by saying: "Monday's problem was meeting Tuesday's equilibrium".

Memorial Service Held

An impressive memorial service was carried out for the 32 deceased members by Mrs. Wood and Mrs. Rollins, of Belleville. Mrs. Wood read a poem with which she coupled the names of those members and at the conclusion Mrs. Rollins placed a basket of flowers to their honor on the table and recited these words: "Now the laborers' task is o'er—Father in Thy gracious keeping leave we now Thy servant sleeping."

The inspirational address was given by Mrs. J. L. Halpenny, of Toronto, choosing for her subject the "Task of the Church", and "Woman's Part in This Task". Her introduction told of a man—a non-churchgoer while listening to his radio one day, was greeted by that program, 'The Bombing of Rotterdam', and as it concluded he said: "Now I am for the Church, because they have something for me".

The Church's task is to bring reconciliation on earth by all marching together for one common goal. The war is over—a task, is beginning. The Church's message is Christ's ministry of reconciliation. Will the Church accept the challenge? Failure after last war caused by neglect led to plans being made well in advance for "Crusade for Christ" to meet the spiritual need of our times. Is the Church ready to accept that challenge?

Church Woman's Part

Church woman's part:

1. Rededication on part of all by prayer and Bible Study.
2. Renew our commitment of Christian service in the home first.
3. Recruits for ministry.
4. Attempt to enlist all church members. Only 37 per cent of members now are really active.
5. Duty to returned personnel. Aid them in finding employment, help ease the housing situation, create and maintain a realm of fellowship.

Woman's task is to provide an atmosphere of a Christian home, an atmosphere of love and to create a cause to meet the cause for which they have suffered. It surely is an enormous task and we must take advantage of our opportunities with God's help since to win means a better church and to fail is catastrophe.

Officers Installed

Report of Courtesy Committee was presented by Mrs. Denton and Nominating Committee by Mrs. Rollins, of Belleville. The new officers were duly installed by Mrs. J. A. Lott. The benediction by Rev. E. W. Todd brought to a close an inspiring and educational convention.

Truman's Labor Program Not Likely to Succeed

Washington, May 31 —(AP)— President Truman's emergency labor program, already shorn of its potent draft-labor provision, today came under fresh Senate attack with its chances of survival greatly diminished.

Heartened by the end of the soft coal strike, a coalition of Senate Republicans and New Deal Democrats pressed their campaign to defeat the proposed legislation.

One uncertain factor in the picture as the Senate convened was whether the crippling maritime strike set for June 15 will be averted. Removal of this threat would heavily strengthen the hand of those arguing against any speedy action on such drastic legislation.

Foes of Mr. Truman's emergency program had several new amendments ready. Senator James Murray (Dem.-Mont.) said the New Deal group also planned a move to end discussion of the bill on the floor and send it back to committee — normally a side-tracking process.

Republicans indicated they will not oppose such a manoeuvre, and the expressed attitude of Democratic Leader Alben Barkley is that if the maritime labor dispute is settled it might be a good move to send the bill to interstate commerce committee for further study.

In committee, it could remain as a sort of "gun-behind-the-door" which Congress could snatch up if a new labor crisis developed.

The Republican - New Deal group, which led the way in knocking out Mr. Truman's labor-draft proposal Wednesday, appeared so completely in the saddle that most of their opponents had given up hope of enacting even a reasonable facsimile of the measure asked by the President.

Under the draft-labor proposal, the government would have been authorized to draft into the armed services persons who strike against the government.

Price Increases On Furniture Allowed by Board

Ottawa, May 31 —(CP)— The Prices Board Thursday authorized price increases in the manufacturers' prices on "wooden and upholstered household furniture of all types" and said it was "expected" the order would result in increases of seven to 13 per cent in the retail price.

The order does not apply to "hard furniture, of which wood is the chief component, manufactured in British Columbia," on which prices previously had been adjusted, the board said.

The new increases were in addition to those permitted in the past which had been absorbed by manufacturers and retailers without increased consumer cost and were being authorized because the furniture industry recently had experienced increased production costs in both labor and materials.

The board statement said the move would "encourage production of many low-priced, low-profit lines which the industry has dropped in order to meet rising costs."

To lessen the effect on the consumer, a concurrent order was issued reducing retailers' mark-ups.

The increases do not apply to goods now in the hands of distributors and retail outlets.

BOOST BOOT PRICES

Washington, May 31 (AP) — O.P.A. today boosted prices 10 to 15 per cent on shoes selling generally at $5.50 or less. The increase, effective immediately on new shipments by manufacturers, applies to standard types of men's women's and children's shoes which were being made during 1942.

Directors Want Riverside Drive Project Started

Chamber of Commerce directors at their weekly luncheon on Thursday passed a resolution recommending that a brief be prepared and presented to the Municipal Board at its next Belleville sitting, requesting that body for its approval of the issuance of the necessary debentures, so that work can be started immediately on the Riverside Drive.

President Lorne McDougall requested his directors to present the motion for the resolution which was passed unanimously after a brief discussion.

Arrangements were completed with Chairman of the Open Forum Committee for a special meeting to be held on Friday, June 7 to which members of the City Council and the general public as well as members of the Chamber will be invited. A special feature of the Open Forum meeting will be a discussion of the tourist industry and how it affects this city and district.

Directors in a body accepted the invitation of the officials and members of the Belleville Junior Board of Trade to a joint meeting scheduled for the Bay of Quinte Country Club on Monday June 3 at 6:30 p.m.

Members of the Chamber of Commerce are also invited and are notified in a newspaper advertisement today. Special cars for the convenience of members will be available at the Front-Bridge Street intersection at 6:15 Monday evening. The speaker for the joint meeting is Gladstone Murray, former head of the CBC and well-known radio executive.

Following a brief discussion on a communication received from the Ontario Farm Services, regarding the securing of farm labor during harvest time, the matter was referred to the attention of the Chamber manager Mr. John Badgley.

The directors took no action on the request of the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce for additional funds.

Mother Re-united With Abandoned Child by Ad.

Regina, May 31 —(CP)— A mother was re-united with her abandoned child yesterday following an advertisement in a Regina paper informing her of the infant's illness.

The month-old baby girl was found carefully clothed and wrapped in a bus depot here May 10 with a pencilled note reading: "Hope you get the best of care. As soon as I get work I'd love to have you."

When the baby contracted intestinal flu the Children's Aid Society which has been caring for it advertised in the personal column of a newspaper requesting that the mother telephone regarding the child's illness.

Yesterday a young married woman appeared at the society's office requesting the return of her daughter. The woman, separated from her husband, now has a job as housekeeper and the baby will be accepted.

The mother had abandoned the child when she arrived here penniless and without prospects for employment.

The child is recovering and is expected to be turned over to the mother's care shortly.

PLENTIFULLY SUPPLIED

Chicago, May 31 (AP)— Director Robert Bean of the Brookfield Zoo says the zoo is now plentifully supplied with bedbugs and lice. The zoo's appeal for the pests carried offers of $1 a pair for six pairs of bedbugs and six pairs of lice and the response was sudden and complete. Among the contributors was a woman who was paid $6 for sending in 60 bedbugs.

FORCED TO FLASH MESSAGE

Milan, Italy, May 31 (AP) — An electric bulletin board on Milan's Duomo Square last night suddenly flashed this announcement: "The third number of Lotta Fascista (an underground Fascist newspaper) has just come out. Read it. Fascism is not dead. Long live Il Duce." Police found the two operators of the machine bound and gagged. They said three men forced them at pistol point to flash the message.

PICTON

Proposal Made to Develop Air Station Site Into Model Town

Picton, May 31 — A proposal that the RCAF station here be taken over by the municipality and developed into a model town, was advanced at a meeting of Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce here Wednesday night. The speaker was Col. W. E. Manhard, who supervised the construction of Picton and Mountain View air stations.

Col. Manhard had previously made representations in regards to developing the station, and the Chamber endorsed the sending of telegrams to be sent to the Co-Ordinator and Housing, Emergency Shelter Administration, Dept. of Veterans' Affairs, and the RCAF, reading as follows:

"That this Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce requests the immediate availability of buildings at the Air Force Station in Picton in accordance with correspondence carried on with Col. W. E. Manhard".

The plan outlined by Col. Manhard calls for the National authorities to permit the use of the station to provide housing for returned men who have not been able to secure the same at any price, as well as to set up a model town, based on reconversion of such existing facilities as air stations for such purpose.

If the proposal materializes, the Picton air station might be reconverted to house veterans and families totalling 2,000.

It is pointed out that should a newly-arranged housing deal be carried out, facilities such as sewerage, light, water and streets would have to be provided, whereas the air station has all these facilities as well as many buildings suitable for dwellings.

New Industry

It was intimated that a small industry would immediately be established there, one manufacturing pre-fabricated houses, providing employment. Veterans have found it impossible to open businesses in town due to lack of premises, and these could be located at the air station. Two groups are interested in securing use of landing strips and a hangar for air service.

Members also heard the aims and objects of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce outlined by T. H. Hamill, field secretary. A committee of D. P. Pyke, E. L. Bronskill and J. de B. Arnaud was named to draw up a program for the local Chamber.

Mother Dies With Two Children In Sydney, N.S., Fire

Sydney, N.S., May 31 (CP) — A mother and her two children were burned to death in a fire that destroyed a two-storey dwelling on Alexandra Street here early today.

Dead are: Mrs. Allan MacQuarrie, 29, her three-year-old son, John, and a two-year-old daughter, Margery Ann.

Two other MacQuarrie children, Allan, four, and Shirley, three months, were taken to hospital suffering from burns.

The MacQuarrie family occupied the upper floor of the building. Dan MacLean and his eight children escaped from the lower floor uninjured.

Tulips From The Netherlands

Tulips and The Netherlands have been linked in people's minds in Canada this spring as they were in the minds of Allied soldiery a year ago. In many parts of the Dominion have bloomed and are blooming this year tulips planted last autumn on arrival from the land of the brave Hollanders. Many of these were sent or brought home to Canada by Canadians who had come to love the Dutch people for their devotion to the spirit of freedom. In Toronto many thousands of tulips, the gift of Her Majesty Queen Wilhelmina, are seen by the citizens in Queen's Park. In Montreal on Dominion Square this week was dedicated a display of tulips to the sacrifice and service of Canadian troops who had fought for the liberation of The Netherlands. The dedication was carried out by the Consul-General of that country, Dr. A. Sevenster, who said that "the fact that we can live again is due to the arrival of Canadian troops. Words are not strong enough to express the gratitude The Netherlands feels towards Canada." In an effort to give a more concrete token of their thanks, money had been raised to send 300,000 tulips to this country, 100,000 of them to Montreal. Mayor Houde assured the Dutch Consul General that these flowers would be taken care of as if they were in their native Holland. He also expressed the hope to see the tulips spread throughout the city.

English-speaking peoples have high regard for the intrepid Netherlanders and will never forget the history of The Netherlands centuries back as well as The Netherlands of today and yesterday. That country and her heroic people gave a noble demonstration of the spirit of freedom that endures through the centuries. All the cruelties that the Hun could invent failed to shake the loyalty and courage of this people. They endured the enemy occupation, but showed in every way possible their supreme scorn of German tyranny. They never bowed to Potsdam or the clanking of the German sword. Hun atrocities could not daunt them. They were the very spirit of the free and what they did while the enemy occupied their country counted at last a great deal when the tide of Allied invasion swept in across the English Channel into Normandy, through France, Belgium and Holland and thence to Germany.

Canadians were brought close to these heroic Netherlanders last year and the admiration was mutual.

Our people have always associated the tulip with the land of The Netherlanders but now tulips will have a deeper significance in the bonds of true friendship which binds the English-speaking and The Netherlands peoples. They will remind Canadians of the service Canadian young men gave in the redemption of Holland and her people, achieved at loss of Canadian lives. These flowers will be forever richer in the thoughts they stir in the minds of the people of this country. For The Netherlanders, too, there will be the added richness in these colors and flowers of spring because they symbolize the good and the true who in all the way to victory fought the good fight, Canadians and Netherlanders and all other Allied troops.

India Background

The Indian Empire covers an area of some 1,576,000 suare miles with a population in 1941 of nearly 389,000,000, i.e. three fourths of the population of the whole British Empire and one fifth of the total world population. The population increase is estimated at over five millions annually. British India comprises eleven provinces with a population in 1941 of 296,000,000 and an area of 886,000 square miles. The provinces range from Bengal with 60,000,000 population to the northwest frontier with 3,000,000. In Indian States (1941 census) 93,000,000 owe allegiance only to their own rulers and are not British subjects. There are 562 States ranging from Hyderabad, as large as France with a population of over 16,000,000, to minute units comprising only four villages. The native states cover 690,000 square miles, two fifths of the total area of India.

Hitherto the machinery of government has been as follows: A responsible agent for the exercise of the authority of King George VI, Emperor of India, has been Secretary of State for India. A Governor General (Viceroy) and Provincial Governors have been appointed by the King Emperor and have been responsible to the Secretary of State for the exercise of special powers. The Viceroy, as Crown representative, has conducted business with the Indian States through his political department. The Central Government has consisted of the Viceroy's Executive Council and the Central Legislature and has dealt with defence, foreign affairs, transport and other matters of common concern to all India. Its position in relation to the provinces has corresponded roughtly to that of the American Federal Government in relation to separate states. Since 1941, the Executive Council has been predominantly Indian, only four of the fifteen members being British; that is, members for finance, home and transport and commander in chief. The Viceroy has been bound by the advice of the Executive Council. Though he had the right to overrule in certain circumstances, Indian members testify that in their experience this right has not been exercised.

The Central Legislature has had two chambers — the Council of State with 59 members, of whom 32 have been elected by Indians, and the Legislative Assembly with 141 members of whom 102 have been elected by the Indians. Of a total of 1.5 million government servants in India, only about 3,000 are British.

British Indian provinces have enjoyed self-government since 1937. In each province an Indian premier and cabinet have been responsible to a freely-elected Indian legislature and dealt with a full range of matters of government including law and order, finance, public health, local government, education, agriculture, land and taxation. An electorate giving wide range representation to various races, communities and other special interests, numbered about 35,000,000 including about four and a half million women.

The rulers of Indian States which are not British territory are in treaty relationship with Britain. They have control of all internal matters within their respective states. Thus British Indian law does not apply to them and the Central Legislation cannot legislate for them.

The latest census shows 225,000,000 Hindus, of whom nearly 50,000,000 were of scheduled castes ("Untouchables"). Moslems numbered 94,000,000 and Sikhs five and a half million. The Hindus, therefore, include 66 and the Moslems about 23 percent. of the total population.

Britain's Switch to Peace

It can now be reliably forecast that Britain's switchover from war to peace production will have been completed by the end of 1946. The magnitude of such an achievement is revealed by the fact that it will mean that no less than 8,500,000 men and women will have been released from the armed forces and war factories within 18 months of V-E Day. By the end of March the number of people engaged directly on war work — men and women in the forces, civil defence and war supplies — had fallen from 9,106,000 on V-E Day to 3,949,000, it is pointed out by British Information Office.

MEMORIES OF FIFTY YEARS AGO

Let us now the memories muster
Of those long-past early years:
Of the goggles and the duster
Worn by motor pioneers,
And the giggles and the chuckles
Of the scoffers, near and far,
As the driver skinned his knuckles
When he vainly cranked the car.

We were on our own resources
When the motor wouldn't start —
Idiots shouted: "Stick to horses!"
And they fancied they were smart.
Then, all drivers to be heeded,
Got a printed book of rules,
And in case repairs were needed
A mechanic's set of tools.

For the lamps, we carried matches,
Were we out till after dark.
For the tires, we'd 'shoes' and 'patches.'
Here I linger to remark
For this modern generation,
Should it happen to inquire,
That the worst of all inflation
Is by hand to pump a tire.

Hey, young fellow, stop a minute,
While the traffic's being cleared!
That fine car, and all that's in it,
Has been bravely pioneered.
Motor griefs some stout heart battled,
Crawled in mud on hands and knees,
To learn why his old car rattled,
So that you could drive with ease.

LOOKING BACKWARDS
GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS.

20 YEARS AGO

MAY 31ST., 1926.

Our Plainfield correspondent reports that Mr. Erle Denyes has a new Chev. Sedan.

Mr. Herbert Sills of Plainfield has sold his store to Mr. F. Creeper and has bought a house in Belleville.

Mr. S. A. Badgley of Frankford was in town today.

The Houston Company Limited of Tweed has purchased the buildings and site of the mills of the Steel Company of Canada at Belleville and will open business here with one of the largest planing and lumber mills, sash and door factories in Ontario.

Lewis Swenor died in his 103rd year at the home of his daughter Mrs. John Belnap at Rossmore, on May 29th. He was born in Montreal in 1823 and when a young man he settled in Prince Edward County and hewed his farm from the bush and went through the pioneer days.

30 YEARS AGO

MAY 31ST., 1916.

Captain W. H. Bottum and Mr. Daniel Grass left today for Weslemkoon Lake. They will be joined there by Mr. Whittie of Stirling.

Dr. Henry M. Jones of Marmora, who was hospital sergeant for the 15th. Battalion at the front in 1866, will be here to attend the Veterans' dinner. Dr. Jones has two sons now serving at the front overseas.

The 80th. Battalion has arrived safely in England.

The members of the Sites, Building and Repairs Committee of the Board of Education made an official visit to the various public schools in the city this afternoon to ascertain what repairs are necessary to the buildings.

A tennis club has been formed in connection with St. Michael's parish and the following officers have been elected: Hon. President, Rev. Father Hyland; President, Rae Peppin; Secretary, L. E. Young; Treasurer, George Lee; Grounds Committee, F. Leonard, L. E. Young, and George Lee. An enjoyable summer is in prospect for the members of the club.

40 YEARS AGO

MAY 31ST., 1906.

Fifteen days more and you may catch bass, providing of course you can find them. Most of us, however, will keep on catching gamey sunfish and perch ranging in weight all the way from 2 to 6 ounces.

Ald. and Mrs. W. H. Gordon have arrived home after a trip to Western Canada.

Efforts are being made to boom baseball in this city and there is good prospect that with sufficient financial support a good nine could be placed in the field. The "sinews of war" however, are lacking. Who will assist?

The beautiful beds of tulips on the grounds of Dr R. Tracy were destroyed last night by persons unknown. The beds contained about 200 tulips. The matter is being investigated by the police.

It is expected that the rolling mills will be operating soon. Shipments of scrap metal are arriving at the plant.

50 YEARS AGO

MAY 31ST., 1896.

Mr. P. Hart has added to his already fine kennel of St. Bernard dogs the noted female dog "Scottish Ruby". The dog is one of the largest of the breed in existence and will make a valuable addition to the breed in Canada.

The handsome silver cup won by the 15th. Battalion tug-of-war team at Peterborough on May 24th., is on exhibition in the show window of R. J. Orr's jewelry store.

Dr. Gibson will attend the meeting of the Ontario Medical Association in Windsor tomorrow.

Mr. Robert Gordon of Tweed was a visitor in town today.

Mr. Perry Ham of Kansas City spent yesterday here with his nephew, Mr. J. W. Ham.

Whitehall Notebook

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 30 — (CP)—Hugh Dalton, Chancellor of the Exchequer, has been pleased to appoint Mrs. Jennie Laurel Adamson, Labor Member of Parliament for Bexley, as steward and bailiff of the Manor Northstead.

In other words, Mrs. Adamson is permitted to leave her seat in Parliament and become deputy chairman of the Assistance Board, a government organization engaged in the kind of work liked by Mrs. Adamson, sometimes called "Mother of Orphans." The title came when she was in charge of the War Service Grants Department of the Pensions Department.

The complicated procedure of ceasing to be a member of Parliament is a relic of the days when local gentry had to be compelled to serve in parliament. Their only escape was to plead persistent ill health and this seldom if ever succeeded.

In the early 18th Century a law was passed saying that anyone who accepted a position of profit under the Crown must vacate his seat in the Commons. Of the many stewardships then granted by the Crown only the Chilterns and Northsteed survive, and they are no more than names.

Until about 100 years ago the person appointed to such a stewardship could claim 20 shillings in payment, but now even this is gone. However, the Chancellor must diligently write out a warrant of appointment to legalize the member's retirement.

Peer's pay: House-of Commons members are to have their pay increased from £600 to £1,000 ($4,500) annually and the Lords in the Upper House — at least some of them — think it is time to stop working for nothing.

Lord Addison, secretary for the Dominions and Government leader in the Lords, has made representations with the comment that not only Labor but some Conservative and Liberal peers find it hard to meet travel expenses when wishing to attend sittings.

BOTTLE BOUNCES SAYS COP

Toronto, May 31 —(CP)— A bouncing rum bottle — half full —was exhibited in court Thursday as Mike Wonsul of Toronto pleaded guilty to a charge of drinking in a public place and was fined $10 and costs or 10 days. Wonsul didn't say the bottle bounced — that was the word of a police officer.

"He threw this to the pavement but it just bounced," said Constable John Ross, displaying the rum.

UNIFORMS OPTIONAL

London (CP)—The King has sanctioned optional wearing of uniforms by all ex-officers and men of the fighting services for the June Victory celebrations. But if a uniform is worn it must be clean, in good condition and of correct pattern."

MEMBERS DISCUSS

Some of the demands for the control of water and irrigation in the West came from F. S. Zaplitny (CCF-Dauphin); Grote Stirling (PC-Yale); William Irvine (CCF-Cariboo); George Cruickshang (L-Fraser Valley); and Victor Quelch (SC-Acadia).

Discussions on the P.F.A.A. was confined to western members.

Mr. Gardiner said that if the Dominion-Provincial conference had reached agreement he would have introduced two bills this session to extend provisions of the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Act across Canada. The bills — one covering the four western provinces and the other the five eastern provinces — had been drafted but were withdrawn when the conference broke up in disagreement.

Had the conference succeeded the federal government would have undertaken reclamation of the maritime marshlands, spending $4,000,000 to $5,000,000 over a two to three year period.

Ought to be Agreement

"We believed that there ought to be agreement in the first place on certain sources of revenue being open to the Federal Government which now are tapped by the Provincial governments in order that we may have the means to do these things," said Mr. Gardiner.

"Then we ought to have a division of authority to make it possible for us to spend money in these areas.

Mr. Black said there were some 100,000 or 150,000 acres in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick which could be reclaimed for farming. Because of the condition of dykes built some 150 years ago the sea was overrunning the land and nothing could be grown on it.

Mr. MacNicol urged the work be undertaken to increase the population of the Maritimes. He said he would get behind the government on any program to carry out a "gigantic" irrigation and water conservation program no matter where the work was carried out.

The western members told how the uncontrolled waters in their areas were flooding the farms in the spring of the year and leaving them arid in the summer, causing crop failures. They urged extension of the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Act to the whole of Canada so that water control projects could be carried out under it.

Going Ahead With Project

Mr. Gardiner said the government was going ahead with a $750,000 irrigation project on the St. Mary's River in Alberta and would spend other amounts on surveying the possibility of similar projects in other parts of the prairies.

Turning to the proposed changes in the P.F.A.A., Mr. Gardiner said the amendments would enable the provinces to determine whether or not they wished to come under it. He did not disclose the extent of the proposed changes because they had not yet been all approved by the cabinet.

He intended to recommend a change in the regulations which prevented a youth of 18 operating a farm from obtaining assistance under the act in time of crop failure.

Eric McKay (CCF—Weyburn) said the crop failure bonus paid under P.F.A.A. was inadequate and suggested it be increased. The bonus of $500 for each farm unit was barely enough to cover essential farm expenses.

Help Stabilization

He suggested the Federal government explore the possibility of instituting a contributory crop failure insurance across Canada, including fruit and vegetable crops as well as cereals. This would help stabilize agriculture.

Hazen Argue (CCF—Mountain) said crop insurance schemes were very difficult to operate and those attempted in the United States and elsewhere had failed miserably.

He felt P.F.A.A. should be continued but that the basis of payments should be changed. Under the existing legislation a farmer could suffer a crop failure through no fault of his own and still be unable to collect any assistance because there were not enough farmers in his area who suffered a crop failure also. The act left it to the government to decide what areas should be declared crop failure areas.

J. A. Ross (PC—Souris) and John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre) supported this argument.

Readers addressing letters to Dr. Brady will please include the word "Canada" on their return envelopes, as these letters have to be forwarded to Dr. Brady. And it is requested that readers use standard size envelopes that will hold a small booklet

OVERWEIGHT AND MALNUTRITION

Last Tuesday I said that many reducing diets exploited by charlatans, reduce weight, if at all, only at cost of vite—well, anyway, I said at the cost of health and vitality—but let's call it vite. Vite, my fat-h—my dear fat friends, is a fine thing to have about the body, and if you are shy on vite it makes little difference whether you are skinny or obese, you just can't be happy.

The basic, fundamental, corrective, protective, rejuvenation diet is a reduction diet if yours is just moderate nutritional overweight.

There is a common popular notion that "malnutrition" is due to deprivaton or not getting enough to eat. That seldom happens in North America. In most instances of malnutrition the individual has always had plenty, often too much to eat, but the wholesale, nourishing, rich, digestible, well cooked, palatable, appetizing, easy-to-eat food has been deficient in one or more essentials—such as calcium, phosphorus, vitamin B, iron, iodine, cellulose.

Most obese individuals suffer from malnutrition of nutritional deficiency to begin with. So if they really "go on a diet" of the Hollywood variety and stick to it long enough to lose a few pounds, it is almost inevitable that they will sacrifice what little health and vite they had, and they will not recover much of it unless they happen to get an optimal daily intake of the essential vtamins and minerals—optimal being at least two or three times as much as may be required to maintain health in the ordinary way of life.

Whatever reduction diet or system the overweight individual follows, for a week or for many weeks he or she will find it much less difficult to stick with the diet if the diet itself provides the optimal daily intake of vitamins and minerals or is such optimal daily intake is assured by supplementing the diet with the necessary vitamins and minerals. You see, it is not necessary to break down health or strength or vitality, to sacrifice any vite you happen to have, in order to reduce weight.

If your's is simple nutritional obesity (from eating too much) send a stamped self addressed envelope and ask in writing for the pamphlet "How to Lose Weight."

Next Tuesday we'll talk about benzedrine.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Child Athletes

Please give your opinion of high school track teams. Is the strain on the heart injurious to a growing boy? Son, 14, in excellent health, has gained 17 pounds in eight months mostly due to the diet insisted on and encouraged by the coach, but have seen several collapse after a race at track meets where these youngsters give their all. (B.M.E.)

Answer—No growing boy should participate in an endurance contest of any kind, regardless of diet or encouragement of coach. Boys in their teens should go in for contests of skill, agility, coordination, never for anything that brings collapse or anything like it. High school baseball is fine; high school football is bad medicine for any normal boy in his 'teens.

Injection of Hernia

Is there a treatment by injection for double hernia? (C. F.)

Answer—Yes. Injection treatment in skilled hands is as likely to give a cure as radical operation is. It is given in the doctor's office, without detention from your ordinary activity. It is the method I'd prefer if I had hernia.

Habit Forming

Are all sedatives prescribed by doctors habit forming? I have been taking phenobarbital for several months. Last time I asked the doctor he said I might take it for a lifetime without getting a habit or suffering any harm.
(M. P. L.)

Answer—On the other hand most victims suffer a good deal of harm and many acquire a craving for the drug if they take it for more than a week or two under constant medical care.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Who is Mrs. Grundy?

Mrs. Grundy is an imaginary person who represents the composite opinion of our neighbors.

She personifies social propriety and is a very proper and conventional lady who turns up her nose at the slightest violation of etiquette. Those who make a practice of "keeping up with the Joneses" are especially careful to observe her dictates.

"The tyranny of Mrs. Grundy," wrote Herbert Spencer, "is worse than any other tyranny we suffer under."

Mrs. Grundy (she has no first name), was created by Thomas Morton in a play entitled "Speed the Plough," produced originally in 1798 at Covent Garden, London. She does not appear bodily as a character in the play, but Farmer Ashfield's wife continually refers to the social pretensions of the Grundy family.

Dame Ashfield's conversation is interlaced with cattish comments such as: "Farmer Grundy's wheat brought five shillings a quarter more than our did . . . Dame Grundy's butter was quite the crack of the market . . . I wonder, Tummas (her husband), what Mrs. Grundy will say? . . . The Miss Grundys, genteel as they think themselves, would be glad to snap at him. . . . I'll go to church in a stuff one — and let Mrs. Grundy turn up her nose as much as she pleases."

This eternal harping on Mrs. Grundy and her affairs gets on Farmer Ashfield's nerves. "Be quiet, woolye?" he growls, "aleways ding, dinging Dame Grundy into my ears — what will Mrs. Grundy zay? What will Mrs. Grundy think?"

His spouse denies she envies Mrs. Grundy. "What dant thee let her aloane then?" the farmer demands. "I do verily think when thee goest to t'other world, the virst question the't ax'll be, if Mrs. Grundy's there." But Dame Ashfield brings the subject up again: "Oh, Tummas, had you seen how Mrs. Grundy looked!" Dom Mrs. Grundy," snaps the exasperated husband.

Morton, creator of Mrs. Grundy, also gave us, "Approbation from Sir Hubert Stanley is praise indeed," which is popularly shorteded into, "Praise from Sir Hubert is praise indeed."

I.O.O.F. Lodge Attends Service At St. Andrew's

Stirling — Sunday May 26th. the members of Stirling Lodge I.O.O.F. No. 239 attended divine service in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church with the Rev. W. H. V. Walker delivering an inspired message. The church was filled to capacity and many had to stand outside. The Stirling band marched with the lodge members before and after service.

Mrs. R. H. Williams presided at the console of the organ during the service which opened with the hymn "Holy, Holy, Holy." The scripture lessons were read by Brothers Earl Fox and Harry Hulin.

Mr. Wm. Reynolds sang "The Lost Chord" with violin accompaniment by Mr. Ross Hermiston also Mrs. R. H. Williams at the organ.

The Rev. W. H. V. Walker took for his message "A Royal Oddfellow." Jonathan was characterized as the Royal Oddfellow. The incident occurred centuries ago but the beautiful story of Jonathan's love for David with its lessons will always live. Jonathan's visit to David depicted courageousness and loyalty on his part. The graceful strong heir to the throne of Israel went to see David the hunted and despised. Jonathan's action was different under the circumstances from the standard of the world and he was truly a Royal Oddfellow. Jonathan's friendship shows a splendid loyalty strong in adversity and prosperity. His friendship was no cheap affair. He did not send a messenger but went personally to pledge of a friend in time of need. David sorely tried, passed through great sorrow and was actually losing faith in God and his friends. Jonathan succeeded in his mission of friendship, leaving a stronger and better man.

There never was a time that the world needed Oddfellowship more than now. To stoop lower than ever and lift up the fallen along life's highway. Prove worthy of the name — "Oddfellow."

Moira

Moira — In the interests of the Crusade for Christ Movement a group of young people from Holloway United Church took charge of the evening service at Moira United Church assisted by Moira junior choir. About
MILK PRICES

A Message To
All Ontario Families

During the war years when it was vitally important to keep the cost of living index down, the Wartime Prices and Trade Board subsidized the price of milk in December, 1942. Through the consumer subsidy, milk was delivered by the dairies to you at two cents a quart less than you paid previous to that date. Everyone is grateful to the Prices Board for this arrangement, which over the past three and a half years, has proved so helpful in keeping available to you a plentiful supply of this most essential food.

The Wartime Prices and Trade Board has now decided, as part of its policy to relax many of the wartime controls, that it is advisable to discontinue payment of this consumer subsidy which is costing the taxpayers of Canada over $20,000,000 a year. You are now being called upon to pay the two cents instead of the Government paying it out of your taxes. This means that on June 1st your quart of milk will revert to the old price in effect before the subsidy was established.

It is noteworthy that in the face of rising prices all along the line, milk will cost no more after June 1st than it did three and one-half years ago. In contrast, according to a recent statement made by Donald Gordon, Chairman, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, the comparable price in the United States is now equal to seven cents per Canadian quart higher than the Canadian price.

THE PATHS MY MOTHER TROD

I'd love to stroll the old haunts
That I strolled in childhood days,
I'd love to roam in the woodlands green
And all the enchanted ways.
Just to watch the clouds go floating by
Under the hand of God,
Oh for a day in the country
And the paths my mother trod.

Just a day in the country
In the merry month of June,
Where flowers and trees and birds and bees
Are gaily humming a tune.
The grass so green beneath my feet
Feels like a carpet rare,
Just to be by myself on a day in June
And breathe the sweet fresh air.

The flowers have wakened with new life
And sweeter it seems each year,
And as I stroll beneath the sky
There silently falls a tear.
Then as I come to the garden
The roses heads do nod,
And oh for a day in the country
And the paths my mother trod.

The clematis on the trellis
Seems to understand it, too,
And lifts its head, to silently catch
Each drop of sparkling dew.
For God so made the little flowers
Their beauty to enthrall,
They reach down deep and touch the heart
And make the teardrops fall.

But if we have the flowers
We must have the sunshine too,
The birdies trill their sweetest notes
God sent them just for you.
Oh for a day in the meadows green,
Just to be alone with God,
Oh, for a day in the country
And the paths my mother trod.

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH WOMEN'S GUILD

The regular monthly meeting of St. Andrew's Women's Guild was held in the church hall on Tuesday evening, Mrs. Mantle presiding.

Many items of business were discussed and a motion was made to give financial assistance to the newly formed Young People's Society. It was also decided to purchase a used piano if possible.

Mrs. Ashbury reported on the dinner served recently by her group, and thanked all who had contributed to its success. Thanks were tendered also to Mrs. Hornsby for the gift of a tablecloth.

Plans were discussed for the annual bazaar to be held in the Autumn. Mrs. Mantle is to be the general convener with the groups assisting in the various booths.

A sing-song followed by refreshments, served by Mrs. McConnell's group, closed the meeting.

ST. JOHN'S W. A.

Stirling.—The St. John's W.A. was held in the Hall on May 28, with twenty members present. Mrs. H. Rodgers, president opened the meeting, the Bible reading was given by Mrs. S. McMurray. The Visiting Committee convener reported four calls for the month of May. For the month of June, Mrs. B. Woodbeck and Mrs. W. Graves will do the visiting. Mrs. Fred Kent gave the treasurer's report. Two chapters of the Study Book were given by Mrs. G. Clute. Mrs. T. Tanner and Mrs. G. Prince took charge of the program included in which was a reading, "Quicken the Spirit Within You", by Mrs. Edward Kent; a solo "In the Garden", by Mrs. B. Woodbeck, a Bible contest testing the members ability. Mrs. W. Savage moved a vote of thanks to all those taking part in the program. Mrs. C. C. Brazill closed the meeting after which delicious refreshments were served.

Eighteen Graduating Nurses Receive Pins and Diplomas Before Enthusiastic Assembly

Hon. Solon E. Low States There is Need for "Peptomists" in World of Future in Addressing Class

HON. SOLON LOW

Member of Parliament special speaker to graduating nurses at exercises held at B.C.I. Auditorium Thursday night.

The fifty-first graduation of the School of Nursing of the Belleville General Hospital was held Thursday evening in the Belleville Collegiate Institute, and approximately 900 were present to see the eighteen graduates receive their pins and diplomas, marking the successful termination of three years' training. His Worship Mayor F. Follwell was present to extend to the Women's Christian Association the deep appreciation of the council and the city for the splendid hospital maintained. Tribute was paid the Board of Governors and Mr. Mackenzie Robertson in particular. Speaking to the nurses Mr. Follwell stated that the nursing staff is the backbone of any hospital and he lamented the fact that there were not more girls entering the profession. The Health Unit for this or any other district is impossible until July, 1947, at least, because of the lack of trained nurses. In closing, Mr. Follwell congratulated the graduating class on behalf of the city of Belleville.

Praised Teaching Staff

Mr. Mackenzie Robertson, chairman for the evening, praised the teaching staff of the hospital and he too spoke of the extreme shortage of trained nurses. The guest speaker of the evening, the Honorable Solon E. Low, M.P., was introduced by Mr. George Stokes, M.P.

Mr. Low, addressing the graduating class, stated that there was a need for "peptomists" in the world of the future. "To be a 'peptomist'," said Mr. Low, "one has to have high ideals and make them felt. It is not enough to have the ideals; if you are not dynamic enough to put them across, they are no good. To be a 'peptomist' one must have a courage born of high purpose, faith in oneself, and a deep and abiding faith in God". Mr. Low told the inspiring story of a man he has known from his youth. This man, in poor health all his life and totally blind since before he was thirty years of age, is a shining example of what faith in oneself can accomplish. He is at present a brilliant worker in research science and holds a doctor's degree in that field.

Standing on Threshold

"The nurses", said the speaker, "were marking the end of their training, and were standing on the threshold of a new world. What it will be like, no one knows, although everyone can say what he hopes it will be like. The question in each girl's heart should not be "What will the future bring to me?", but "What can I bring to the future?" The world needs courageous men and women with a determination to make the world a better place in which to live. During their training, the nurses have met many adversities and Mr. Low stated that the way a person meets adversity shows his calibre. One must be able to learn by experience. Quoting Hugh Walpole, the speaker said "The whole secret of living is to be interested in one thing profoundly, and in a thousand things well". People must give freely of their talents so that the future generations will benefit as this generation has benefited from its predecessors.

Must know Causes of War

Touching briefly on the war Mr. Low said that men and women of the future must seek to know the cause of war in order to eliminate it, even as doctors and nurses must learn the cause of a disease in order to prevent it. He told of the growing indifference to human destruction which must be conquered. He spoke of the urgent need for the men and women of the future to seek the truth.

"Heart education as well as head education must be gained", said Mr. Low, "and as well as learning more things, we must learn better things". Even men dealing with the hard facts of business, such as Hon. J. L. Ilsley, Minister of Finance, realize this, Mr. Ilsley has stated, "What we need in the world is a change of heart".

In closing, Mr. Low urged the graduates to seek a profound faith, courage to meet adversity, the art of diversified living, truth, and the co-education of heart and mind.

Spoke on Changes

Miss L. Evelyn Horton, director of Nursing, spoke briefly on the changes in the nursing course in the last few years. One of the most important changes noted was the inclusion of a psychiatric course. Just as public health nursing was the outcome of the last war, psychiatry has been the outcome of this war, stated Miss Horton, and therefore the nurses' course has been altered to meet this new demand. To the graduating class she said that there were two ways of measuring perfection; the first, which leads to discontent, "How much better could it be?" and the second, leading to content, "How much worse could it be?"

Nurses Take Pledge

Following Miss Horton's address, the impressive ceremony was held of the nurses' taking the Florence Nightingale Pledge. A beautiful picture was presented as the eighteen graduates, in their white uniforms, with arm bouquets of red roses, solemnly took their oath of faith. Pins and diplomas were presented by Mrs. J. R. Abrams and Mrs. W. C. Mikel. The presentation of special prizes followed, with Mr. Follwell presenting the Gold Medal for general proficiency to Miss Jean Muirhead, on behalf of the Board of Governors. The Silver Medal, for second highest general proficiency, was presented to Miss Fay Edith Kelly, by Dr. Austin Walters, for the medical staff. The prizes awarded by the medical staff were presented by Dr. Walters to the following: medical nursing prize, won by Fay Edith Kelly; surgical nursing prize, won by Doris Harriet Smith; obstetrical nursing prize, won by Jean Muirhead. The prize for the highest standing in professional adjustments in the senior year was presented by Miss Horton to Mary Margaret Payne.

Valedictory Address Given

Valedictorian, Miss Fay Edith Kelly, told of the nurse's personal adjustments as she progresses in her training. In only a few months' time, she is changed from a thoughtless girl to a helpful and understanding nurse. She pointed out the highlights of the training period; first, when the capping ceremony takes place; second, when the nurse has her first night duty; third, her affiliation with the Montreal hospitals; and finally, her graduation. Dr. Walters, president of the medical staff, brought to the graduates, the congratulations of the doctors, and urged each girl to continue her education as she continues nursing. Flowers were presented to Miss Horton and Miss Mildred Cullen, night supervisor, by little Miss Frances Jean Muirhead.

Miss Ethel Smith, accompanied by Miss Leona Riggs, sang two beautiful solos, 'Schubert's Serenade" and "Morning", during the program. Processional and recessional music was played by Miss Riggs, and the invocation and benediction were pronounced by the Rev. Arthur Smith.

WEDDINGS

SPINKS—SHARPE

A "Lilac-time" wedding will be celebrated this evening at 8.30 in the garden at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Sharpe, when their daughter, Margaret Isabel will be united in marriage to William Ewen Spinks, B.A., graduate of the University of Toronto, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Earle Spinks, 146 Dowling Avenue, Toronto. The Reverend J. S. A. Spearman of the Wesleyan Methodist Chapel, will be the officiating minister.

The bride, who is a graduate of the Toronto College of Music, and of the Toronto Normal School, will be dressed in a navy 'Christian Service" uniform with white accessories and will carry a white Bible, the gift of her parents.

Attending the bride will be her sister, Dr. Jean Sharpe of the Women's College Hospital, Toronto, while Dr. J. T. Erb, of the Canadian Army Medical Corp, Petawawa, will attend the groom.

A wedding dinner will be served at six-thirty to the immediate relatives.

After a short motor trip the bride and groom will go to Toronto where they will take up residence, the groom being engaged in Home Mission Work in that city.

HOLLAND—McTAGGART

Tweed. (Special.)—The home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert McTaggart, Tweed, Ont., was the scene of a quiet Spring wedding at two p.m. on Wednesday, May 29, when their only daughter, Marjorie Elizabeth, became the bride of Elvin Bateman Holland, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Holland, Crookston, Ont. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. A. L. Sisco, with Mr. Frederick Porter at the piano. Mr. Milton McTaggart sang "I Love You Truly".

Entering the living room to the strains of the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin the bride, who was given in marriage by her father, looked lovely in a street-length dress of pale blue sheer and lace with matching veiled hat and carried Ophelia roses and lily-of-the-valley.

She was attended by Miss Eva Holland, sister of the groom, dressed in gold crepe with matching hat and a bouquet of snapdragon and forget-me-nots and Didiscus.

Little Miss Elsie Martin, cousin of the bride, was flower girl, wearing pink and carried a silver basket with narcissis and lily-of-the-valley and Pelargonium.

Mr. Milton McTaggart, brother of the bride was groomsman.

A reception followed the ceremony when Mrs. McTaggart received the guests wearing pink and black silk jersey with a corsage of Talisman roses.

Receiving with her was the groom's mother, who chose a two-piece ensemble of white and mauve and a corsage of Talisman roses. The wedding table covered with a lace cloth was centred by the wedding cake.

The groom's gift to the bride was a chest of silver. The bridesmaid received a gold bracelet, the flower girl, an initialed locket, and the best man a signet ring.

Later the bride and groom left for Toronto and Western points. The bride travelled in a Queen's blue gabardine suit with black plastic accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses and lily-of-the-valley. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Holland will reside near Crookston.

Trousseau Tea Held For Miss H. Belnap

On Wednesday afternoon, Mrs. C. R. Belnap, Catharine Street, entertained at a trousseau tea in honor of her daughter, Helen, bride of the near future. Receiving the guests were Mrs. Belnap, Miss H. Belnap, and Mrs. B. Murray, sister of the groom. The rooms were decorated with Spring flowers and in the dining room the wedding cake was on display. From three to five the bride's book and shower gifts were in the care of Mrs. B. Humphrys and Mrs. R. Row. From five to seven, Miss Marie Huffman and Miss Nadine Galbraith had charge. Showing the wedding gifts and inviting the guests to the tearoom were Mrs. J. Marsh and Mrs. A. Singer. From three to five, Mrs. J. Irvine showed the trousseau; from five to seven Mrs. P. Hart performed this duty.

In the tea room, the tea table, cover with an Italian cutwork cloth, held a crystal bowl of tall tulips, with lilies of the valley massed about their stems. Pink tapers in silver candelabra, flanked the centrepiece. From three to five, Mrs. A. Singer and Mrs. P. Hart poured tea, and the Misses Doreen Rose, Dorothy Brown, and Nadine Galbraith served. From five to seven, Mrs. T. Law and Miss Rayma Lowery served, while Mrs. B. Humphrys and Mrs. H. Wray presided at the tea table. Replenishing were Mrs. A. Hitchon and Mrs. C. Reid.

Magistrate Enlarges Case

Toronto, May 31 — (CP)—Two women reported they were frightened by a man on a lonely street. Constable Ernest West found Robert Dempsey in the neighborhood and started to arrest him. When Dempsey backed away West hit him with a flashlight. In court yesterday, Magistrate R. J. Browne decided he needed a week to ponder whether the blow was necessary.

SIAMESE WATERMELONS

Siamese twin watermelons are a freak of the vegetable world that occur one time in a million. The Strickland twins, Jean, LEFT, and Jane, exhibit such a freak for the watermelon festival at Leesburg, Florida.

Reception Held By Graduate Nurses

Following the graduation exercises of the School of Nursing, a reception was held Thursday evening, in the Nurses' Residence. Receiving the guests were Mrs. J. W. Imlah, president of the W.C.A., Miss L. E. Horton, director of Nursing, and Mr. G. Barclay, administrator.

The reception rooms were beautifully decorated with masses of flowers. The tea table held a low bowl of Spring flowers in pastel shades of pink, yellow and blue, flanked by gold tapers. Pouring were: Mrs. W. C. Mikel, Mrs. J. R. Abrams, Mrs. R. H. Wray and Mrs. A. E. Miles.

Rumored Stettinius Resigns

Washington, May 31 — (AP) — Government officials who would not permit use of their names last night reported Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., has sent to President Truman his resignation as United States representative on the United Nations Security Council.

The White House and Mr. Stettinius declined comment. State Department officials said they had no information concerning the reported resignation.

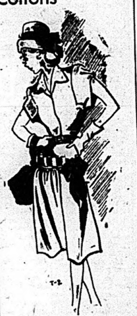
STATE OF SIEGE DECREED

La Pas, Bolivia, May 31—(AP) — A state of siege was decreed yesterday by the government of President Gen. Gualberto Villarroel with the announced aim of safeguarding "the stability of the nation" against the activities of opposition groups.

Informed sources said numerous persons had been arrested.

The Bolivian minister of the Interior said in a broadcast that a "subversive movement" was overcome Monday and that the state of siege was established "in view of the gravity of the situation and in order to defeat sinister plans."

Dressed Up Cottons



Blue dress with hip sash

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

COTTON IS ALL dressed up this year, and even the simplest little number has a point or two of fashion interest. Although this frock is of washable chambray it goes in for hip interest in a manner worthy of the finest silk crepe design. A sash of bright red taffeta ribbon runs through the self loops on the moulded hipline. The skirt is gathered from the hip yoke. The dress is of pale powder blue, which is a nice contrast for the red sash. It has a tailored self belt and a casual collar.

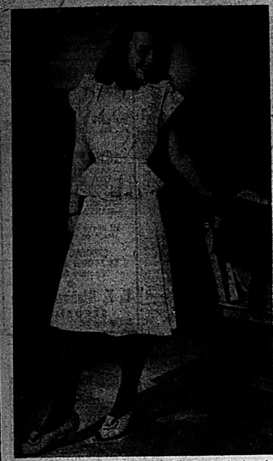
Graduating in June



By PRUNELLA WOOD

THE PRETTY ALL-WHITE graduation frock for June commencements is a good start to any girl's summer wardrobe, whether her class votes for long evening models, or short daytime dresses.

This not expensive white eyelet cotton dress is a New York design, charming for the day when strain and swatting is past for at least three months . . . and useful for all sorts of dates, day and night, during those months.

Despite the coquet frills about square neckline and below the belt, the dress is a soap and water item when it comes to keeping it fresh and clean.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Expenses the Fiance Should Not Pay

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When I became engaged and had a party to announce my engagement, my parents paid all the expenses for this party. And they paid all the expenses for the reception after the wedding.

Now a friend of mine is planning an engagement dinner to be held in a hall, for about fifty guests, and has suggested to her intended husband that he share the expenses of this dinner. Also, she seems to think that although he has made no offer in this direction either, he is responsible for the entire expense of the wedding reception she expects to have in the near future. I might say that this young lady is in good, or at least average, circumstances. What do you think of this procedure on the part of an engaged girl?

H. J.

Obviously this girl is of the "gimme" type who will try to extract money from a fiance who either (1) doesn't know (or does not find out) what his financial obligations are or (2) does know but who for some reason . . . . maybe because he loves the girl too much to make an issue of her presumptuous demands or maybe because he is a Milquetoast who doesn't dare be frank with her. . . shoulders the financial "responsibility".

I wish that in some way this young man, who is either benighted or bewildered, could be informed of the propriety and taste of the way you and your family so correctly planned and paid for your engagement-announcement party and your wedding reception.

If this girl or her family had any taste, they would give the kind of engagement-announcement party they can afford to give . . .or not give any party. And the same would be true for the wedding reception, every expense of which should be paid for by the bride's family.

Shower Gifts . . . Wedding Gifts

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I am to be my cousin's maid of honor at her wedding soon and I am planning a bridal shower for her. When I give it, is it necessary for me to give the bride-to-be a present? If so, what kind?

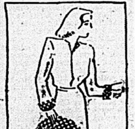
2. If a present is given at the bridal shower, should one also be given after the wedding ceremony?

L. N.

1. Customarily the hostess gives the bride-to-be, the guest of honor at the shower, a gift of the same type given by the guests; for example, linen if the shower is a linen shower, a kitchen utensil for a kitchen shower, and so forth.

2. Generally a shower gift does not take the place of a wedding gift. If gift-budgeting is a problem (and it certainly can be, with the number of showers planned these days!), one can take some trifle to the shower and concentrate on the wedding present. (And by the way, the wedding present should be sent to the bride-to-be before the wedding, a generous number of days before the wedding so that the bride-to-be will have the opportunity to write her thank-you notes before she leaves on her wedding trip."

It's About Time



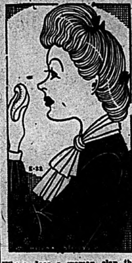
By DOLORES BOLAND

IT'S ABOUT TIME to consider this smart trimming idea for a plain linen (or linen-weave) town dress. Have trimming of dotted, checked or striped material. With this, face front closing and sleeves and make a go-with hat. Turn back sleeves or not, as you like.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Make-up requires the deft touch



Where does a woman slap the first wallop of powder?

Powder pad and lipstick are cosmetic indispensables. A woman could worry along without mascara, rouge, eyebrow pencil, eye shadows and nail polish but of course she wouldn't welcome the prospect. How the calcimine and paint are applied is of importance. It makes a woman look fair or foul, as anyone knows who regards the feminine maps one sees in the buyways.

Specialists who blaze the pulchritude route—cosmetic chemists and clever men and women who boss beauty shops—are constantly calling attention to the proper method of laying on the synthetic complexion. They are rouge vendors, but they deplore its abuse. They offer color cards, suggesting the proper shades for certain skins. Facial operators take pains to show the cash customer how to blend powder and the blush stuff so that it deceives the eye, makes the onlooker fancy that the lovely effect is home grown.

More and more they stress natural effects. Good luck to them. May their words fall on ears that are willing to listen. They will tell you that getting the powder on just right is the first step. They particularly deplore the pie crust effect that comes by putting on a heavy layer of foundation cosmetic, and from using powder lavishly. That is not according to good-looks Hoyle.

We're all pilgrims on the beauty road, and we should keep on observing and learning as we travel along. It won't do to believe that we know it all, not when facial styles are changing with the seasons. Look over the items in your beauty kit. Have you had them for ever so long? Has it not occurred to you to take a look-see at new offerings?

We have a question to ask. On what particular portion of the facescape does a woman slap the first wallop of powder when the pad is heavy with the fluff-stuff? You've guessed it. Right on the nose. It may be that she has a beaming, shining, but not resplendent beak and she would carry the dull finish. But it should not be too dull. If it is, the surface will look caked. No! The place to start is on the neck.

Work the pad in light taps up over the cheeks, across the forehead. Treat the impertinent nose last of all. Never grind in the powder to fill up the pores. Never give a downward stroke with the pad. Even the light downward touch is depleting to tissues, especially if they show the slightest sign of sag. The up and outward movement is the same for powder as it is for cream.

Don't overlook the ear lobes and the upper lip. Eyelids are best as is. A light film of mineral oil on the lids will make the eyes more luminous.

Advice to the Lovelorn

Jealous of Her Own Child. This Mother is Breaking up her Home

Every once in a while, one hears of a family in which the mother resents the affection between her husband and one of their daughters, or the father believes his wife cares more for a son than she does for him.

Here is an instant of the first type of situation, in which a 17-year-old girl writes of a mother so jealous that she apparently prefers to break up her home rather than take herself in hand

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"My father and I are very close to each other. In fact I guess you hardly ever hear so much about a real father and daughter team. We love to go dancing, swimming or out on parties to meet other friends, but my mother is entirely the other way. She favors my younger sister, and finds more companionship with her than either my father or I can give her. We ask her to go with us and have a good time, but she always refuses. Yet she accuses me of breaking up our home.

"Just recently she and my father filed for separation, and she has told the lawyer and everyone else that I am entirely to blame for it all. She is a very jealous woman, but I see no reason for her to be jealous of her own daughter.

"At the present time, I am staying with my grandmother because my mother has dared me to set foot in the house again. She says my father gets along much better with her when I am not there. My father's mother has asked me to come and live with her for a while and work away from home just to see if things do turn out better than they are now. She lives about 98 miles from my home. Should I go to live with her, get a job and let my mother and father work things out for themselves, or should I stay here and be blamed for breaking up a home?

"B. M. B."

Since you say that your mother doesn't want you in the house because she feels your father gets along better with her when you are not there, I gather that your parents are still together, even though they are considering a separation.

If this is the case, it seems to me that your idea of staying with your grandmother awhile to give your parents an opportunity to see if they can work out some adjustment of this unhappy situation by themselves, is a good one.

And while you are away from them, think over the situation very carefully and honestly yourself, trying to discover if some of the fault may not lie with your father and yourself. For instance, you say that when the two of you plan an outing you invite your mother to go with you but she always refuses. Do you think it could be possible that when the three of you are together you and your father unconsciously make your special congeniality so obvious that she feels shut out and as though she were an outsider?

Get your grandmother to discuss the problem with you, too, and see if perhaps she cannot suggest some ways in which you and your parents might find a solution for it.

Then, in a month or so, if your parents are still together, pay them a visit, admit frankly that you may have made mistakes yourself, and suggest that you all try once more to make a happy home, with each of you trying harder to understand each other. You might find your mother ready and eager to do just that. Won't you let me know how things turn out?

This Girl is Sure Nobody Likes Her

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I was quite popular last year, but gossip has ended it all.

It's not that I want to be popular, but I would like to have some friends. I did have dates at least once a week, but now the guys don't seem to care to ask me out, and if they do, they take me out once and that's all. I have never been a "neck happy girl," but I do let guys kiss me good-night once in a while.

My reputation is really in very bad condition, though I've never done anything to make it that way. The kids at school do not like me at all, and I've tried everything possible to make them change their opinions of me. I know it's not just my imagination, for my girl friend names at least one person every day that dislikes me. What can I do? Should I quit school, or will it make them talk about me all the more?

A Lonesome, Friendless Girl.

Oh, come now, I don't believe it's as bad as all that! I'm sure there's a way out of this "Slough of Despond" you seem to have fallen into. Let's think.

First, even supposing things are as bad as you say, you aren't quite friendless, are you, when you speak of your girl friend? There's one, at least! Of course she doesn't seem like a very ideal friend, if she tells you something unpleasant every day. But here's what I propose: When she tells you about anyone who dislikes you, you ask her why they dislike you. Then you write down the reasons she gives you, and when you have a number of them, send the list to me. We'll see if we can't figure this thing out and get life to looking a little brighter!

Fashion Flashes

OFF TO TOWN goes the gingham girl dressed in a city gingham frock of black plaided in brilliant yellow. A deep square neckline, gathered shoulders and a full skirt contribute to a crisp, youthful look.

It's a fad with many girls to paint their name all over white crepe blouses. Suppose it'll be phone numbers next!! But seriously, one's name scribbled in bright red or black on a light ground is pretty.

It's a big summer for dressing up o' nights. A charming dinner dress is in black taffeta made with a wide skirt and draped bodice. Appliqued lace medallions embroidered in green sequins are scattered all over the bodice and skirt.

It is difficult, sometimes, to decide whether one is entering a flower shop or a millinery shop. Both are flower-filled. A charming summer hat is of milan in black or toast made with a wavy brim bedecked with oversize crimson poppies, large white daisies and huge bright blue cornflowers. Open crown.

Save to Share It

A great number of Canadians are conscious of the important need to save food so that shipments to the starving peoples of Europe can be increased. Many of those who want to help are wondering how and where they can save food. Many are not aware that a little bit of food wasted here and there amounts to a considerable quantity in a short time. It must be remembered that every saving, no matter how insignificant, is of very real help because the less wasted, the less bought, and it is the food not bought that is made available for the hungry peoples.

There are many ways to cheat the garbage can but one of them is to make the clean plate the vogue of the day for the whole family. Buying foods such as flour and cereals in fairly large quantities is advocated as good housekeeping practice under ordinary circumstances but for the next few months extra amounts may be released for export if these foods are bought in smaller quantities and only when actually needed.

Bread presents a problem to many a housewife who finds that no matter how little is bought, part of the loaf gets too dry to be enjoyed as bread. A great number of delicious dishes may be prepared with really stale bread or dry bread crumbs. Usually eggs and cheese play an important role in recipes using stale bread but these foods also have to be saved. The use of more vegetables, cooked or raw, in season, will prove most helpful in extending these foods.

The following recipes are suggested by the home economists of the Consumer Section of the Dominion Department of Agriculture. The "Angel Bread Pudding" is an old favorite that stands being repeated.

ANGEL BREAD PUDDING

2 cups stale bread cubes
1-2 to 1-4 inch)
2 cups milk
1-2 cup honey
Dash of salt
2 eggs
1-2 cup chopped raisins

Place bread cubes in greased baking dish. Heat milk and honey together sufficiently to dissolve the honey. Beat the eggs slightly, add salt and stir in the warm milk; pour over bread cubes). Set the baking dish in a pan of hot water and bake in a moderate oven 350 degrees Fahrenheit, about 1 hour, or until a knife inserted in the centre of the pudding, comes out clean. Four to six servings.

FRICADILLIES

3 cups whole wheat stale bread crumbs
2 cups rolled oats
3 medium potatoes, cooked and mashed
2-3 cup chopped onion
1 tablespoon chopped pickle
1 teaspoon celery salt
1 teaspoon grated nutmeg
1 tablespoon steak sauce
1-2 teaspoon salt
1-8 teaspoon pepper
3 eggs

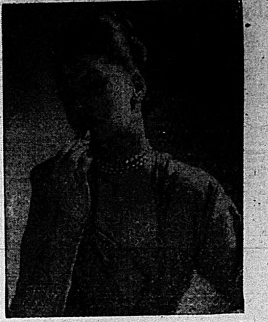
Soak bread in cold water for five minutes, press out until dry; mix with rolled oats, add vegetables and seasonings. Add beaten eggs, mix well, form into 12 flat patties. Saute in a little hot fat until brown. Turn and brown other side. Six servings. Serve with spicy chutney or catsup.

VEGETABLE SPECIAL

2 strips bacon, chopped
3-4 cup chopped onion
1 cup cooked carrots or peas
2 cups cooked green beans
1 cup canned tomatoes or juice
1-2 teaspoon salt
1-8 teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon flour
1-4 cup cold water

Saute bacon, remove from pan and cut into small pieces. Add onion to bacon fat and cook until tender, but not brown. Add vegetables and seasonings. Stir well, and heat thoroughly. Blend flour with cold water and add to vegetable mixture. Cook 8-10 minutes longer. Six servings.

Restraint The Key Word When Comes To Proper Make-up



Choose a healthy shade of lipstick which enhances your coloring

By HELEN FOLLETT

WHEN a woman's petals start to fall, she is inclined to give thanks for cosmetic chemists and all the slick arts that are practiced in the beauty shop. She realizes what permanent curls and make-up do for her when her head comes out of the shampoo bowl, when her complexion is naked and ashamed of itself.

Artifice is doing now what should always have been expected of it, providing an elegant imitation of natural loveliness. Time was when playing with rouge and lipstick was a new game, and girls went a bit too far. They didn't pause to figure that a little coloring gives freshness to the face, but splashy batik makes one look older, weary, sometimes a bit hard.

Exercise Restraint

One must exercise restraint when using the precious items of the make-up box. This may irritate one, but, even so, it can be done. Those extra swipes with the rouge pad may be just too, too much.

Beauty props give support to the spirit. They make life a bit more romantic and what with babies to tend, bills appearing on the first of the month, the daddy putting on his customary grouches, it is fun to sit before the dressing table adding modern improvements to the face that you have carried throughout the years.

Healthy Coloring

The lipstick should be of the coloring that is on the lips of a healthy child whose blood streams are travelling. You'll find adorable shades now on cosmetic counters.

At this season, or soon now, you may need a shade of powder with more of a golden cast. We assume that, being sensible, you are a sun worshipper. Sunlight puts pep in the system, ginger in the heels.

When applying powder it is easier to add than substract. Start at the collar bones, fluff upward. Put the fragrant calcimine on your nose last. The usual practice is to fill the pad full of powder, slap it on the beak.

Don't grind it in. If you use rouge, powder first, then lay on the factory blush and powder again. Make a cosmetic sandwich.

The DOW AWARD PRESENTED TO
Sgt. Gerry Emond

THE DOW AWARD is a citation for outstanding heroism and includes, as a tangible expression of appreciation, a $100 Victory Bond. Winners are selected by The Dow Award Committee, a group of editors of leading Montreal daily newspapers.

The icy, flood waters of the Assiniboine swirled violently . . . overturning the little kayak and hurling the 12-year old Winnipeg boy into the current. After drifting more than a mile downstream, he lost his hold on the flimsy craft. Exhausted and numb with cold, he grasped a branch of a submerged tree and hung on desperately.

Sgt. Gerry Emond, watching from the shore, quickly seized his chance. Plunging into the swollen river, he swam out and held the boy afloat until a rope was thrown to them by police. He then tied the rope to the lad's shoulders and supported him as he was pulled ashore.

For his daring and unselfish act, we are proud to present The Dow Award to Sgt. Gerry Emond.

Pacific Coast Papers Affected By Mill Closing

Powell River, B.C., May 31 (CP)—Production at the largest paper producer in the British Empire, the Powell River Company, stopped at 2 a.m. Thursday.

The mill, which supplies newsprint for newspapers all over the world, closed this morning as a result of the closing of the Powell River sawmill Wednesday when Millpond workers stopped moving logs to the sawmill.

Whether production will resume during the strike of 35,000 members of the International Woodworkers of America, will depend on the decision of 1,000 American Federation of Labor Papermill Workers at mass meeting scheduled for later today.

An emergency meeting of Millpond workers with A. E. Hansen and Murray Mount, executives of the A.F.L. Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers, ended shortly before 1 a.m.

During the meeting, a statement was issued that paper production would end when pulp supplies ran out at six a.m. Later, however, the company decided to close the mill at 2 a.m. to conserve a small stock of pulp.

Membership meetings this morning are expected to discuss whether Millpond workers will continue to handle logs declared "hot" by the I.W.A. and "fair" by the two A.F.L. Paper Mill Workers Unions and the Powell River Company.

A lasting shutdown will cut off paper supplies to all B.C. newspapers and more than 100 other newspapers on the Pacific Coast.

London, May 31 (Reuters) — Britain's post office is introducing "mothproof" telephone cables in an effort to win the battle against destructive moth grubs among cables in telephone exchanges. Braiding of new cables is impregnated with anti-moth chemicals.

Lost London Road, Spittal Street, Is Twice Found

London, Ont., May 31 (CP) — London's lost thoroughfare, Spittal Street, was located today — in the midst of a patch of grass, shrub and weeds, on the south side of Oxford Street East.

An early morning expedition of Alderman George Gardner and Father J. A. Feeney, Secretary of the Separate School Board, pushed through to Spittal and found it a street in name only.

Once found, Spittal is not easy to forget. There is something distinctive about it. In fact as streets go, Spittal is probably the least travelled in the city. Grass never grows on a busy street—and Spittal is a pasture.

A few minutes after Ald. Gardner and Father Feeney left the scene, the street was again discovered this time by a couple of newspapermen who had been ordered by an insistent city editor to find Spittal, or else. Under the circumstances they found it in one try.

Until a week ago no one knew that Spittal Street was lost and no one cared. It was surveyed years ago and forgotten, except by the men who drafted city maps.

SPEED TRIALS MADE

London, May 31 —(Reuters)— A plane which may exceed the speed of sound began flight trials in Britain some weeks ago, it was made known here. The plane, called the "Swallow," the world's first jet-propelled flying wing. Its speed is officially estimated at more than 675 miles an hour—compared with the present world record, held by Britain, of 606 miles an hour.

FOX-FIGHT IN FIELD

Flesherton, May 31 — (CP) — Continuous hooting of their car horn by two local residents failed to break up a fox-fight in a field near here. Only when the men left the car and started into the field, did the foxes call off the fight, presumably to be resumed later.

HERE COMES QUAKER WITH A BANG! BANG!
GREGORY PECK starring in DUEL IN THE SUN Selznick International's Technicolour Production
SAYS—
"WHEAT SHOT FROM GUNS MAKES A BRIGHT BREAKFAST"

GREGORY: Well, Mr. Quaker they can quote me as saying your wheat shot from guns deserves all its fame.

QUAKER MAN: Thank you, Gregory. It's true Quaker Puffed Wheat "Sparkies" is popular with more people today than ever before. You see, the way we explode choice, sun-ripened grains of wheat from our giant guns makes a truly delicious cereal. BANG! BANG!—out come big glorified grains 8 times normal size, so crisp and tender everyone loves them.

QUAKER MAN: Yes, Quaker Puffed Wheat "Sparkies" with some milk and fruit, as you say, makes a hearty breakfast. So easily digested, too, and gives quick food energy. No other breakfast of whole wheat nourishment is nearly so delicious!

HUNTER SEEKS HIS PREY, BUT NEVER EATS IT HIMSELF

Buckskin, six-pound three-year-old Persian cat belonging to Mrs. G. F. Appleton, of Miles City, Mont., is the hunter for a family of two collies and another 11-pound Persian cat. Here, Buckskin is about to snare a snake. The cat catches snakes, birds and muskrats and carries them up a ladder, over the back fence and into a yard where the other cat andbdogs kill and eat them. Buckskin returns tired from his daily hunt and never eats his prey. Mrs. Appleton feeds him fresh liver and clams. Birds and muskrats are freed by Mrs. Appleton if she sees them before the dogs do.

Burrs

Burr's — Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bird (nee Dorothy McCormack) were honored by the communities of Bowerman's and Burr's at a miscellaneous shower at Allisonville hall on Friday evening. Seated on decorated chairs behind a table attractively trimmed in pink and white the bride and groom were read an address by Mr. Garland Wilson and assisted in unwrapping the many and varied gifts by Miss Dorothy Morris and Mr. Clifford Morris. Both voiced their thanks and appreciation for the tangible evidence of good wishes tendered them. Refreshments, music and dancing added to the pleasure of the evening.

Several members of Burr's W.A. attended the convention at Albury United Church, Thursday.

PICTON

Young People's Rally Of Deaneries Held

Picton, May 30—More than one hundred delegates attended the Anglican Young People's rally here yesterday, representing the Deaneries of Hastings and Prince Edward.

Following a get-to-gether, service was held in the church of St. Mary Magdalene. In the parish hall there were discussions on topics relating to the A.Y.P.A. Among those taking part were Rev. W. L. Robinson, Tweed; Charles Staples of Belleville; Rev. W. G. H. Swayne, Picton and Lloyd Gladwell, Belleville. Evening prayer in the church preceded the banquet.

C. Staples presided as chairman. Guest speaker was Rt. Rev. John Lyons, D.D., Lord Bishop of the Diocese of Ontario, who stressed the responsibility of the church and its young people. E. Waterhouse, Belleville, also spoke on the church.

Discussing the A.Y.P.A. were Rev. F. A. Smith, Belleville, and David Dennison, Picton. "The Local Council" was discussed by Ernest Hoppin of Kingston, President of the Local Council of Frontenac, Lennox and Addington, and by Graham Mouck of Tweed. A panel discussion based on A.Y.P.A. work, church service, the Bible and prayer, was followed by a quiz. Games and dancing concluded the session.

Conference to Ask Delay in Proclaiming Liquor Licence Act

Napanee, Ont., May 31 —(CP) —The Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church Thursday recommended "wide distribution" of two briefs prepared by a special United Church committee on activities of the Roman Catholic Church.

A report to the conference spoke of the committee's "startling revelations showing that our whole structure as a nation — political, economic and spiritual —is being destroyed."

One of the briefs, prepared for the royal commission on education, enumerated "the subtle way by which one concession after another has been secured. All of them tending to weaken our public school system and our Protestant religion," the conference report said.

The conference requested the Ontario government to delay the proclamation and application of the Liquor License Act until the electors were given an opportunity by referendum to declare their wishes as to the continuance or introduction of forms of liquor sales which bring personal gain to the vendors.

Attorney-General Leslie Blackwell was commended "for his assistance in full enforcement of the federal anti-gambling laws." The "firm stand" taken by the National Hockey League against players who wagered on games was praised.

The conference drew attention to the general council's ban on the raising of funds by gambling practises.

Noting the "incalculable influence" of moving pictures on the public, the conference saw hope of reform in the statements of O. J. Silverthorn, chairman of the Motion Pictures Censorship Commission, on classification of films as suitable for children.

The following ministerial and lay commissioners to the general council were elected: Belleville—Rev. A. Poulter, Madoc, and C. N. Burr, Belleville: Cobourg — Rev. Alfred Bishop, Castleton, and J. G. Findlay, Jr., Colborne; Kingston — Rev. W. P. Wornell, Athens, and Thomas McNish, Lynn; Lindsay — Rev. Thomas Wallace, Greenbank, and H. H. Johnston, Lindsay; Oshawa — Rev. George Telford, Oshawa, A. L. Pascoe, Hampton, and Rev. J. E. Glover, Hastings; Peterborough — E. L. Sackville, Peterborough; Renfrew — Rev. D. H. Woodhouse, Arnprior, and N. E. Zimmerman, Renfrew.

Hirohito Calls On MacArthur At Embassy

By RUSSELL BRINES

Tokyo, May 31 — (AP) — Emperor Hirohito, a quiet little man in a business suit, today made his secretly-arranged second call on Gen. MacArthur at the United States Embassy. The two were said to have talked of food, of reconstruction, and of the vast changes in Japan since Hirohito called on Gen. MacArthur for the first time last Sept. 27.

Hidemasa Terasaki, of the Imperial Household Ministry, acted as interpreter and was the only other person in the room. He told newspapermen that a variety of topics had been discussed. Other sources in the Household Ministry divulged the general subjects covered in the 1½-hour meeting which came just three days ahead of the scheduled opening of international war-crimes trials in Tokyo.

Hirohito was accompanied to the Embassy by Imperial Household Minister Yoshitami Matsudaido. There were no guards, and the two-car cavalcade left the palace so quietly that even Premier Shigeru Yoshida's office said it was unaware of such a call.

The Emperor's power has waned so perceptibly since his September visit that today's meeting will cause little of the repressed indignation provoked by his first call. Many Japanese at that time were shocked that one so high as their Emperor would condescend to leave his palace for such a purpose.

There have been changes since then. Among other alterations in the political backdrop is the recent swift response of the Japanese people to the words of Gen. MacArthur and their deafness to a radio appeal by Hirohito.

A statement by Gen. MacArthur halted a series of food and political demonstrations before the palace gates and a demand that the Imperial family's rice stocks be distributed to the people.

Three R. C. A. F. Squadrons Formed In Montreal Area

Ottawa, May 31 (CP)—Formation of three R.C.A.F. squadrons, including one French-speaking unit, bearing the names of famous Canadian overseas squadrons and all located in the Montreal area, was announced today by Air Minister Gibson.

One of the squadrons, No. 426 (Thunderbird) Transport Squadron, will be a regular R.C.A.F. squadron, located at Dorval. It will be equipped with the Canadian-built version of the Douglas C54, a four-engine heavy transport aircraft which will be known as the Dominion.

The other two—both auxiliary units—will be No. 438 (Wildcat) Fighter Bomber Squadron, and No. 401 (Ram) Fighter Squadron, both located at Montreal. No. 438, the French-Speaking Unit, will be manned as far as possible by French-speaking personnel. It will be equipped with Mosquito aircraft and use Harvards for training.

No. 401 Squadron is to be equipped with a new jet-propelled single seat fighter, first of its type to be used in Canada.

"Outfitting the Ram Squadron with these aircraft is in accordance with the R.C.A.F.'s policy of equipping all operational units—both regular and auxiliary —with the most effective and most modern types of aircraft available," the announcement said.

R.C.A.F. auxiliary personnel will man the latter two squadrons, receiving regular rates of pay for the training hours they put in. Such squadrons are aimed at maintaining a small efficient force capable of rapid expansion in wartime.

Actual staff of regular R.C.A.F. personnel is set at 51 for No. 401 Squadron and 70 for No. 438.

The three squadrons all carry the names and traditions of units disbanded within the last 18 months, after winning operational fame overseas.

BREAD WILL BE SHORT

Peterborough, May 31 —(CP) —Alderman James Dutton, manager of a bakery company here, said Thursday his firm would be short 100 bags of flour a week in June and bakeries had to "borrow and beg to get by."

"We all know the cause of it, the duty of supplying millions of people in Europe with food this year," he said.

20-game Winners of Last Year Find Going Tough this Season; Newhouser, Ferris Exceptions

Pace-Setting Red Sox Continue to Roll by Winning Twin Bill

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

With the exception of Hurricane Hal Newhouser and Dave (Boo) Ferris, last year's select six of the big league hurling brigade—the 20-game winners—are finding it difficult to regain their winning stride this year.

Four of the big six—Chicago Cubs' Hank Wyse and Hank Borowy, St. Louis Cardinals' Charles Barrett and Washington's Roger Wolff—strode to the hill in yesterday's Memorial doubleheaders, but only Wyse walked off with a victory. None of the other three went the route.

Two other big winners of 1945, Cleveland's Steve Gromek (19-9) and the Cardinals Ken Burkhart (18-8) also continued to find the going rough. Gromek dropped his fourth decision in seven starts while Burkhart failed to improve on his 2-1 record when he was shelled from the mound.

Borowy attempted to give the Bruins a clean sweep of the two games which would have moved the Cubs past the Reds into third place in the National League. For eight innings it appeared he would be successful as the Cubs led 6-1, but the roof fell in in the ninth when the Reds banged across six runs to eke out a 6-7 triumph and an even split.

Cardinals Divide

Despite the poor pitching of Barrett and Burkhart, the Cardinals managed to divide their doubleheader with Pittsburgh Pirates, winning the second encounter 12-11 after the Bucs had walked off with the opener 9-3.

The pace-setting Boston Red Sox continued to roll up one of the best early season records in American League history when they captured both ends of a twin bill from Washington Senators 6-5 and 7-2, for their 32nd triumph in 41 games.

New York blasted a double victory over the tail-end Philadelphia Athletics 6-1 and 6-3, to remain 6 1-2 games behind the Red Sox.

Cleveland and Chicago White Sox exchanged shutouts as Bobby Feller snapped a White Sox winning streak at four with a 3-0 job in the opener. Bill Dietrich and Ralph Hammer collaborated to pitch the Sox to a 4-0 nightcap decision.

Brooklyn Dodgers held onto their two-game National League lead over the Cards when they halved their twin bill with Boston Braves. After Brooklyn blanked them 5-0 in the opener, the Braves outslugged Dodgers 10-8 in the finale.

Despite three home runs by Hank Greenberg, the Tigers had to be satisfied with a split with St. Louis Browns.

After Dizzy Trout had beaten the Browns 7-1, in the opener, the Browns won the second 2-1.

Philadelphia Phillies won their first doubleheader of the season when they upset New York Giants 8-5 and 3-1.

FRANK SELKE LEAVES GARDENS

Toronto, May 31 — (CP) — Frank Selke, for 20 years associated with Maple Leaf Gardens, announced last night he has resigned as publicity director of the Gardens, severing all connection with the Toronto Maple Leafs of the N.H.L.

In a brief announcement, made in the office of Conn Smythe, managing director of the Gardens, Selke disclosed he came to a decision to resign, after considering such a move for more than two weeks.

"I have resigned, but I would like to say that I am leaving here on the best of terms with everybody and want to say thanks to all my associates here at the Gardens for their loyalty and assistance," he said.

Possibility that Selke would resign came to the fore several weeks ago, when he was quoted as saying he contemplated it. He was prevailed upon at that time by the Gardens directorate to take a holiday and reconsider the matter.

Selke's plans for the future are indefinite, but he was assured by Smythe a warm welcome awaited him at the Gardens should he change his mind. It was thought probable he would also retire from the racing game, in which he has been interested for some time.

MANY DEMANDS FOR TICKETS BEING RECEIVED

Expect Receipts for Louis-Conn Fight Will Exceed $3,000,000

By JOHN D. HAMILTON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, May 31 — (CP) — While Joe Louis and Billy Conn hammer sparring partners at New Jersey training camps in preparation for their world's heavyweight boxing championship bout June 19 at Yankee Stadium, hundreds of fight fanciers are flooding Mike Jacobs' office with requests, demands and pleas for tickets.

"It may not go $4,000,000," Mike said recently. "But then it probably will go well over $3,000,000."

Even at the most conservative estimate the 15-round battle will be the biggest financial event in sports history. And it marks a peak in the career of Michael Strauss Jacobs, the thin, gloomy ticket speculator who inherited Tex Rickard's fistic kingdom and turned it into an empire.

Rickard, operating during the 20s, was the father of the $1,000,000 gate. His top fight was the second Jack Dempsey-Gene Tunney fight in Chicago in 1927, which grossed $2,658,660. Tunney, for a single night's work, drew the staggering sum of $990,445 — and was able to retire from the ring undefeated and wealthy. But the Conn-Louis fight will go far beyond those figures.

Rickard died in 1929 and for a number of years no one came along with his flair for promotion. The late James Roy Johnson was match-maker in Madison Square Garden for awhile but he was faced by the depression and by a dearth of championship quality fighters.

Jacobs came along in 1936 with a young, hard-hitting heavyweight who was knocking down all opposition with the greatest of ease. With that fighter alone he took away the Garden matchmaking concession from Johnson and launched his fabulous promoting career.

He still has the fighter who pulled him to the top. He is Joe Louis — the man who is making possible the biggest individual sports event in the modern era.

And it is the hard fists of the Lexington, Ala., Negro which are pulling in $100 bills for tickets to the June 19 extravaganza.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

A FINE GESTURE

• • •

One of the finest examples of sportsmanship came to light the other day in Western Ontario following the announcement of the winners of the championships of the Western Ontario Secondary Schools Association track and field meet. As a result the rightful champion has been awarded his crown, but the fine young man, who wore the symbol for a few hours is receiving the well-deserved plaudits of his chums for an outstanding spirit of fair play.

• • •

In a strange mix-up involving twins, a rainy day and close competition, Don Killinger, of London Central Collegiate has been awarded the championship shield first presented to Carl Deneau, of Kennedy Collegiate, Windsor.

• • •

Carl Deneau and his twin brother, Paul, were entered in the intermediate section of the Wossa meet. Carl took a first in the 880 and a second in the high jump—worth eight points. His twin, Paul, picked up three points for placing second in the 120 hurdles.

• • •

The boys are hard to tell apart on a dry day, so in the rain and mud of a meet day, they were just one person to the Wossa scorers and besides that "P." Deneau and "C." Deneau sound much alike. The result was that Paul's points went to Carl's total and he was given a total of 11.

• • •

Picking up a newspaper on his way home on the bus, Carl was surprised to see he had won the intermediate crown by 11 points. He knew he only got eight, so surmised the scorers had handed over his brother's total to him.

• • •

He could have kept quiet and held the shield. Instead he elected to tell his coach of the mixup and suggest Wossa Secretary Charlie Box be informed, and Don Killinger, who got 10 points, be awarded the shield. Coach Bus Liddell of Kennedy did the necessary honors, so today Wossa have a new intermediate track and field champ.

• • •

Tonight's main bout between Wladyslaw Talun and Billy Watson may reach epic proportions before a final winner is declared. The "Whipper" is most anxious to be the first man to flatten the Polish Giant and he plans a special type of attack technique to over-come the giant's enormous strength and weight. Talun, with his three hundred and sixteen pounds, is the most formidable opponent the Whip has ever encountered and the problem of beating him is a mighty hard one to solve. In their last match Watson tore into the big fellow like a bull terrier into a bull and got only about that far too. This time Billy plans to use his devastating drop kicks to whittle "Vody" down to somewhere near his own size.

• • •

Frank Sedore's "Flashes" are well-named. The loquacious maestro of the Army and Navy Veterans softball squad took delivery of the teams new 1946 uniforms yesterday, and "flashes" is a mild word for it. The boys will trot out on the Mountain View diamond next Monday night looking like fugitives from a carnival sideshow. They will be resplendent in brilliant yellow and deep maroon, with maroon caps and yellow and maroon socks, mostly yellow.

• • •

The shirts are maroon with yellow sleeves and the bloomers are also maroon with wide yellow pipings. If they get three men on base on the new Fair Grounds diamond and some slugger socks a home run, neat, gaudy "Flashes" runners will give the impression that the fair buildings back of centre field are on fire. Oh, yes, besides the flamboyant raiment, the lads will wear titular flashes on their shoulders in approved army uniform style while the crest of the Army and Navy Veterans in Canada will be sported on the broad backs of the players.

• • •

RUMOR DEPARTMENT

Don't be surprised if you see Walt Gerow Jr. doing his stuff on first base for Stewart Warner Alemite, next Monday gleaming when the planters take on Doc Empson's Latta gang. The big fella has returned home from Batawa, so our underground reports, and has become associated with "Lefty" Whitman's gang. If so, the planters will have a sturdy reinforcement, for the starry left winger of last winter's Redmen is nobody's fool around the initial sack, or wielding the hickory at the plate.

• • •

"Any player who signed a contract with a professional baseball club and who receives his unconditional release from said professional club prior to July 15, shall become eligible to play in the O.B.A. immediately he returns to his home city, town, or to the clubs from which he advanced to professional company. This rule to apply for 1946 only.".

You may not be able to drive a golf-ball; you may not be in condition to sock a baseball or boot a football; you may get the high-hay ffrom snooty friends while applying a coat of paint to the garage, and be reminded by your pal in the galloping dominoes game that "Baby needs shoes." Keep all these things in mind so that by the time the National Clothing Drive rolls around you'll have a neat packet of socks, boots, hats, coats, and shoes to donate to the war-victims of Europe who will be sadly in need when winter comes.

Toronto, May 31 — (CP)—Teddy Morris, coach of the Dominion football champion Argonauts, is rending the air with shouts of anguish.

His former Argo associate—sad Lewis Edward Hayman — is waving cashable Montreal cheques before the dazzled eyes of five key members of the Toronto Big Four team and Ted isn't happy about it. Particularly as the five players are among the nation's best — Joe Krol, Royal Copeland, Les Ascott, Steve Levantis and Jack Wedley.

"Why doesn't Hayman stay in his own backyard with his what-do-you-call-them Allouettes or whatever it is, instead of trying to rob us?" Ted asked in an interview with Hal (Toronto Globe and Mail) Walker.

The Argos are good to their players, says Ted. They even miraculously found houses in Toronto for Krol and Ascott. "We even had a baby sitter go to Joe's house and look after Joe, Jr."

Morris had some suggestions for Hayman. He could raid all teams for one or two players; he could import five United States players and build around them with Montreal high school talent.

Lacking direct comment from Hayman himself, we suggest he'd get the best of the bargain if he traded a dozen homebrews for five Argos he's after.

He's trying Jack (London Free Press) Park reports that Abe Bonder of the Forest City hopes to be a baseball pitcher even though he has only one leg. Abe, in his 'eeens, was one of London's topnotch kid pitchers a year ago but had his left leg amputated above the knee because of an infection. He hasn't got an artificial limb yet, but in the meantime he's working out his pitching arm (he's a right hander) regularly and Jack reports he has plenty of zip on his fast ball.

What's Doing in Sport

(By The Canadian Press)

Montreal's Brendan Macken and Don MacDiarmid of Ottawa established themselves as outstanding contenders for the two singles spots of Canada's Davis Cup team when they remained undefeated after three days of an elimination tournament of candidates for the squad. The Canadian team meets Mexico in a first round series beginning June 13.

Britain's first post-war challenge to United States professional golfers fizzled out sadly yesterday as British Open champion Dick Burton went down to a resounding seven and six defeat at the hands of Byron Nelson in a match that barely came up to international calibre.

Irish champion Jimmie Bruen established himself as favorite in the British Amateur Golf Tournament yesterday by defeating Chales Stowe of Wolverhampton, at the 19th hole. California-born Bob Sweeny was another of the eight quarter-finalists.

Warren Wright's Armed maintained his position as king of the current United States crop of handicap horses yesterday by waltzing to an easy three-length victory in the Suburban Handicap at Belmont Park, over one of the classiest fields put together in years. Among the also rans were such doughty campaigners as Reply Paid, Stymie, First Fiddle and Fighting Step.

Stan Musial, hard-hitting St. Louis outfielder, wouldn't say yes and wouldn't say no to an offer from the Pasquel brothers of a contract to play ball in their Mexican baseball league. Musial told reporters last night he didn't think he'd go south but that he hadn't given the Pasquels a definite answer.

Hustling Henri Rochon of Montreal made it three straight in current try-outs for Canada's Davis Cup team at Montreal's Monkland Tennis Club courts yesterday by whipping Jimmy Skelton of Vancouver in straight sets 8-6, 6-2, 6-0.

An effort has been made by cricket's governing body, the Marylebone Cricket Club, to "liven the game up," and a streamlined brand has come to Britain this summer. Percentages have been abandoned in the country cricket championship and points substituted to make the 17 competing counties fight for a victory instead of playing for a draw.

A no-run, no-hit game — the pitcher's dream — was pitched by right-hander Junior Tobias last night as Rodney defeated Newbury by a score of 30-0, in a tri-county senior baseball game. Tobias struck out 11 men.

Windfields, owned by E. P. Taylor of Toronto, won the class D., one-mile seventh event at Belmont Park yesterday by two full lengths over Forfar, the favorite.

Drew Abbey, owned by P. M. Coombs, of York, Pa., emerged as the fastest trotter in the one-mile Originator Purse which featured the Grand Circuit program at Westbury, N.Y., last night. Driven by Jimmy Jordan, the aged bay trotted the distance in 2:10½ to take top honors in the second division of three section race.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

LESSON NO. 1000
By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

An opening lead is not something done in desperation, fear, and trembling. You select your lead because you have confidence in it being the best act for your side under the circumstances.

If partner has not bid a suit, you select your (blind) lead by a standard rule. It is a rule that has been determined as best. Also because that lead promises best chances of co-operative defence.

A blind lead suit is determined by the order of choice in tops, longies, shorts. From tops, lead the head of the sequence. From a longie, lead fourth best. From shorts lead the highest.

When partner has bid a suit, make a (directed) lead in his suit. Lead the same card in it as with a blind lead. With a sequence, lead top; from a long suit without a sequence, lead fourth best.

To be worthy of you in a game, a rule must be sound, practical, logical. Therefore, you should know why it is a good rule to lead fourth best instead of highest in partner's suit.

Before south became declarer at five diamonds, your partner in the east bid spades. From your west hand cames a directed spade lead with the spades in four hands as shown here:

NORTH
♠6 3

WEST ♠K 8 5 2
EAST ♠A J 10 4

SOUTH
♠Q 9 3

Lead your deuce of spades; fourth best. Partner knows you have four spades. By looking at dummy and his own spades, he knows how many spades are held by declarer in the south.

He knows there are three spades in the south hand. Seeing no king or queen in dummy, he knows south has one or the other. If it is the queen, he is sure he can box it by going with his ace.

His return lead in spades will trap the queen between him and your king. If you had led the king, the queen in south would have been good on the third round of that suit.

Hollywood Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, May 31 — (AP) — Freed from her Warner Brothers contract, Joan Leslie looked as happy as a Devil's Island escapee.

"Are working conditions that bad in Burbank?" I asked.

"No," she said, "it's just that I haven't been able to work for four months because of waiting for the court decision. Now I'm free!"

That is, unless the Warners' lawyers appeal and win her back again.

Joan's main beef with the studio was over the choice of roles.

"I was always preparing to play the life of Marilyn Miller," she said. "But they'd say: 'You do these pictures first and then we will make the life of Marilyn Miller.'"

The result was that she played in all kinds of pictures, good and bad, and never quite got around to the Miller biography.

"I'd play a 60-year-old woman and then they would cast me as a girl of 18," she said. "They couldn't realize I had grown up."

After six years and 19 pictures, Joan did grow up. In fact, she became 21 and went to see a lawyer.

Joan now is lining up a group of independent pictures.

To Lou Lilley, most movie stars are beasts.

Lilley writes and directs the "Speaking of Animals" shorts at Paramount and he much prefers working with four-legged actors rather than the other variety.

"Take Josephine, for instance," he said. "She's been a star for 30 years, but she'll do anything you ask without a display of temperament. Josephine's just a ring-tail monkey, but she makes more money per hour than most humans."

Only a few animals are uncooperative, said Lou, the worst being the tomcat. Most temperamental is the wart-hog. Lou was trying to photograph one at the San Diego Zoo when it chased him and damaged his camera. He never carries a gun, except when working with wild buffalo and such.

NEXT AT THE BELLE — Joan Carroll as a discouraged pupil, returns her graduation dress to Ingrid Bergman and Bing Crosby in Leo McCarey's heart-warming drama, "The Bells of St. Mary's", due to arrive this weekend at the Belle.

AT THE McCARTHY — Basil Rathbone (R) appears as Sherlock Holmes and Nigel Bruce as Dr. Watson in Universal's intriguing new detective adventure "Terror By Night," adapted from a story by the famous Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, now at the McCarthy Theatre, with "Girl on the Spot," featuring Lois Collier and Jess Barker.

ROYALS LEADING INT. LEAGUE BY FOUR GAMES

Clay Hopper Proving an Apt Replacement for Betzel as Manager

(By The Associated Press)

Montreal fandom raised a clamor during the off-season when popular Bruno Betzel was released as manager of the 1945 pennant-winning International League Royals but Clay Hopper is proving an apt replacement.

Hopper, unknown by most fans, had successfully managed the St. Louis Cardinal farm system for a number of years and when Branch Rickey left St. Louis to become president-general manager of Brooklyn Dodgers in 1942 he took Hopper with him.

The Southerner led Mobile Bears to third place in the Southern Association and won the play-offs last year. Currently his Royals are ripping along at .711 clip and lead the circuit by four games.

Montreal took both ends of a doubleheader from Rochester Red Wings yesterday 9-2 and 6-4 while the runner-up Syracuse Chiefs divided a pair with Baltimore Orioles.

The Royals, led by Earl Naylor, who batted in four runs, took an early 5-0 lead in the opener to allow Glenn Moulder to coast to victory.

Trailing 2-1 at the end of four innings in the nightcap, the Royals drove two runs across the plate in the fifth and three in the seventh to take a commanding lead.

Syracuse overcame a four-run Baltimore lead to win the opener 9-8 but the Chiefs were nosed out 4-3 in eight innings in the second contest.

Buffalo Bisons ended a nine-game losing streak in decisive fashion by sweeping a twin bill from Toronto Maple Leafs 6-5 and 8-0.

Buffalo was forced to go 12 innings before winning the initial battle. The Herd gave Rufe Gentry smooth sailing in the second game as Johnny Radulovich smashed two homers and Joe Erautt and Johnny McHale one apiece. Gentry limited the Leafs to two hits in racking up his first victory of the campaign.

Newark Bears hammered the last-place Jersey City Giants 9-8 and 6-1.

JOHNNY GRECO FIGHTS TO REGAIN FAN ADULATION

Meets Beau Jack in 10-Round Welterweight Bout at the Garden

By JOHN D. HAMILTON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, May 31 — (CP) — Faced with the job of redeeming his popularity with New York's boxing fans, Montreal's Johnny Greco tonight meets Beau Jack in a 10-round welterweight battle at Madison Square Garden.

Greco last met Jack, two-time lightweight champion, Feb. 8 at the Garden. The fight ended in a draw and for five rounds was one of the better embroglios of the season. However, both fighters lacked stamina to go the full 10 rounds at top speed and their clinch-and-hold tactics in the latter half of the bout cut sharply into the adulation that New York fans previously had lavished on both fighters.

Despite Greco's superior punching power, Jack rules as a slight favorite with the odds-makers laying six-to-five that the Georgia Negro will win. Neither man has appeared in a ring since their last meeting.

Greco arrived in New York this week and looked sharp in training, with his timing on his savage hooks shaking up sparring partners. His handlers reported that he was in excellent shape and had been training hard. He will weigh about 143½ for tonight's battle.

Gives Three Pounds

Jack, renowned for his buzz-saw tactics a couple of years ago when he was meeting the best of the light-weight crop, is in between the light and welterweight classes and will give away about three pounds.

Still top drawing cards at the Garden, both fighters are aiming at a shot at the welterweight crown, now held by Marty Servo, who won it last winter from Freddie (Red) Cochrane.

Tonight's bout will not bring Greco or Jack much nearer the title, however, as the New York Athletic Commission has ruled that Servo must first meet Ray Robinson, leading contender for several years who has failed to get a title match because of his dangerous punching power.

ALL MINISTERS COMPLY

London, May 31 —(CP)— A Reuters dispatch from Teheran Thursday reported that Iranian Premier Ahmed Quavam has asked for the resignations of all his ministers because Premier Jafar Pishevari of the self-proclaimed Azerbaijan autonomous government has refused to continue negotiations with the present regime.

All the ministers complied, the dispatch said.

Commissioners To General Council Named

Napanee, May 31 (CP) — The Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church of Canada yesterday urged the church to call upon its ministers to give widespread instruction in the fundamental differences between the Protestant and Roman Catholic faiths.

A brief on Protestant-Catholic relations had been rejected at the morning session.

The conference advocated this instruction be given in Sunday Schools, sermons and other teaching ministries, and requested the general council of the United Church to provide a manual of instructions for Roman Catholics who embrace the protestant faith.

Elected commissioners to the General Council were: Rev. J. E. Beckel, Elgin; R. F. Downey, Peterborough; Rev. H. B. Neal, Renfrew; Don Williams, Belleville; Rev. C. D. McLelland, Napanee; Elmer Davis, Kingston.

CHAPTER 13

"If you see a plane, it will be one from our Coast Guard station down the shore."

"That's good," he said.

"What was it like, Leslie, before you left for England?"

"The planes came directly from the sky over our heads. Would they drop them on us now? I used to think. No.... The roar would become fainter. So we still sat down to dinner every night. Mother used to tell me to mind my table manners and forget what was going on over our heads. We wouldn't have finished tea when the sirens blew and down we'd all troop to the air raid shelter, carrying mattresses and pillows. We hadn't a whole night's sleep in three weeks."

Audrey rose to end the conversation; he stood at attention near her chair, withdrew it for her—followed her out on the terrace.

"Where do you want the new slide for the children put, Mrs. Blake?" he asked brightly.

"My dear, you figure it out. I'm determined to leave everything to you, Leslie. You're the eldest and should make the decision for your friends."

He walked sedately toward the group of younger children. He loved to arrange things for them, and Audrey knew it. She knew that, but little else about him, except that he was a musing sort of boy, fine in health, and considered—the odd boy—of his family.

He had grown like an aspen. At his christening he had been committed for life to "Leslie." It had been his mother's maiden name; she had strong affection for it, and it was her chance to name the baby. She had explained that, one day, when the dreamy boy was nine, he had, after a long fit of brooding, demanded some reason for his name being Leslie. He had requested then to be allowed to exchange his name for Arthur, the King, or Robin, the archer of Sherwood, his heroes.

Now he never spoke of that. Her name was all he had left of her.

Four boys in soldier jackets stood grouped together on the garden path. They shouldered wooden guns, and carried a wooden board.

"He's the Heinkel," Leslie called to Audrey, "They're playing Jerry Air-raid and ground barrage."

"Why don't you play with them?"

"I'm much too old. If I play war, I want a real gun, one of those new machine guns you're shipping us, or a pom-pom."

Audrey walked to him, looked into his deep blue eyes.

"We all want what's real nowadays," she said.

"Petty, your maid, told me that Mr. Blake is in London."

"Yes, he is."

"I hope to meet him some day," he said. "The man you married must be a splendid fellow."

"Perhaps."

The words of Gordon's last note sprang before her mind's eye, "Good-bye, until your heart says you love only Gordon."

"I mean yes," she answered, turning away. Her listless fingers dropped the sweater she had been knitting for the regular bundles for Britain.

They watched the others. Leslie shifted his back against her chair, knocked back his cap, and smiled up at her. "That's London over there. Pretty draughty looking, isn't it?"

His smile was so easy, so friendly, that Audrey took his hand and pressed it. What liquid eyes he had, so large, so understanding! And she looked at the other children, further away; they were smiling, too.

"Cheer up; there will always be an England," said Audrey. "We know it, don't we?" And as she spoke to cheer him, the sad thought flashed across her mind, stabbed it again and again, she was trying to cheer someone, when she so needed a warm smile and friendliness herself.

The wolfhound, Boris, barked and galloped up, nearer Audrey, stiffened and growled when he saw Leslie seated beside her.

The boy sat up, glared angrily at the dog. The hound stopped, bristled, growled again.

"Don't mind Boris, Leslie. He wants to frighten you. He's jealous of you. He's a 'one man' dog."

"I understand, and you're his 'one man.'"

Leslie looked at the dog as one would look at a rival. He added, "I wish you'd send him back to the kennel."

"But he's here to guard me. He protects me. I'm very fond of him."

Leslie bent his head, then whispered, "I'll protect you as well as Boris does, Mrs. Blake."

"That's a very nice suggestion, Leslie, and I'm quite certain you could, but for the present let Boris handle the job."

"You apparently don't wish me to!"

"Oh! No, on the contrary. But you have other duties."

She felt his sincerity, his blind groping love, reaching out for something to hold to—something warm and sure and steady. She felt a shock at the horror he must have felt when their shelter was hit and Leslie was the only one taken out alive.

She knew the stories of her charges; knew how badly they needed protection. Young lives spent underground; damp and dark and cold, sleeping against cold walls, seeing the dead bodies of their fathers and mothers taken away, and then finding themselves frightened and alone.

Audrey recalled how Leslie described some of their grim kind of humor. A freak explosion had blown a man through some windows. His neighbors had said of him, "Guess he was awfully tired of cleaning them."

Leslie had said he used to laugh at the sight of the thrushes and sparrows standing on the branches, still paralyzed with shell shock. "You could walk up and catch them with your bare hands," he had said.

Now she heard one of the boys singing:

And we'll nail the Union Jack
To Adolph Hitler's scrawny back
When we bomb Berlin in the morning.

Leslie wasn't listening, but looking up at her. Observing his warm and wondering glance, she felt that in the tragic debris of Leslie's life he had found something precious, his young love for her. He was reaching out for her, like the young plants were reaching for the sunlight. He would cling, she knew, for she was all that he had left and she must be warm, and sure and steady.

"Dear God," she thought, "let me be that for him, and these children."

That was what she whispered again to herself, that night, when she lay awake high on soft pillows looking through the window far out on the Sound, where the moon bathed her face in silver. Her young pliant body was restless under silk, wanting the caress of warm, strong arms.

Suddenly at the foot of her bed Boris growled. There was a faint shuffling sound from the hall. Audrey looked toward the door, got up and opened it quickly. The hall was empty, but on the threshold of the door was a note.

She tore the envelope, unfolded the paper, carried it to her bedside light. The note was printed, signed with an ivy green spot and marked, "The Green Hand." The note read: "Unless Boris is removed from the household, at once, I will kidnap the hound. Act quickly or expect the worst. Most sincerely, The Green Hand."

Audrey smiled. She recognized Leslie's handwriting, turned out the light.

• • •

She breakfasted with all the children the next morning — in the solarium of the East Wing, seated at the head of their table like Mother Hubbard with her fifteen children in a shoe.

A babble of bubbly talk, it was, mixed with the tinkle of spoons and gurgles of delight. They nibbled last crusts of toasts—waiting for her to rise.

"I have just a word to say first, my dears, before I dismiss you." They stared, silent as stars.

"Someone of you wrote me an anonymous note and slipped it under my door last night. I want the writer of the note to come to me at once!"

There was no fidgeting —only quiet bewilderment. The girls turned to their breakfast partners at their left. The boys licked their lips, looked at each other, signalled, as though all were preparing to speak in a chorus.

Their chairs moved back, they were ready to rise in a body. But one was quicker. He said, "Thanks awfully, fellows, but it's quite all right."

"Mrs. Blake," Leslie said, "I wrote the note. I am at your service."

"Then I wish you to remain," Audrey said severely. "You all may go."

The other boys rose, helped the girls from their chairs. They filed out, occasionally looking back at Audrey and Leslie.

"Why did you do it, Leslie?" she asked when they were alone.

Leslie told her falteringly that he hated the wolfhound, confessed he was blunt about it; but that was the way he felt.

"But you mustn't hate; you must have been taught that."

"Long ago," he answered. "It's different now."

"But Leslie, you could have avoided Boris. We all can avoid things we dislike."

"But that's not good," he answered. "I couldn't avoid him, or anything else. We can't avoid anything."

"Then you'd have him taken away?"

"Yes, Mrs. Blake."

"And killed him?"

He hesitated, then said, "If necessary."

She sat back shocked. "You're so young, Leslie."

"I'm 13, Mrs. Blake."

She was going to pass that off primly with "Yes, I know," but didn't. He was more than 13; lives and deaths and bombings older.

He saw the questions in her eyes and went on, "I tried to be pleasant and fair. Boris wasn't. I don't trust him; he'd bite me if he had the chance."

"I can't agree with that, Leslie. There will be a punishment, Leslie. I shall put the safety of Boris in your hands. It will be your duty to take him for a walk once a day on the beach."

"Very well," he said stiffly, "I'll take him. But he'll tear me to bits." He stood at the door until she left the room before him.

How he managed with Boris for the next two days she did not know, for she did not see them immediately before or after their walks. However, she did see Leslie leash Boris on the third day, and knew the other two days must have been hateful to them both. She could see, from where she was standing on the lawn, that the dog was sullen; sulked as he was dragged on its haunches.

She felt a twinge of regret at the task she had given Leslie, because she realized Boris never had liked a leash, and would hate it when it was fastened by Leslie. Yet she knew the dog and his devotion to people he guarded.

She watched Leslie try to drag the dog. Boris merely stood firm and glared at him; but Leslie held to the leash and continued pulling, and finally Boris decided he'd go, and Leslie got away with the dog. They disappeared at a bend in the bridle path.

Leslie pulled the dog along for an eighth of a mile of the path, patiently, ploddingly until the hound deliberately twisted the leash between Leslie's legs, and Leslie went down.

"You beast!" he muttered between clenched teeth, he thought then how simple it would be to unleash the dog and let him run away to freedom and a new home—anywhere so long as he stayed away from Moonhollow and Mrs. Blake.

Little Benny's Note Book

We were having histery in school, being about the Spennish explorers discovering North America when there wasn't anything there but Indians and scenery, and I was making faces at Puds Simkins across the room to remind him he still owed me a cent, and Miss Kitty said, Benny Potts?

Mam? I said, and Miss Kitty said, Would you like to remain after school and write a composition on the American Indians?

No mam, I said, and she said, Well that's where we differ, because I would like you to.

Meening I had to do it no matter how I felt and being the fastest composition I ever wrote, as follows:

The American Indians

The Indians had copper colored complexions even before they got sunbernt. They also had high cheek bones and low sandals.

Their tents didn't have any electric lights or telephones but plenty of ventilation, especially on windy days.

The Indians also had cold running water, but they had to walk to the river for it, and when they felt like sitting down they used the floor out of respect for the absence of chairs.

Lady Indians were called squaws, and when a lot of them all talked at once the result was probably called squawking.

The babies were called papooses and if a papoose looked like his father a good name for him would probably of been Pappy Junior.

An Indian could run all day through the forest without getting tired, probably getting monotoniss after you had proved you could do it a few times.

A buntch of Indians was a tribe, a buntch of tents was a village, and they used buntches of wampum for money and talked in buntches of grunts.

BRITAIN FORMS CLUBS FOR AGED

London (CP)—The rise in the number of old people in Britain—3,349,222 men over 64 and women over 59 in 1929, with 5,571,000 predicted in 1951—has resulted in "Darby and Joan" clubs for old people run by the Women's Voluntary Services.

Clubs and hostels for old people are being encouraged, and the WVS has offered to run them to give the old people more independence and relieve young people of extra burdens when they start married life.

11 Platypuses Eat 8,800 Worms Daily

Melbourne, Australia (CP) —A problem for Director David Fleay of Healesville Sanctuary, near here is to find 8,800 fat worms daily for the 11 platypuses there—800 apiece, Mr. Fleay has his own wormery but even then is forced to rely on the efforts of small boys who get 45 cents a pound for worms. From time to time, appeals are published in Melbourne papers urging small boys to get busy with the family mattock.

Six Victorian platypuses will be sent by air to South Australia shortly for release on Kangaroo Island.

Mr. Fleay caught seven in streams near the sanctuary recently but only one was a male. He will keep on hunting until he gets two more males in order to send three pairs to Kangaroo Island.

Search For Dutch Bibles

Johannesburg (CP)— Dusty shelves and cobwebbed attics throughout South Africa are being searched for old Dutch bibles. These old books, put away when superseded by the modern Afrikaans Bible, are in demand once again. They are wanted by the churches in Holland, to replace hundreds of thousands destroyed by the Nazis.

SUPPLEMENT INDIAN DIET

Bombay (CP)—B. G. Kher, prime minister of Bombay, recently said the government had ordered the extraction of vitamin "A" from shark liver oil for distribution in scarcity districts of the province.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, May 31 (CP)—Moderate index gains were boarded by the industrial and gold groups and the base metals and western oils were narrowly lower on the stock exchange at noon. Trading continued in light volume and the total turnover was only 523,000 shares for the first three hours.

Announcement was made today that the Toronto stock exchange would remain closed on Monday, June 10 to observe the King's birthday.

Prices were moderately strong for the senior oil, liquor and miscellaneous industrials and weaker for the papers.

NEW YORK EXCHANGE

New York, May 31 — (AP) — Stocks, with scattered exceptions, backed down under further profit taking today after eight successive sessions without an average loss.

After a feeble recovery struggle at the opening, trends wavered with steels, motors and rails giving ground. Declines running to two points or so predominated near the fourth hour. Dealings were relatively slow.

Canadian issues tended to the downside in the morning and at mid-day Canadian Pacific was off 1/4 at 19 5/8, Distillers Seagrams 1/2 at 116, Dome Mines 1/4 at 24 1/4 and International Nickel 1/2 at 40 5/8.

RESIGNATION ACCEPTED

Pickering, May 31 —(CP)— Resignation of George Woods, school principal who was convicted Tuesday of assaulting a 12-year-old pupil, Freddie Evans, was accepted last night by the trustees of Pickering S. S. 3. The meeting was not open to the press. P. Comport said Mr. Woods had submitted his resignation and it had been accepted.

The court was told Tuesday that Freddie Evans refused to play baseball at recess and when ordered to the principal's office took his bicycle and went home. The teacher borrowed a bicycle and followed the boy to his home, where the assault was said to have occurred.

Spotlight on P. I. C. A. O.

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, May 31 — (CP).— This week's deliberations of the Provisional International Civil Aviation Organization general assembly brought home the fact that while all countries want to see a world of co-operation and harmony most of them have widely varying ideas of achieving that objective.

Main purpose of the gathering here at the Windsor Hotel of some 40 delegations representing all major units of the world except Russia was, admittedly, to consider the possibility of agreement on a multilateral convention governing international aviation.

That was the objective when more than 50 nations sent delegations to Chicago in November 1944 when they struggled 39 days and failed to reach anything near agreement on a single world past to ensure all nations a fair chance at the business of international aviation.

The United States, with powerful flying organizations ready to enter all fields of international aviation, has a tremendous advantage over the countries which hope to play a big part in the industry when they recover from war wounds.

The United States has most to gain from delay in establishment of strict rules governing routes and frequencies and guaranteeing a place for the smaller countries. Similarly it may have much to gain from a universal treaty ensuring peace and order in the air.

In a fortnight's deliberations of the P.I.C.A.O. general assembly there has been scarcely a single meeting large or small that has not been featured by some indirect reference to the fact that Russia has remained aloof from the organization since it withdrew at the last minute from the Chicago conference. Yet scarcely a single delegate has so far forgotten himself as to mention Russia by name. The references are always to "that great nation" or to "the one major power that has not joined the organization."

Canadian Motion Picture Company Formed in Toronto

By FRED KERNER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto, May 31 (CP) — With the idea of presenting Canadian talent in Canadian-made motion pictures about Canadian themes, formation of a new production company—Dominion Productions Limited—was announced last night by Geoffrey H. Wood, Toronto industrialist who is president of the company.

Set in a Canadian locale with a typical Canadian story, the first film to be produced features half-dozen well-known Canadian radio artists and stars two Hollywood actors. One of a series of eight films about the legendary bush pilots of Canada's northland, the film will go before the cameras next Tuesday, Mr. Wood said.

Location for the filming, expected to take 12 days, is Lake Rosseau in the beautiful Muskoka Lake district of Ontario. Two former members of the R. C. A. F.—Larry Cromien of Kingston and Stirling Campbell of Brantford—are producer and director of the film, respectively, while featured Canadian players include Cy Mack, Austin Willis, Louise Campbell, Nancy Graham and Gordon Burwash.

ELECTROCUTED FOR CRIME

McAlester, Okla., May 31 (AP)—Alfred Clarence Bingham, Tulsa, Okla., wife slayer died early today in the state penitentiary electric chair soon after he had broken into tears in the middle of a 4 1-2 minute speech and prayer. Bingham blamed his drinking for the slaying of his wife.

RETIRES AS CHIEF

Chestertown, Md., May 31 (AP)—Police Chief Samuel E. Cooper, 79, was supposed to have retired today after 52 years as head of the Chestertown force, but the city persuaded him to remain over until tomorrow. His job—to supervise traffic during the visit of President Truman who will receive an honorary degree at Washington College.

BATTLE OF ARNHEM 90 P.C. SUCCESS —MONTGOMERY

Bad Weather Prevented Buildup of British Airborne Division

(Editor's note: Following is the fourth in a series by Ross Munro, former Canadian Press war correspondent with the 1st Canadian Army in Europe, on Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery's new book "Normandy to Baltic.")

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, May 31 (CP Cable)—Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery in his book "Normandy to Baltic" assesses the battle of Arnhem as 90 per cent successful and says that the battle of the Ardennes was won primarily by the staunch fighting qualities of American soldiers.

Writing of the Arnhem airborne operation in September, 1944, Lord Montgomery says that although it was a difficult operation with considerable risk, it was justified, and had there been good weather there was no doubt full success would have been achieved.

Bad weather prevented the buildup of the 1st British airborne division at Arnhem and the enemy managed to effect a surprisingly rapid concentration of forces to oppose the British troops.

The British 30th Corps, driving north from Belgium, could have linked up with "The Red Devils" of the 1st airborne division at Arnhem if it had not been impossible due to the weather accurately to drop a Polish parachute brigade two days after the operation began along with the glider regiment of the 82nd United States airborne division near the south side of the Arnhem bridges.

Lord Montgomery said a thrust into Holland by the British 30th Corps along a carpet of United States airborne troops gave the Allies crossings over four major water obstacles including the Maas River at Nijmegen. The establishment of this Nijmegen salient was a vital factor in the subsequent crossing of the Rhine and the advance to the Baltic.

Writing on the Ardennes battle in December, 1944, Lord Montgomery pays high tribute to United States soldiers and says that their fighting qualities primarily won the battle. The Germans' subsequent confusion was completed by intense air action which became possible as weather conditions improved.

The book shows how the Field Marshal pressed in September, 1944, for one powerful thrust across the Rhine into the heart of Germany, backed by the entire resources of the Allied armies. The alternative was for the Allies to drive to the Rhine on a broad front which was a slower and more deliberate operation. Gen. Eisenhower eventually decided on the broad front policy.

Mediator Will Submit Findings This Weekend

Vancouver, May 31 (CP)—With hearings from both employers and union representatives completed, Chief Justice Gordon Sloan, mediator in the strike of some 35,000 British Columbia lumber workers, was expected to submit his findings this weekend in an effort to bring about a solution to the 16-day-old walkout of the C.I.O. Woodworkers Union members.

Meanwhile, a meeting of 1,800 American Federation of Labor workers at the British commonwealth's largest newsprint mill, at Powell River, is resuming today to consider their attitude toward handling logs which striking C.I.O. members labelled as "hot."

The A.F.L. paper and pulp workers have claimed the logs are "fair" as they were cut and shipped to the mill before the walkout of the woodworkers began May 15.

The plant was closed down early yesterday over a dispute with the striking lumber workers over classification of the logs.

FELL OFF BIKE

Portland, Ore., May 31 (AP)—Mrs. Josephine McLoughlin, 62, fell and broke her leg on the way home from a prayer meeting. Hospital attendants said she fell off a bicycle while "riding double" with her husband.
